Douglas and Agua Prieta.
The Aimee Semple Miracle.
A New Church Idea.
No More Apaches.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DOUGLAS, Ariz., and AGUA PRIETA, Mexico, Feb. 25.

THIS IS written across the line from Douglas, Ariz., in the director's room of the Agua Prieta Bank, on an Underwood typewriter, bought in the United States, and next to the bank's four-ton vault door, built by the Diebold Safe Company, of Canton, O. Mexicans spend their money freely on our side of the border. We ought to reciprocate more generously.

AND YOU, when westward bound, will do well to ask for United States Route No. 80, known here as the Broadway of America, and stop to see Douglas, and the world's richest copper mining district. Don't forget to cross to Cananea, Mexico, and get Mr. Weed, who is boss there, to show you his mine, with ore running as high as 40 per cent copper. Arizona produces 40 per cent of all United States copper.

Douglas is first a copper smelting city, and second a battle center. And it has the only international airport in America, covering 1,200 acres, part of it on each side of the border. It ranks in quality with the five finest airports in America. The citizens of Douglas built it and the biggest planes now flying can find room in its hangar.

Young Americans should fly here, motor and fly on both sides of the line, explore and make their fortunes, or try to. Whoever buys real estate in Douglas, wisely, now for instance, will grow richer as time passes.

FROM THE beautiful wide air field you see, just across the Mexican border, a strange mountain peak called "Nigger Head," and forever memorable as the landmark that guided Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson home again from Mexico and the bad men that kidnaped her. It is hard to blame them, when you have seen how beautiful she is.

But you forget all that, as you hear the story of her return, from long wandering through the burning desert, over mountains, and through cactus. There the miracle begins, fit to be compared with Meshach, Shadrach and Abednego, in their fiery furnace.

WHEN MRS. McPHERSON walked into Douglas, past the abandoned old adobe slaughter house, her delicate satin slippers, number one A-A, were absolutely uninjured by her wanderings over sharp rocks and desert sands. They were not even soiled, and when she, at the suggestion of a citizen, went to spend a few hours at the local hospital, saying to the citizen, "That's not a bad idea," she was not even thirsty, although it was the hottest day of a hot summer.

Her courage was intact like her slippers and dainty dress. She preached at a great revival meeting that very night, in the open air of the fine park on Tenth street. Needless to say everyone was there, and all joined in singing "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me," referring to the Nigger Head Mountain range.

CLERGYMEN SHOULD come to Douglas and study the "church park idea." An entire block, opposite the public park, is devoted to churches only, one on each corner, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Episcopalian, with a fine little park in the center, in which the devout may stroll, and gossip, or argue fine points of theology, waiting for church time.

Every Sunday evening, in summer, all four congregations hold a non-sectarian meeting in the park opposite the churches. Four choirs combine to make the welkin ring, the great crowd joins in, and four clergymen take turns preaching, one each Sunday, while the other three rest, or just sing. It is an idea that ought to be adapted everywhere.

THE CATHOLIC church, with a large congregation, is one block away, and the Mormon church nearby. No separate Christian Science church yet. But there will be. Meanwhile Christian Science meetings are regular, with earnest holdings of a "thought" that undoubtedly helps all the other congregations.

Clergymen coming to study the system, will stop at the new Gadsden Hotel, on Route 80. Mrs. Mackey, who runs it, will take good care of them, feed them well, show them marvelous specimens of copper ore, and the wonderful stained glass windows illustrating scenes on the desert, and old pioneer days. She has built that hotel big enough for a city twice as big. That is the way in Arizona, everything optimistic, and with good reason.

John Crowell, cashier of the Douglas Bank, deserves much credit for carrying through the Douglas Airport, and Ygnacio Soto, president of the Agua Prieta Bank, for the airport extension on the Mexican side. It would have cheered your heart to see the Mexican soldiers clearing the mesquite wood, very hard to chop, from the air field land.

BY THE WAY, how strange are contrasts in history. By the Nigger Head Mountain Range that was Mrs. McPherson's guiding cloud of smoke and pillar of fire, Pancho Villa, the powerful Mexican bandit, came marching to the American border, on his way, as he thought to conquer the state of Sonora.

But Sonora is a business state, believes in mines, farms, cattle factories, good roads, not at all in bandits. The home of former President Calles is here in Agua Prieta, and here Villa

BODY FOUND HANGING IN ROOM

No Cause Discovered for Suicide at Mercersburg Academy; Up in Studies

MERCERSBURG, Pa., Feb. 25.—Roy Detwiler, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Detwiler, 1305 North Highland avenue, Pittsburgh, was found dead in his room at Mercersburg Academy here last night. He had hanged himself from the doorknob.

Roy was in the lower middle form at the academy. According to officials there, he was in good standing and no cause could be found for the suicide. His body was found during the regular 7 p. m. room inspection, immediately after dinner, with a bedsheet, tied to the doorknob, around his throat.

Coroner S. E. Shull pronounced the death due to suicide, and announced there would be no inquest held. The body has been shipped to Pittsburgh.

Roy formerly attended high school at Tarentum.

John Coolidge, son of the former president, was a student at Mercersburg and at the time Ortiz Rubio, president of Mexico, was shot his two sons were in Mercersburg.

RELIEF GROUP ASSIGNS JOBS

The Allegheny County Emergency Association has sent out its first notices to unemployed men to report for work tomorrow. The men are being summoned for 10 city improvement projects. These men have been out of work many months and have had to rely upon relief agencies to support their families. Jobs are being given only to Allegheny County residents.

The emergency association is now collecting the initial quota of $3,000,000 to inaugurate the plan to stabilize employment in the Pittsburgh district. The association pays for labor on public improvements and cities, boroughs, townships and county will provide the materials and equipment. It is estimated the first $3,000,000 will provide 20,000 men with work for three days weekly for three months.

The first quota of the 20,000 men will begin work on the following projects: Laying of water line on LaBelle street at Virginia avenue; a sewer in Sixteenth street at Bigelow boulevard; McKinley Park sewer at Saw Mill Run boule-

Judge Thomas C. Jones, of County Court, was reported as improving by attaches of McKeesport Hospital today. His condition was described as still critical, however, by physicians. Judge Jones is suffering a stroke.

Pershing Grieved For Refugees

Sight of hundreds of French refugees fleeing before the advancing German army distressed Gen. John J. Pershing, who expressed deep concern for the fate of innocent civilians trapped by the cruelties of war. This little understood facet of the A. E. F. commander's personality is revealed in today's installment of his memoirs, appearing daily and Sunday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

DAVIS DENIES $100,000 'GIFT'

Report of Contribution From Sugar Firm 'Contemptible Lie,' Senator Declares

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Waiving senatorial immunity, Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, told the Senate Lobby Committee today that if the reports that a Senator had received $100,000 from a domestic sugar company during consideration of the tariff bill were directed at him, "it is a contemptible lie."

Soon after the meeting opened, Chairman Caraway showed Davis a copy of the memorandum he received from Chairman Nye, of the Campaign Funds Committee, regarding Nye's partial investigation of the report.

GOES INTO CONFERENCE

After reading this, Davis went into a private conference with members of the committee in an adjoining room.

Davis read a prepared statement after taking the stand. It said:

"If the charges which were read into the Congressional Record yesterday from a metropolitan newspaper refer to me, I most emphatically state that I never lobbied for or against a sugar tariff measure; that I never have spoken to anybody in Congress or anyone in government service about putting a duty on sugar; that I never received any money or anything of value for any such alleged service.

"It is a contemptible lie and I am glad that it is out in the open, so that the matter can be thoroughly investigated and the falsehood killed once for all.

REVEAL FACTS

"The charge is a serious one. The Senate and the public are entitled to promptly know all the facts; to condemn if true; to absolve if untrue.

"Congress will soon adjourn. I earnestly urge you in behalf of the citizens of the State of Pennsylvania, our nation, my family, and myself to fully inquire into the accusation and make your conclusions public before the adjournment of this Congress."

Caraway began immediately to question him, asking him if he knew B. G. Dahlberg, president of the Celotex Company.

Davis said he knew him in a business way, that he held stock in the company worth from $80,000 to $100,000.

He bought the stock, Davis said, from a fellow Welshman.

Questioned by Caraway, he said he had never discussed the sugar tariff with Dahlberg, could not tell whether his company wanted a high or a low rate, and did not even know the rate on sugar.

He denied he had accepted a campaign contribution from Dahlberg, adding:

"If he had given it to me I would have accepted it in public."

After the committee broke up, Caraway said the investigation was not ended. He said he would consult with members of the campaign funds committee, which first advanced the reports of the sugar transaction before determining the next step.

Actress Files $601,000 Suit Against Griffith

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Fern Setril, an actress, today had a $601,000 damage suit on file in Superior Court here against D. W. Griffith, motion picture director and producer.

Miss Setril charges that Griffith made advances to her in an apartment here on June 25 last.

The actress said she had gone to interview him regarding a part in the film play, "Abraham Lincoln," which was in production at that time.

Griffith, now in New York, said he had never heard of the girl and asserted that he would return at once to Los Angeles and fight the charges.

STATE DRY LAW REPEAL KILLED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The House Committee on Law and Order today voted to lay on the table all bills before it repealing the state prohibition enforcement act. This action was considered as equivalent to killing these measures.

The committee decided to hold a public hearing on all legislation before it liberalizing the Sunday Blue Laws.

Representative Himes, of Armstrong County, chairman of the committee, said this hearing probably would be held March 17 if arrangements can be made.

BILLS TABLED

The anti-dry bills which were laid on the table included the Bever bill providing for a referendum on the prohibtion question and three bills which would have repealed in toto the Armstrong-Snyder state enforcement act. These were those introduced by Representative Matthew Dunn, blind senator from Allegheny; Representative Fitzgerald, of Erie, and a third bearing the names of both Representatives Sowers and Schwartz, Philadelphia.

The Sunday laws which were considered and upon which a hearing will be held include two local option measures and two repealers of the blue laws and a fifth would permit Sunday baseball.

The referenda measures are sponsored by Representatives Musmano, Allegheny, and Perry, Philadelphia, and the repealers by Representatives Dunn and Wettach, both of Allegheny.

MINOR MEASURES

Most of the bills reported by committees today were still of the same minor nature which has

Man Found Astray In Underclothing

Frank Meyer, of 55 Chatham street, was taken to Mercy Hospital today when he was found wandering in underclothing at Fifth avenue and Grant street, suffering a lapse of memory.

Several hours earlier police had found a package containing a man's suit and hat at First avenue and Grant street.

CAPONE PLEADS IN CONTEMPT

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Fingering an ornate platinum watch chain set at inch-wide intervals with one karat diamonds, Al Capone, Chicago's "Public Enemy No. 1" went on trial today in Federal Court today charged with contempt of court.

Dressed in typical fashion of a prosperous broker or banker the booleg czar pleaded not guilty to the two-year-old contempt charge.

Capone exhibited his daring and disregard for the threats of his gangland enemies by driving up to the federal building alone in a large sedan.

He jumped from the automobile and entered the court before the crowd was aware that the gang king had appeared. It was expected that Al would have a half dozen of his bodyguards with him. However, it was reported that a score of his henchmen were scattered at strategic points near the entrance.

Knighting of Chaplin Urged on MacDonald

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Charlie Chaplin's admirers here are eager to see him rewarded for his contribution to the world's merriment by a knighthood or other British distinction. Following scattering letters to newspapers from various persons urging this, Joseph Toole, member of Parliament, has written to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, suggesting such recognition. Chaplin was born in England, and though he has lived for many years in the United States still is a British subject.

Hoover Note Cheers His Sick Schoolmate

WEST BRANCH, Ia., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Mrs. Addie Clark, 60, was reported "in much better health" today following receipt of a cheering letter from her old schoolmate, Herbert Clark Hoover. The President wrote:

"I am glad to learn that your illness has taken such a favorable turn, and I shall look forward to hearing soon that one of my well-remembered childhood friends is again in good health."

'That's Gratitude' Star Held by Wife

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Allan Dinehart, star of the Broadway stage success, "That's Gratitude," was arrested by a sheriff today for alleged failure to pay $1,500 monthly alimony and $10,000 counsel fees pending trial of his wife's divorce suit.

The arrest was ordered after Louise Dwyer Dinehart, also an actress, swore her husband was about to leave for Chicago, where he is billed to appear March 4.

Gardener Digs Up $1,510 in Gold Coins

WASHINGTON, Ia., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—W. J. Brooks, while spading in his garden, struck a tin can containing gold pieces and other coins, totaling $1,510. He figured it would stand as much chance of growing in a bank as in a garden, so the gold pieces are safe in a deposit vault today.

REDS ROUTED, 28 ARRESTED

Sixty or more mounted police, motorcycle police, foot police and detectives were on hand and succeeded in arresting 28 persons, some of whom were Communists.

There were, however, no casualties. Not one Communist was reported to have enjoyed even a slight bump on the head. True enough, they were tossed in jail, which is what they expected.

FOUR START SPEAKING

There was one exciting period of a few minutes when four Communists gathered at Liberty and Tenth streets and tried to attract passersby. Mounted police and motorcycle men swept down on them in movie style.

The police brandished their clubs, pedestrians scampered to cover and the Communists themselves exhibited bursts of speed. Traffic was jammed.

Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh was on hand to direct the offensive. At 1:30 o'clock, 40 minutes after the first Communist appeared, he announced:

"The backbone of the trouble is broken."

Public Safety Director James M. Clark was not present. He had refused the Communists a permit because, he said, such a demonstration would jam traffic.

It was difficult to tell just who were Communists and who weren't. Reporters who say they

COUNCILMEN INSIST ON PUBLIC ACTION

Houston Charges Kline and Kerr Concealed Facts in Making Report on Succop

Developments in the airing of city food contract irregularities, featured yesterday by Mayor Charles H. Kline's dismissal of Bertram L. Succop, director of the Department of Supplies, today were these:

1. Councilmen Robert Garland and Charles Anderson were to press their demand for a public hearing when Council meets in committee session this afternoon.

2. City Controller James P. Kerr was making preparations for installation of a new bookkeeping and record system in and for a "possible house cleaning in that department."

3. District Attorney Andrew T. Park was looking up the law on malfeasance in office to determine, he said, whether he should take action.

4. Charges that the Mayor and Controller concealed many things in their joint report to Council, accompanying Succop's dismissal notice, were made by John D. Houston, who made the allegations against the Department of Supplies.

Anderson and Garland, undaunted by the refusal yesterday of their appeal for a public hearing, said they would make the same demand at committee meetings this afternoon. Garland's motion for a public hearing to investigate Succop's affairs lost yesterday by a vote of six to two.

SEES NO RESTITUTION

Meanwhile Houston, president of the James W. Houston Company, in a statement issued after reading a report of the Mayor's secret probe two weeks ago, said he could see no means of restitution to the taxpayers whose "millions have been squandered." Houston declared:

"I would ask whether it is His Honor's intention to proceed in a legal way against those who have secured illegal profit from the city by acting in collusion with the director of supplies."

Succop has so far maintained silence. He has promised a statement today.

MACKINTOSH RUMORED

John Lang, 'hie' clerk in the department, will handle its affairs, with Mayor Kline approving bids, until the Mayor sees fit to appoint Succop's successor. It is rumored today that Lo. Mackin-

Suspect Arrested In Plot to Kill Prince

Pennsy's Building Delay Laid to Kline Rule

John D. Houston, of the James W. Houston company, today declared that the Pennsylvania Railroad System was withholding works projects, involving the erection of a new terminal, and other contemplated improvements totaling $20,000,000, until the present political regime in Pittsburgh was no longer in power.

Houston, who was responsible for the revelation of irregularities in city food purchase contracts, said:

"I have information from sources which I consider very reliable that the Pennsylvania system has decided to defer all improvements in Pittsburgh, and will not proceed with their contemplated program during the present political regime.

"This was one of the long hoped-for constructive projects which would have given work to thousands of our unemployed.

"The Mayor and his administration have all but wrecked this city.

"My information is to the effect that politicians here have placed so many obstacles in the way of the Pennsylvania Railroad that the management has decided to defer the improvement program."

The Pennsylvania company last week announced it would rush projects in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newark and other points, but there is no specific mention of any work to be done here.

'BIG BILL' WINS CHICAGO G. O. P. MAYORALTY NOMINATION

PLURALITY EXCEEDS 70,000

900,000 Vote, Set Record For City; Lyle Second After Bitter Campaign

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Mayor William Hale Thompson emerged from one of the bitterest primary contests in Chicago's history today with the Republican nomination for a fourth term.

Mayor Thompson's lead over his nearest opponent, Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, will exceed 70,000 votes when the remainder of 111 missing precincts are accounted for, election officials estimated. The official count early today showed the mayor 67,841 votes ahead of the judge who campaigned on an "anti-gangster" platform.

The bitter personal character that the primary contest assumed in its later stages combined with ideal spring weather to draw a record vote of 900,000. This exceeded by 130,000 the record vote cast in the primary two years ago when the voters staged one of the most far-reaching political revolts in the history of the state.

Anton J. Cermak, chairman of the county board, polled a record primary vote to win the Democratic nomination for mayor. Cermak's indicated total of 210,000 was 108,000 greater than the vote given in the primary last year to James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic senator ticket.

Alderman Arthur F. Albert Deneen candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, ran third to Thompson and Lyle.

Thumped Nose Casualty In Quiet Election

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(Universal).—It is easy to make out a situation in Chicago that does not exist. At the last election a lot of stories of violence were sent out over the country. Similar stories probably will be sent out about yesterday's primary election. Here is a summary of actual facts, taken from the police records, and, if a summary of this kind is taken of an election in any large city in the United States, it will be shown that Chicago elections differ from those of any other city only in the striking absence of serious violence.

SINGLE CASUALTY

Not a shot was fired at or near one of the 2,987 precinct polling places; not a worker or candidate was kidnaped; not a ballot-box was stolen.

And yet, more than half a million persons voted and there was much bitterness of feeling among the supporters of the three leading Republican candidates for the mayoralty nomination. And in the 50 wards aldermanic candidates had contested for election and workers had campaigned for and against these with a vigorous partisanism.

The only individual under arrest for election misbehavior tonight is John S. Hartwell, whom police seized in a polling place of the Fifteenth Ward after election officials had caught him voting under a spurious name. He exclaimed:

ONE ARREST

"But it was my cousin's name, and my cousin isn't able to vote today, so I thought I'd do it for him."

Lloyd Director's Widow Remarries

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Walter Lundin, film cameraman, and Mrs. Phyllis Wilde, widow of Ted Wilde, director, surprised their friends today by announcing they had been married since Saturday. yard; Parkwood Road sewer at Becks Run road; Thirty-sixth street sewer at Smallman street; Gould avenue sewer at Perrysville avenue; Cassina way sewer at Rosedale and Susquehanna streets; Riverview Park sewer at Grand avenue; Pocusset street road at Schenley Park and the Negley avenue entrance to Highland Park.

Maj. Philip Matthews, director of the association, explained the factors determining selection of the men for the jobs. The first list has been compiled from records of relief agencies. The men were selected on the basis of the number of dependents and the length of the men's employment in Allegheny County.

PROCESS OF SELECTION

Information concerning each applicant is punched on cards from individual registration sheets. The cards are classified. Each person is given a number when his application is received. The numbers appear on the tabulating sheets. The names on the sheets are turned under, the three essential tests in the selection for jobs are applied, the application number checked and later, from these numbers, the names of the selected workers are obtained.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt yesterday declared the workmen furnished by the association for city improvement projects would be fully protected by workmen's compensation if a resolution introduced to Council by Waldschmidt is approved. The resolution would absolve the association from claims for damages should workmen meet with accidents.

The Kroger Grocery & Baking Company announced that each store manger will give one day's wages to the association. A check was mailed today for $1,056.32.

At a special meeting of the Springdale borough council last night, members discussed the building of storm sewers and decided to notify the association today of their proposal to complete the program in compliance with the association's request. Tools and material, to cost about $6,000, will be supplied by the borough.

PLANS LAID IN BOROUGHS

Steps toward the employment of several hundred men now idle in East Pittsburgh and Turtle Creek were discussed yesterday at a meeting of representatives of the boroughs in the office of T. P. Gaylord, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Prospects are that work will start on two or more improvement projects within a week.

Among those who attended the Donaldson and P. D. McClean meeting were Burgess George J. president of Council of Turtle Creek; Burgess James Beech, J. J. Navish, president of council and Councilman N. M. Beck, of East Pittsburgh; John F. Casey, Jr., of the emergency association, and J. J. Jackson, W. G. Marshall, J. M. Hipple and E. S. McClelland, of the Westinghouse company.

Casey explained how the association would pay for and provide labor if communities would furnish material for projects. Unemployed men from the boroughs represented will be used on the jobs. Gaylord offered space in the Westinghouse plant for necessary registration and clerical work.

SEEKS RETURN OF 'HYMIE'

Samuel S. Rosenberg, attorney for Hymen "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, who is held by Cleveland police in connection with the murder of a former Cleveland councilman, William Potter, today petitioned for a habeas corpus writ before Judge Joseph Stadtfeld in Common Pleas Court, for the return to Pittsburgh of Martin.

Judge Stadtfeld told Attorney Rosenberg to confer with District Attorney Andrew T. Park before he took any action on the petition.

London Loses Bass Title to Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Another record seems to have been lost by John Bull—that for the lowest bass. Hitherto experts had believed the noise of London traffic to be lowest sustained sound, but a microphone has been lowered into Niagara Falls and the sound waves have been photographed. The experts now are inclined to believe the cataract rumbles sundry notes below London's monotone.

Bank Heads Sued For 60 Millions

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The directors and officers of the defunct Bancokentucky Company were named defendants in a suit for $60,824,976.48 filed in Circuit Court by Joseph S. Laurent, receiver for the company.

The $60,824,976.48 represents losses the plaintiff alleges, suffered by the wrongful acts and omissions of the defendants in their management of Bancokentucky affairs.

'LAME DUCK' ACT PASSES HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Another barrier had been broken today in the long battle of Congressional progressives to abolish "lame duck" sessions of Congress.

The House had passed the Norris resolution for a constitutional amendent, and the measure was on its way to conference with the Senate, after stubborn opposition had sidetracked it for years.

Senator George W. Norris, (Rep.), of Nebraska, who led the forces seeking to prevent defeated members from legislating, held the key to final action this session.

Although passing the Norris resolution, the House amended it to provide that each second session of Congress would automatically end March 4. As the bill passed the Senate, Congress alone was to determine the time of adjournment.

HOOVER READY WITH VETO ON BONUS

Confers With Mellon on Objections to Loan Plan; Congress Awaits Message

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—After a conference with his cabinet, President Hoover last night completed his veto message of the $700,000,000 soldier loan bill and will transmit it to Congress probably today or tomorrow.

The message has the approval of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Veterans' Administrator Frank T. Hines, Under Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and Attorney General Mitchell, it was said at the White House.

EXTENSIVE MESSAGE

The veto message is to be an extensive one, it was learned. The President early this week ordered a survey to determine the extent and number of veterans of the World War who are in distress. Data on this was still being received by him today.

Although assured by congressional leaders that the bill will be passed over his veto, it is expected the veto message will hold that all needy veterans are being provided for, and that the government should not be called upon to bear the strain of the loan which will be necessary to finance the new legislation.

31 Businessmen Here Urge Veto of Bonus

Resolutions calling upon President Hoover to veto the modified soldiers' bonus loan bill now in his hands were on their way to the President's office today from 31 Pittsburgh business men. The President already has indicated that he will veto the measure. The Pittsburghers expressed belief that passage of the bill would cripple business and industry and harm the entire nation.

The signers, with their business connections, as listed by the Directory of Directors, are: S. A. Hartwell, Jr., James F. Hillman, Charles A. Painter, Jr., president Painter Dunn Company; Donald C. Scully, Harmar D. Denny, Jr.; Attorney Arthur M. Scully, director Fidelity Title and Trust Company; Attorney W. R. Scott, of Smith, Buchanan, Scott & Gordon; E. C. B. Gould, William H. Schoen, Rees T. Scully, secretary, treasurer and director Pittsburgh Annular Products Company; David M. Gilmore, J. H. Baer, Jr., Attorney John G. Miss Walsh, 5309 Carnegie avenue, and Miss Ford, 103 Fifty-seventh street, paroled today when they pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the death of James J. Roberts, 9, fatally injured by an auto Miss Walsh allowed unlicensed Miss Ford to drive.

ANTI CRITICIZES DRY DECISION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Commenting on the Supreme Court decision yesterday holding the Eighteenth Amendment was properly ratified by state legislatures, Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, today issued the following statement:

"The opinion of the court makes it all the more clear that the Eighteenth Amendment was never approved by the people but was put over on us by a handful of legislators elected on other issues and frightened into doing what they did.

"It is now time for the Congress to submit to the people the question of retention or repeal of this national prohibition law so that now, for the first time, the people may pass upon it. No law can live without the consent of the people."

characterized those previously reported for passage and started through the House side. Several of those making their debut today, however, were of considerable importance to various localities or classes of cities.

The latter included two joint resolutions sponsored by Representative Spann, Allegheny, to amend the state constitution. The first would authorize the City of Pittsburgh to finance the construction of a subway or other transportation systems by a bond issue and would permit the city to issue bonds to the extent of two-and-a-half per cent of the assessed valuation upon a majority vote of registered voters. The other would amend the constitution to classify municipal bond issues for the financing of public service projects as outside the mean of defts under Section 8 of Article 9 of the constitution. This resolution would also permit cities to increase their indebtedness from seven to 10 per cent of assessed valuation if approved by a three-fifths vote of registered electors.

2 More Prisoners Caught After Flight

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Of the 16 convicts who climbed over the Arizona state prison wall at Florence last Sunday, 13 remained at large today. One was captured near the prison soon after the break, and two more were arrested here last night.

Mythology Gives Names to New Submarines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—From mythology and the briny deep the Navy has fished names for its submarines to replace the curt, impersonal letters and numbers they have borne for the past 20 years.

Out with the fleet today are the Barracuda, the Bass, the Bonita, the Argonaut, the Narwhal and the Nautilus. On the ways at the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard the Dolphin is building. The Cachalot soon will be started at the same yard, and when the Navy Department opens bidds April 16, they will be for construction of the Cuttlefish and not the V-9.

GIRLS PAROLED IN AUTO DEATH

Two girls today were placed on probation when they pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the death of James J. McRoberts, 9, of 5400 Natrona way, who died in St. Margaret's Hospital, April 8, 1929, from injuries received in front of 5311 Carnegie avenue, April 7, when struck by an automobile. Violation of parole means a six months' jail sentence.

They are Mary Walsh, 21, of 5309 Carnegie avenue, and Mary Ford, 18, of 103 Fifty-seventh street.

Mary Ford, who was driving the automobile at the time of the accident, had made application for a learner's permit, but had not received a permit.

Judge George V. Moore, of Criminal Court, asked the father of the dead boy if he wanted to see the girls go to prison.

McRoberts said:

"Let my wife answer."

Mrs. McRoberts said:

"I don't want to see anyone go to prison, but I think they should be punished in some way."

Flying Dry Agent Spots Whisky Still

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Lewis J. Tutt, prohibition administrator for New Jersey, is clever. Flying from Newark to Baltimore he detected suspicious smoke over a ravine. With a map he did some calculating, and marked a spot with an X. Then four agents found a whisky still near Bengies, some 10 miles from Baltimore.

CALLS DRY LAW PERIL TO PEACE

Wickersham Board Member Sees Agitation Lead to 'Disastrous' Consequences

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Henry W. Anderson, Richmond, Va., member of the Wickersham Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, declared today that immense revenues of bootleggers threaten this country's social peace and security.

Anderson, addressing the New York Merchants Association, referred to prohibition as "this highly emotional question." He emphasized he was speaking neither for nor against national prohibition.

CHALLENGE TO NATION

He declared:

"At a former period in our history when the strain upon our social and political structure was much less severe than it is today, the prolonged agitation of the inflammable question of slavery under intemperate leadership on both sides threw us into an unnecessary war. So today, in the face of more dangerous conditions, the continued agitation of this highly emotional question in a spirit of intolerance may lead to disastrous consequences."

Anderson said the question challenges drys and anti-drys, Northerners and Southerners, cities and rural communities, to find a solution "through understanding born of knowledge and faith born of love of our common country." He warned that the problem must be approached "in a broad spirit of tolerance."

DRINKING SPREADS

After reminding his audience that the Wickersham commission speaks through its chairman, the Virginian remarked:

"While there are many who observe the law and some sections in which reasonable efforts are being made at enforcement, at the present time drinking seems to be general and increasing in substantially all parts of the country and among all classes of the population. This appears to be especially true as to drinking among the youth of both sexes."

Then he pointed out that a majority of the citizens of the United States believe in temperance. Opposition to prohibition, even by abstainers, he added, "arises out of fundamental beliefs which are deeply rooted in our political life." This attitude of public opinion, he said, is beyond the control of government.

NYE HOLDS UP DAVIS REPORT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Suggested changes in the tentative report of the Senate Campaign Funds Committee on Pennsylvania Republican primary and election expenditures in 1930 caused the committee to postpone for several days submission of the final draft to the Senate.

Chairman Nye announced another meeting would be held in an effort to agree on the final phraseology. He said the report would carry no recommendations but would be merely a "statement of facts" uncovered in the long investigation.

The Pennsylvania report, which will go extensively into expenditures in behalf of the primary ticket headed by Senator Davis and Francis Shunk Brown, gubernatorial candidate, will be included in a document covering investigations in all states in which the committee has completed its studies.

Nye has said he will not propose the unseating of Davis at this session.

met his match. Later he met Senor Barrasa, whose property had been destroyed, and relations killed by Villa. Barrasa waited patiently for six days, with a few friends, in a house that Villa was sure to pass, sooner or later.

Villa did not pass, he stopped there, never went farther. Barrasa stepped out into the road, opened fire, and one of Villa's automobile party of six got away. It was not Villa.

WHEN YOU come here, traveling along the southern border line perhaps carefully ignoring the Mexican oases across the line at Agua Prieta, Naco, Nogales, Juarez and elsewhere, do not fail to see the wonderland rocks, 60 miles north of Douglas. The sharp, marvelously colored peaks, are left standing by erratic erosion, as Cetebos spared certain of the crabs.

They should be described in detail, and that is also true of things done by the vanished Apaches. Things that made their extermination necessary, but this is long enough now to annoy any managing editor.

AN ARRANGEMENT between Mexico and the United States, permitting troops of either country to cross the border at any time when chasing Apaches, made the extermination possible. Also the capture of their big chief Hieronimo. United States soldiers got him on Mexican soil.

You weep for the poor Apaches, not one left alive. Ygnacio Soto, president of the Agua Prieta Bank, will not weep with you. Apaches caught his grandfather, long ago, made him walk in his bare feet through cactus. After removing all the skin from the soles of his feet they threw him over a cliff.

All of Senor Don Ygnacio Soto's sympathy for Apaches could easily pass through the eye of a needle.

FOR INFORMATION about Douglas, its prosperous present and certain future, write to A. C. Crouch, president of the Chamber of Commerce; to James Logie, owner, or John A. Curry, editor of the Douglas Daily Dispatch. A good newspaper.

When you cross to Agua Prieta, as you will, call upon Mrs. Alice Gatliff, close friend of former President Calles. She keeps a good restaurant, and can tell you all about most things, on both sides of the border.

Film Editor to Interview Bebe Daniels on Radio

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—(Universal.)—The many fans of Bebe Daniels, who have enjoyed her playing on the screen, will have an opportunity to hear her on the air this evening at 8:30 o'clock Pittsburgh time, over the Columbia Broadcasting System. The radio hookup reaches millions and includes every hamlet, village and city in the United States.

Miss Daniels will be interviewed by Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of Hearst newspapers and Universal Service. Miss Daniels and Miss Parsons will talk over the days when Bebe Daniels was Harold Lloyd's leading lady and daily risked her life for $30 a week. They will reminisce on the days when Miss Daniels' motion picture stunts landed her in the hospital about five times a year.

They will tell also about the more modern days and about the new house that Miss Daniels and her husband, Ben Lyon, have built. The talk will be informal, with some good-natured chaffing on both sides.

Miss Parsons was Miss Daniels' matron of honor at her wedding last June, and their friendship dates back to the days when Bebe wore her hair in long curls.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 25.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Some fear is being expressed that a European agreement relating to agricultural products, especially wheat, will be detrimental to the United States. A conference representing 24 countries is now in session at Paris for the purpose of devising some system of international farm relief for Europe. It does seem somewhat strange to learn that more food is being produced there than can find a ready market. No doubt improved farm machinery has had the same effect as in the United States.

Calvin Coolidge

As our farmers have secured the adoption of a policy practically excluding importation of many of their products, we cannot object to a like policy by others. Yet we do import about $700,000,000 worth of farm products. While we may suffer some temporary loss of exports from a European agreement, in the long run our interests are so vast and varied that the economic strength of that continent will be greatly beneficial to us. Compared to the injury that we would suffer from a breaking down of the finances of that region, any agreement they may make would be distinctly to our advantage. European prosperity will be much better for us than European depression.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

a Communist when they see one didn't recognize more than 15 of the regular Communists.

GIRLS ARRESTED

Among those arrested were Nell Amter, 21, and 15-year-old Pauline Jaurich, of Wilkinsburg, who have been arrested before as Communists. Others arrested included Fred Kearns, 40, and Robert Woods, district secretary of the Trade Union Unity League, which sponsored the demonstration.

Nell Amter was last on page one when she tried to make a speech before Council on unemployment. To prevent any attempt by the Communists to make more speeches before Council this afternoon, police and plainclothesmen were guarding the doors of Council chamber, to halt Miss Amter or anybody else who is a Communist.

The prisoners were charged with violating a city ordinance. The specific offenses were passing Communistic literature, or meeting without a city permit.

The police said that Woods and Nell Amter were arrested when they tried to make speeches.

TWO MORE WOMEN

Altogether four women were arrested. The other two were Mrs. Phenia Hill, 32, Negro, of Wylie avenue, and Joan Summers, 21, of Arch street.

The men were listed as Joseph Mankin, 26, Crawford street; Edward Cook, 21, and Michael Burich, 30, Improvement of the Poor; H. Cheffky, 32, and Nathan Gold, 22, Baywood street; Jack Caplin, 19, Dinwiddie street; K. Joseph, 22, Maryland avenue; George Dailey, 35, Chestnut street; Ben Caruthers, Negro, Wylie avenue; Walter Thomas, 35, Sweeney Court; Gus Batlogioni, 40, Ward street; John Daniels, 38; Peter Wyurich, 36, Decatur street; John Cordi, 58, Butler street; Ernest Rymer, 21, Webster avenue; Leo Hart, 29, Hamlin street; Nick Pasermayen, 35, Fifth avenue; Albert Martin, 30, Helping Hand Hotel; Ernest Negro, Helping Hand Hotel; Harry Blakely, 40, Negro, Sachem way.

MOVE TO AVERT WAR IN PERU

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—A peace commission empowered to deal with the rebels in Southern Peru and thus avert a threatened civil war was under consideration by army officers here today. They planned to send three of their number to the insurrectionists by plane.

Although strict censorship and martial law obscured the true situation, it was reported here that all of Southern Peru was in rebel hands and under a revolutionary "Southern Junta" government.

The government stated fighting has not occurred in the last several days, and that perfect calm prevails throughout the land. President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, however, has ordered loyal troops to important points to attack the rebels upon ofders from him.

PONDERS SALE OF 'WORLD'

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Surrogate James A. Foley today was still considering the petition given him yesterday by the trustees of the Press Publishing Company, publishers of the Evening World, the Morning World and the Sunday World, seeking permission under the terms of the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer to sell the properties.

It was indicated that a decision probably would be made later today.

A group of veteran employes of the World, headed by James Barrett, city editor of the Morning World, presented a petition to Surrogate Foley this afternoon, urging that the sale be forbidden.

Class To Sponsor Father-Son Banquet

The Hilltop Brotherhood of the Forest Avenue United Presbyterian Church, near Bellevue, will hold a father and son banquet in the church rooms tomorrow night. The Christian Service Club will hold a party Friday night for the women of the church.

Twin Daughters Born To W. H. Vanderbilts

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, wife of the Rhode Island state senator, became the mother of twin girls last night. About a month ago, Mrs. Vanderbilt underwent an X-ray examination which forecast the birth of twins.

Mother and daughters were reported doing well today. One child weighed seven pounds six ounces, and the other five pounds, 11 ounces.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is the former Miss Anne Gordon Colby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Colby, of West Orange, N. J. She and Mr. Vanderbilt were married in December, 1929. She is a graduate of Foxcroft School and has been presented at the Court of St. James.

Mr. Vanderbilt belongs to the fourth generation of the descendants of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. He is the son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and the present Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons. His first marriage to Miss Emily Davies ended in divorce. They had a daughter, Emily, now 7 years old.

CUBA PRESIDENT ESCAPES BOMB

HAVANA, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Two attempts upon the life of President Machado within two days have failed. A soldier stationed on top of the presidential palace has been arrested in one instance. Police have taken into custody a youth charged with the second attempt.

The first attempt was with a bomb, lowered through an air vent, presumably into the President's bathroom, where a fuse was to set it off at 4:30 a. m. Monday when the President arose and went for his bath.

It failed because the vent was arranged so that the bomb exploded in the bathroom of the floor above, in the quarters of the President's son-in-law, Emilio Obregon.

The second attempt occurred during the presidential address at inauguration of the new $18,000,000 Capitol yesterday. The President was making a plea for nation-wide peace when a youth was seen to draw a revolver from his pocket.

GANG HOLDS UP OHIO BANK

DAYTON, O., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Six bandits armed with sawed-off shotguns, held up Norman W. Burgmeier, manager, and eight employes of the Central branch of the Union Trust Company in the heart of the business district this morning and escaped with between $18,000 and $20,000.

The holdup came 10 minutes after the bank opened. Three men who entered the bank forced the bank employes into a rear room. While one stood guard the two others scooped up all available cash.

Taking off their masks, the bandits walked leisurely from the bank, entered the automobile and drove away. Police, in an armored car, arrived in time to see the bandits' car speed away and started in pursuit, but lost trace of the bandit car.

Shot Chiding Wife Over Vallee, Dies

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—William Welch, a plumber shot last Thursday, police said, in an argument with his wife over the merits of a radio program by Rudy Vallee, died last night. Police said Mrs. Welch told them her husband was killed in a struggle for possession of a revolver she had borrowed from a neighbor after he criticized her for listening to the crooning tenor.

Walter to Conduct N. Y. Philharmonic

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Bruno Walter, conductor of the Leipzig Gewandhaus Orchestra, has been engaged as guest conductor for seven weeks of the 1931-1932 season, the Philharmonic Symphony Society of New York announced. Walter will appear in 27 concerts, beginning Thursday, January 14, 1932.

Free Transportation Ban Backed by Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today sustained an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission prohibiting a railroad from transporting free of charge the private or business car of an official of another railroad entitled to free transportation.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad had appealed the case.

MARCO'S WIDOW FREED ON WRIT

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Yvonne Richman Marco, who dodged police for a week but bobbed up here at the funeral of her gangster husband, temporarily at least has won her fight against returning to New York for questioning.

Mrs. Marco was released on a writ of habeas corpus late yesterday when New York police failed to press grand larceny charges on which they sought her extradition. They believed she might help solve the slaying of Frank Marco, Chicago gangster who was slain last week.

She said she was willing to talk here, but would not go back to New York. Police believed she was afraid of the gangsters who killed her husband.

Today Mrs. Marco was in seclusion at the home of her husband's parents, to whom she fled the day after Marco was slain.

COUNTY OFFICES TO MOVE SOON

Following an inspection by county commissioners of the new county office building, Ross and Diamond streets, Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong yesterday announced that with the arrangement of a few minor details all county offices now housed in the old City Hall Building, Smithfield street and Oliver avenue, will be moved into the new building.

A bond issue for the new building provided for an expenditure of $3,650,000, of which to date $2,800,000 has been spent.

ROME FORESEES NAVAL ACCORD

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL.
International News Service.

ROME, Feb. 25.—Speedy solution of Franco-Italian naval difficulties and participation by both powers in the London naval treaty was forecast today as the British diplomatic representatives seeking adjustment of naval programs with the government of Premier Benito Mussolini arrived here.

The "accord in principle" formulated in Paris in surprise conferences between French officials and Arthur Henderson and A. V. Alexander, of Britain, will be scrutinized by Italian statesmen tonight.

While the details of the agreement have been kept a close secret, the foreign office here was optimistic and exceedingly gratified at the turn of events the last two days. For the first time since the naval negotiations between France and Italy were initiated, definite solution of the vexing problem appears certain.

Publisher Robbed, Escapes Kidnapers

ROMEO, Mich., Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Four bandits, who kidnaped and robbed Merton B. Smith, 60-year-old publisher of the Romeo Weekly Observer, are sought by police today. The aged newspaperman escaped when the bandits' car ran out of gas. As he fled from the car, several shots were fired at him. All went wide of their fleeing target.

84 Cases Reported For City Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 10; diphtheria, 1; measels, 19; whooping cough, 1; chicken pox, 37; pneumonia, 12, and erysipelas, 1.

2 WOMEN HELD IN POISON DEATH

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Two women were accused of murder today in the poison death of August Lindstrom, 81, once wealthy Arizona lumberman, February 9.

Mrs. Esther Carlson, 61, Lindstrom's former housekeeper in a Los Angeles suburb, and Mrs. Anna Erickson, 42, a neighbor, were charged with murder yesterday by the district attorney, following the coroner's jury verdict that the lumberman had died from poison "administered with homicidal intent by a person or persons unknown." The jury recommended the women be held.

Deputy District Attorney George Stahlman said he planned to send investigators to Hemet, Cal., today to check up on the deaths of Mrs. Carlson's husband and of A. Ahlzen, 80. Ahlzen, Stahlman was informed, died in the Carlson home there nine years ago, presumably of heart disease, after stimulative tablets containing poison had been prescribed for him. Carlson died a year later, with the cause of death given as cancer.

EDUCATORS O. K. DRY LAW

DETROIT, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Tabling a resolution that would have urged repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the resolutions committee of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association today reaffirmed its belief in the amendment.

The tabled resolution was presented to the committee by Dr. Daniel S. Kealey, of Hoboken, N. J. He has announced his intention of bringing it up on the floor of the convention when the resolutions committee's report is presented tomorrow.

The committee's resolution on the prohibition law reads:

"We reaffirm our belief in the Eighteenth Amendment as the most effective means yet devised to curtail the distribution and use of alcohol. We call upon the teachers to cultivate, both by their personal attitudes and their direct teachings, a respect for this law as well as for all other laws of our country."

CHAIR BREAKS IN EXECUTION

RAIFORD, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Florida's electric chair broke down while a man was being executed yesterday.

Nathan Burton, 24, convicted of beating his wife to death with a stick of wood after a quarrel, was strapped in the chair and the switches thrown at 2:31 p. m. After the current had coursed through his body for 50 seconds a high voltage wire snapped.

Electricians hurriedly disconnected the chair and began splicing the wire, but before they were ready to resume a physician said Burton was dead.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—George B. Dolliver, of Grand Rapids, Mich., president of the National Editorial Association, invited President Hoover today to attend the annual meeting of the association in Atlanta, June 1 to 4. The President took the invitation under advisement.

3 Killed as Train Plunges Through Bridge to River

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The locomotive and combination baggage and club car of the northbound Pan-American Limited train plunged 40 feet through the open draw of the Mobile River Bridge 18 miles north of here at 12:50 a. m. today, carrying three trainmen to death and narrowly missing a passing tugboat.

No passenger was reported injured or killed, but Louisville and Nashville Railway officials said a careful check would be necessary to determine definitely whether there had been any passengers lounging in the club car. The train was No. 98, bound for Cincinnati from Mobile.

The trainmen killed were Arthur N. Ingram, engineer; a Negro fireman and J. N. Vaughn, baggagemaster, all of Montgomery.

'WHO WILL PAY FOOD LOSSES?' HOUSTON ASKS

Man Who Exposed Irregular Succop Dealings Wonders If Mayor Will Take Action

After reading of the dismissal of Bertram L. Succop, director of the city department of supplies, and the report of Mayor Charles H. Kline's investigation into irregularities in food contract awards by Succop, John D. Houston, president of the James W. Houston Company, who brought the matter to public attention, issued the following statement:

"With only a cursory reading of the Mayor's report, the following observations occur to me:

"The taxpayers would have had much greater faith in the finding of the Mayor had he and Dr. Kerr conducted the inquiry in public. No doubt, there were interesting features brought out which no one now knows about except the Mayor and the controller.

MENTIONS COYNE

"As to the selection of canned goods by the Mayview experts, I would like to ask the Mayor whether he learned that Mr. Jerry Cronin, Parke salesman, was present when the operation went on. I would also like to ask the Mayor whether the relationship of Mr. Cronin to Senator James Coyne had anything to do with the preference given him and the concern he represented. I would also like to know whether hereafter the Department of Supplies is willing to conduct its competition on canned goods in a public way, allowing newspaper representatives to remove the marks and code the samples.

"The delays in awarding bids on ordinary foodstuff items can certainly be remedied. Even the Department of Supplies at Harrisburg, which buys for the entire state, is able to make its awards within a few days after filing the bids.

"The Mayor has evidently failed to understand my feeble attempt at humor when inquiring what became of the fancy foodstuffs shipped in such huge quantities to Mayview. The menus which have been published in the daily papers would indicate a starvation diet for the majority of the inmates. I would leave it to a committee of independent dietitians whether food represented by these menus shows a sufficient vitamin and calorific content to maintain a human being in good health.

"BIG SAVING—FOR PARKE"

"The Mayor admits that no canned goods samples were called for during 1930 because of the prospect of a falling market. Who then can explain the action of the director in purchasing last September $10,000 worth of canned goods from Parke without bids just at the time when prices were falling over a precipice. This must have saved the Parke Company from 25 to 50 per cent in way of an inventory loss which the city has assumed, inasmuch as I understand most of the material is on hand.

"The Mayor is absolutely right about 'antiquated specifications.' I ask him whether he did not know of this condition and whether the subject had not been discussed with him with recommendations to remedy the condition. Protests, both written and verbal, have been made for years to the director of supplies' office without receiving the slightest consideration.

"In view of the 'poor business judgment' that the director of supplies has shown, I would ask the Mayor why he continued this man in office for so long a time after he was aware of the defect, and I would further inquire why he ever appointed him when he knew the director was entirely inexperienced in this line.

"There is nothing in the Mayor's report to Council of the matter of restitution to the taxpayers for the millions of dollars that have been squandered. I would ask whether it is his honor's intention to proceed in a legal way against those who have secured an illegal profit from the city by acting in collusion with the director of supplies."

2 COUNCILMEN ASK OPEN QUIZ

tosh, Twenty-eighth Ward Republican chairman and close ally of Kline, was to be named. Mackintosh said he knew nothing about it.

When Kline presented his report to Council he did not do so in person. It came through the city clerk's office and was read by Robert Clark, chief clerk. The Mayor has refused to see interviewers since.

BUREAU TO REPORT

A separate report on conditions in the supplies department will be filed within the next few days by the Pittsburgh Bureau for Governmental research. Paul M. Kydd, member of the bureau, attended Kline's probe. Controller Kerr stated Kydd was there to assist in inauguration of a new system of record keeping.

Specification records in Succop's office are, and have been for years, in deplorable condition, Kerr said.

Bidders on materials needed by the city were forced to submit figures on meager specifications. For that reason they could not figure closely. This was to some extent responsible for the wide variation of quotations, he said.

Before beginning work on the new plan, Kerr will conduct a survey of methods used by cities including Detroit, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

DENY GETTING INVITATIONS

Although the Mayor declared he invited all wholesale grocers in Pittsburgh to attend his secret inquiry, many have complained of receiving no invitations. Only an even dozen representatives were present, although the Pittsburgh telephone directory shows more than 60 firms selling groceries and foodstuffs wholesale.

Prior to revelation of the Houston charges that Succop had shown favoritism to the L. H. Parke Company over local bidders, the Mayor had been warned three times of irregularities in the Supplies Department. These warnings in 1929, were disregarded, according to Henry Oliver Evans, then city controller. The first complaint was made to the Mayor personally. Evans then became involved in a disagreement with Succop, who insisted a new system of accounting in the controller's office was not practical. The new system made it impossible for department heads to purchase anything without the controller's approval.

Later when Evans began to notice high contract awards he called them to Kline's attention.

The third warning went to the Mayor in July, 1929, according to Evans, following Succop's approval of a contract for hose for the city golf course to the Republic Rubber Company.

FORCE INADEQUATE

Evans declares the present force of inspectors in the controller's office is not adequate to inspect the purchases—totaling $2,500,000 yearly. He suggests a corps of experts, working part time, to supervise the purchases.

Succop was dismissed by Kline February 20, as indicated exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

District Attorney Park has delayed investigation into the malfeasance law in connection with the irregularities, he said, because he wasn't familiar with the facts laid before the public for the past three weeks.

When a Sun-Telegraph reporter informed him of the Mayor's action Park decided he would look up the law. He didn't give curbstone opinions, he assured his interviewer.

He said it would be all right in a day or two to ask him what he planned to do about the situation.

REPORT CALLED KLINE BOMBAST

Henry Oliver Evans, who, as city controller, three years ago warned Mayor Charles H. Kline of irregularities in the Department of Supplies, doesn't think much of the Mayor's report.

"Claptrap and bombast" were the terms he used in describing the communication which accompanied the note announcing the dismissal of Bertram L. Succop, head of the department.

Evans said:

"A reading of the Mayor's claptrap and bombast would add a note of humor, if the subject were not so serious.

"The suggestion that specifications should be used in bidding is a good one—so far as it goes. It will help some, but it is just as necessary to have honesty, independence and knowledge in the controller's office as it is in the Department of Supplies. So long as the Controller has no higher conception of his duty than to join in known violation of the law in order to favor preferred bidders, as in the case of the 20 checks for less than $500 each to pay for a single order of $10,000 awarded without competitive bidding, the reform will not be complete.

"And so long as the Controller's inspector is a political appointee, former holder of one of the city towing garage concessions and other sources of preference, a reform of the Supplies Department will be only one step in a long jorney to the right end."

SIX BANKRUPTCY PLEAS FILED

Michael E. and Otto DeSantis, trading as F. DeSantis and Son and DeSantis Food Market, Bradford, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in Federal Court. Liabilities were listed as $50,077.01 and assets as $17,681.04.

Five other voluntary bankruptcy petitions were filed. One was by the Union Bank of Altoona, Pa., a private institution, through its president, Joseph S. Findley. A schedule of liabilities and assets will be filed later. Talmage T. Ray, trading as Ray's Drug Store, Altoona, in his petition, listed his liabilities at $13,282 and assets at $7,821.86.

Philip T. Spicuzza and Ignatius Spicuzza, fruit dealers at 112 Nineteenth street, trading as Spicuzza Brothers, filed a petition and will file their schedules later. In the petition of Milton Luke, druggist, Southmont Borough, Cambria County, he listed liabilities at $3,421.27 and assets at $349.51.

J. Rubenstein, of Bradford, a cattle dealer, scheduled liabilities as $13,466.56 and assets as $9,916.91.

THE INFANT

Because the iron in egg yolk is an ideal supplement to the mineral content of milk.

THE GROWING CHILD

Because Fifth Avenue Eggs, like milk, are designed by Nature for feeding the young, and are therefore an "almost perfect" food.

Because "eggs and milk, taken together, are essential in the human diet if we are to secure the most normal growth and maintain perfect health."—J. E. Rice, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Because careful observation has shown that the addition of a Fifth Avenue Egg a day to an otherwise adequate dietary for children results in better physical condition.

THE ADOLESCENT

Because the proteins of Fifth Avenue Eggs are complete and are efficiently transformed into body tissue.

THE ADULT

Because "on a diet adequate for the development of an apparently normal adult, the family may die out, while on a diet richer in vitamin A, youth is extended and old age deferred."—Mary Swartz Rose, Teachers' College, Columbia University. Fifth Avenue Eggs are rich in vitamin A.

THE CONVALESCENT

Because Fifth Avenue Eggs provide easily assimilable protein to build up the body tissue which illness has wasted.

Because the most potent source of vitamin D, after fish oils, is egg yolk.

Because the high nutritive value of Fifth Avenue Eggs is well established and no other food can quite take their place.

THE OLDER PERSON

Because Fifth Avenue Eggs are easily digested.

Fifth Avenue Eggs, 2 doz. for 59c

Fresh Country Eggs, 2 dozen 49c

Einstein Shocks With Cigaret —Fills Pipe

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The ice cream was served and speeches were about to start. Prof. Einstein drew his pipe, looked around at the women guests, and laid it down.

He whispered to the president of the Chamber of Commerce by his side. Gasps of astonishment went up among the scientists as he accepted a cigaret, and Frau Elsa, with amazed eyes, was speechless. Einstein never had smoked a cigaret.

But nonchantly he broke it in two, tore off the paper, put the tobacco in his pipe, and soon was blowing rings. Frau Elsa sighed, and his secretary went to get the pouch of pipe tobacco left in their car.

QUIZ UNCOVERS CAB MONOPOLY ATTEMPT

Joyce Admits Philadelphia's Council Approved Plan To Stifle Competition

By E. W. PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—Coleman L. Joyce, counsel for the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, former Pittsburgher and attorney for the railways and utilities interests in Pittsburgh, was called to the stand today in the Public Service Commission and public utility investigation.

JOYCE QUIZZED

Joyce was perfunctorily examined by Charles J. Hepburn, committee counsel, concerning affairs of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, and the secret meeting in Gen. W. W. Atterbury's office, attended by Public Service Commissioner James S. Benn.

Joyce admitted his company, despite a resharing order of the Public Service Commission December 17, 1929—14 months ago—was still operating the Quaker City cabs. He was asked:

"It's a fact you don't want competition in Philadelphia?"

He replied:

"Yes, and City Council approved."

Senators objected to this as untrue. One asked:

"Isn't it a fact you will not sell stock in spite of order?"

He answered:

"Not so; we think competition is a bad thing for the city."

Joyce mentioned Attorney General William A. Schnader as once attorney for the Yellow Cab Company.

OIL HEAD QUIZZED

Joyce followed Edwin R. Cox, president of the Atlantic Refining Company, to the stand. Cox was questioned concerning the secret meeting in Atterbury's office, which the Senate probe committee began its hearing.

Cox said Philadelphia council was loathe to go along with improvements projected by the Pennsylvania Railroad and that to remove such obstacles was the purpose of the meeting.

The committee today had requests for permission to appear from Senator Augustus F. Daix, Jr., and Ira Jewell Williams, law partner of Francis Shunk Brown, who is Benn's attorney. Williams said he wanted to present evidence in Benn's favor.

POLITICAL ELEMENT

The entrance of Daix into the arena will add a political flavor to the inquiry. Although the resolution authorozing the investigation specifically excluded subjects of a political nature, the committee and its counsel, Charles J. Hepburn, allowed William A. Gray, Governor's counsel to put political questions to Atterbury yesterday.

It was considered likely the committee would offer no objections to Gray's course, at least until after Gov. Pinchot appeared, possibly Monday.

While the investigation goes merrily on, bringing out for the most part what witnesses "don't know" or "don't remember," Gov. Pinchot promised within a few days to launch his House investigation—one more sweeping in power and dissection.

MOORE TO CALL MEETING

A meeting of the committee is slated at the call of D. Glenn Moore, chairman, soon after the Governor names three to sit in as representatives of the people, which possibly will be done tomorrow.

The promise of action by the Moore committee came last night in a radio address by the Governor, in which he loosed barbs of irony at Benn, Public Service Commission member, who spent several hours testifying at the Monday session, and Gen. Atterbury.

The Governor in his radio talk said no punishment is too severe for the legislator who is sent to Harrisburg to do one thing and does another. He said the vote for Senator Daix should have been 10 and for Senator Mansfield 36 instead of Daix 24, Mansfield 22.

CITY MANAGER BILL REPORTED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—The Moore bill which would give Pittsburgh and other municipalities of the state the option of city managership, came out of the elections committee of the House yesterday.

Attached to the city managership provision is proportional representation, by which the minority candidates would get a chance to be represented in city government.

The city managership plan, as provided in the bill, would give council the power to elect the city manager, and the mayor would become a figurehead.

DELAY FILLING ATTERBURY'S G. O. P. POST

Won't Select Successor Until Necessity Arises, State Chairman Asserts

BY F. W. PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—Pennsylvania, allowed two, has only one Republican National Committee member and will struggle along until the necessity arises for the second to be elected.

So Gen. Edward Martin, state chairman, said today in answer to a request that he explain why the resignation of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, former committeeman, has not had action by the state or national committee.

Gen. Martin said:

"Under the rules Gen. Atterbury had to resign when he did not support the Republican state. There has been no meeting of the state committee since, nor the national committee. Mrs. Worthington Scranton, the other committee member, has been carrying on the work. There has been no necessity for calling a meeting."

OPPOSED PINCHOT

That Gen. Atterbury had resigned when he refused to support Pinchot was admitted by the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday when he testified before the Senate committee probing utilities.

The railroad head said he did not know whether or not his resignation had been accepted.

It was learned from other sources that the state or national committee has no choice but to accept the resignation. Appointment of a successor must come from the state and national committee at a meeting.

STRINGENT RULE

The rule most stringent of all, it was said, was written into the Republican code in 1914 by Senator Boies Penrose to wipe out of the party the Bull Moose movement headed by the late Senator William Flinn, the state chairman of the time, Henry Wasson, both of Pittsburgh, and others who in 1912 gained control of the state organization and ignored Penrose and his group. The rule, which now works against the organization as such, was Penrose punishment to the Progressive bolters.

PINCHOT DEFIED BY FIRED BOARD

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—Members of the Workmen's Compensation Board, whom Gov. Gifford Pinchot fired last week, today refused to be fired, and said they would continue to function until successors were appointed.

Defying the Governor's order that they retire, issued last Friday, Paul Houck, John Morrison and Joseph Fleitz reappeared in Harrisburg and said that they were standing pat until the courts forced them out. Houck said:

"We have our offices elsewhere and will continue to work, as the law provides. The law says we shall continue until successors are appointed.

"We will wait until the courts decide, if the Governor can get the case into the courts."

The Senate Committee on Executive Nominations so far has refused to confirm the three Pinchot appointments—Judge Albert Dale, W. J. Burchinal and Edward J. Hunter.

Senator Warren R. Roberts, of Northampton County, yesterday introduced a bill in the Senate enlarging the Compensation Board from three members to five. It was sent to committee.

Malone Seeks Speed On State Building

HARRISBURG, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A meeting of representatives of contractors and architects engaged on the new State Education Building here has been called for tomorrow by Secretary of Property and Supplies James F. Malone. Malone declared he believed the contractors were not employing sufficient men to complete the building by April 1, the date agreed upon.

The building was damaged by fire approximately $750,000 last October.

Alma Rubens Pawned Furs, Every Jewel to Get Dope

Refused Drug Supply by 'Respectable' Doctor, She Turned to Maid; Gave Ermine Wrap for 'Decks'

By ALMA RUBENRS.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"I am going straight to destruction."

That was my answer to my husband's hopes and to my mother's desperate prayer.

Mother stood there in something like a daze.

By a supreme effort mother pulled herself together.

"Alma darling," she said, "Alma, my darling baby, don't talk to me like this. Tell me, aren't you cured, are you still using that dreadful stuff?"

I threw back my head and laughed.

"Yes," I said, with a bitter sneer.

"Yes, I am still an addict, just a dope fiend, that's all."

I hated myself for saying it, but I had to say it or die, and it gave me a kind of wicked, perverted pleasure to see my poor mother wince under the stinging whip of my cruel words.

Miss Rubens

My husband glared at me utterly disgusted.

My mother held out her arms, and pleaded with me.

"My darling," she said, "don't talk like that, you don't realize what you are saying, you're my baby and you're going to be cured. I am going to take you out of this terrible slavery, if it kills me to do it. We'll go away together alone, just you and I, and we'll fight it out—together."

I threw back my head and laughed again—I can hear my own voice, my cruel, wicked, half crazy voice ringing in my ears right now.

I pushed my mother away, and went up to my room and locked the door.

I looked in the mirror and laughed again.

"Mother," I said, "What do I care for her, she'll try to take it away from me, the one thing I love in the world—why I'd commit murder to get a shot right this minute."

By morning I had a terrific temperature, the pain in my hip was intolerable.

My mother took me to the hospital and we found that my hip was infected by a morphine needle, which had broken off in my body.

They took the needle out, subdued the infection and let me go home again.

Home!—I had no home, I wanted no home, I wanted dope, that's all.

And I started out to get it.

My old friend, the doctor who charged $150 a tube for morphine, which he bought for $1, wasn't ready to do business—yet.

He held some of my post-dated checks and not one grain of morphine or heroin, or cocaine, or codine, or any of the masked drugs, that are nothing but dope, would he give me—not until I made good those checks.

But I found another doctor, a fine, dignified, respectable doctor in good standing.

He was sorry for me, awfully sorry for me, he said. My case was tragic, and then he started to selling me cocaine.

He charged be $5 for my first three or four "decks" of cocaine.

Prices Raised

A week later he raised the price to $10, a few days after that I had to pay him $20 for the same amount of dope, and in two or three weeks I was paying him $50 for exactly the same decks of the same dope.

It began to cost me at the very lowest, $100 a week, and I paid every cent of it to the fine, dignified, respectable doctor, in good and regular standing in the great profession of Medicine.

I pawned my jewels—every diamond and every emerald, and every real pearl I had went for dope.

Then I began on my furs. I took a $3,000 broadtail coat to my friend, the "reputable doctor," and traded it for about a hundred dollars' worth of dope.

When that gave out I took my ermine cape and gave it to the doctor for dope. The wrap cost me $4,000. The doctor said he didn't want it; I think he was getting frightened. I got down on my knees and prayed to him; he grinned and pushed me out of his office.

"No more furs," he said, "what I want is m-o-n-e-y—money." He ticked the letters off with his fingers.

"Don't forget Snowbird, bring me money, and we'll talk business."

Insane With Pain

I went home almost insane with the awful pain that comes to the poor wretch who's trying to give up dope.

In the night I thought of a maid I had.

I had discharged her, because she was lazy, and afterwards someone told me she was peddling dope.

I snatched up an old address book, and tore through the leaves in frantic haste, yes there it was, there it was in plain English.

I clutched my ermine cape, I knew the girl was crazy about it, I'd seen her smooth it when she was hanging it up.

I stumbled through the streets looking for the address, when I finally found it, I was staggering from excitement and fatigue.

My hair was on end, my clothes were half on and half off—but I was wearing the ermine cape.

The minute I saw her, I snatched the cape from my back.

"Snow," I gasped, "get me some snow, all you can get and you shall have this."

The woman caught the wrap out of my hands and vanished into the night.

When she came back she had a full two week's supply of cocaine, done up in little white papers.

I sniffed a dose of cocaine and my black world of terror and despair turned to a gay place of laughter and music, and high hopes.

For that moment the woman who had been my maid, had me for her slave.

I gave her gown after gown, robes of real lace, slips of heavy satin, hand embroidered and edged with magnificent furs, silks, satins, velvets, gorgeous fabrics from the Far East. She had them all, every one of them.

But I had my "snow," and what did I care for clothes or for food, or for friends, or for anything but "coke."

I quarreled with my mother and with my husband; I hated them, because they watched me and tried to keep my snow, and my morphine away from me.

I borrowed money from a famous woman star, and rented an apartment of my own. Within a month I was arrested.

Merger Appeal Set for March 19

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A hearing on the appeal of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation from the injunction against their merger was tentatively set for March 19 by the Appeals Court. It is expected the hearing will take several weeks. The merger was enjoined by Judge David G. Jenkins in Common Pleas Court here last December 29 after a five-months' hearing on a petition by forces allied with Cyrus S. Eaton, of Cleveland.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Grace Hayes is the featured star on KDKA at 9:30 tonight, but no doubt there will be just as many Pittsburgh fans tune in for Mary McCoy's solo of Wayne King's signature song, The Waltz You Saved for Me. A sentimental English song, one of my favorites. Drink to Me on With Thine Eyes is Reinald Werrenrath's contribution to the concert over on WCAE at 9:30. We have Paul Oliver singing Schubert's Serenade," Otto Gray and his Oklahoma Cowboys entertain on WJZ at 8:30.

Mary McCoy

For the first time since their sketches went on the network, Amos 'n' Andy are forced to produce a female character in their sketches. Heretofore they have maintained the illusion of female personages by telephone calls, but now that Madame Queen has actually been called to testify in Andy's breach of promise suit, it seems there's fireworks brewing.

We have a reliable authority from Chicago that Madame Queen will absolutely go on the witness stand at 7 tonight, KDKA.

We cannot believe that Amos 'n' Freeman Gosden will attempt again a female voice. When the team was on WGN, Amos played the part of a woman and it didn't click.

* * *

We feel that the boys will have a woman in the studios with them tonight. If so we venture further that it will be either Mrs. Gosden or Mrs. Correll. Maybe we're wrong!

Tampa joins the "two-a-day" performers tonight, appearing first on WJAS at 7:30 and again on WCAE at 8.

* * *

We spoke to the Advertising Club yesterday over mythical station XIBT. We believe it was conspiracy on the part of Bob Wood, our former city editor, to seat Lloyd Thomas, Bill Farren, Victor Saudek, CX Hungerford and other notables at a table directly in front of us.

QUESTION A DAY:

How many people listen to Amos 'n' Andy? A. K. Swissdale.

Answer—Varies of course, but their estimated potential audience is 15,000,000. We judge that their average audience is 5,000,000.

We have an invitation to go prospecting with Al Comancho, famous western rancher and actor in the Empire Builder sketches. Al came into downtown studios yesterday in sombrero, corduroy suit, riding boots and blue woolen shirt open at the neck. He displayed several gold nuggets and now we're wondering whether it should be Niagara Falls or the Twelve Mile Ranch in South Dakota this summer. Al says we can have all the gold we find.

* * *

While this rugged man of the West was munching "tobaccer" in the swell studios of KDKA, who should walk in but the famous clergyman, Dr. Daniel A. Poling.

Al Clarke interviews Honus Wagner on KQV next Monday night at 8:15. Honus is no stranger to the microphone.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Taking us to task for criticizing the sound of "our dear old Liberty Bell," Mrs. J. W. of 321 Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh, asks: How would you sound at the age of over 150 years if someone gave you 13 hard thumps?"

We're taking thumps pretty nice at 26, but we can't predict how we'll take them at 150.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Of all fields of entertainment in America today the radio seems most surely the promised land of quick and easy money.

About the magic world of the microphone there is something of the hazard, hectic atmosphere of the days when the talkies rushed into the gates of Hollywood. But even Hollywood in its wildest confusion and excitement was as peaceful as a lodge meeting in comparison to the broadcasting arena of New York.

The radio rajahs today are the most reckless, the most spendthrift of all the providers of entertainment. Their banknotes appear limitless. They think nothing of offering sums ranging from $2,500 to $25,000 for a few minutes of broadcasting, for a brief but impressive catching of the ears of the country, that the merits of commercial products may penetrate the parlors of the land.

And maybe the entertainers are not aware of the opportunity before them! They know they are in demand and they are asking fees that make those of movie stars insignificant in comparison. Moreover, in a majority of cases they are getting what they ask, so spirited is the competition of the program sponsors. Radio today is the sweetest racket yet developed in America.

And it grows by day, becoming more imposing, more breath-taking as it embraces the foremost personalities of the amusement world.

Commercial sponsors, alert to the armchair appeal of a big name, scour the musical, dramatic, cinematic marts for talent, waving in their search gold certificates, contracts, assurance of vast publicity. If soap or soup must be exploited there are hundreds of performers ready to do the job—and with no apologies.

There was a time, you may remember, when entertainers concealed their association with radio. It had not achieved the glamour of big business. There was a trivial, fly-by-night aspect about radio that would lower their prestige, they feared, were their connection with it to become known. Suddenly it became an industrial giant, captured the services of outstanding capitalists and scientists, opened up tremendous channels of propaganda to the business men and manufacturers of the land. In the process it acquired elaborate dignity.

* * *

With the passing of the years it has lost none of its dignity in spite of the financial cut-throating that accompanied them. And though it has become stabilized in its purely technical end, it is still going round in dizzy circles so far as its economic structure is concerned. The artists naturally hope that the dizzy revolutions will continue. The more far-seeing broadcasters hope they will cease, hope that radio will reach a calmer state, comparable to that now in vogue in screenland.

Penn. Boy is Strongest

"My son, Joseph, has never been really sick in his life," says Mrs. B. J. Flounders, 5643 Pine St., West Philadelphia.

"He's a young athlete, as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I give him California Fig Syrup at the first sign of constipation or colds and it keeps him well. It increases his appetite, has helped build him up. I have also used California Fig Syrup myself with benefit for constipation."

To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build-up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's diseases.

When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

Maine and Capone Give Us Our Best Political Proverbs

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

That's putting too much pressure on the Weejee board.

We've got to spell M-U-double S-O-L-I-N-I out now so the children won't understand it.

Scientist went through the Arabian Desert. And found nothing. Well, that will make a good lecture.

Ski hoppers goes 80 miles an hour using the Tyrolean crouch. That's the one we use while ice skating.

Mayor Thompson also employed it in one of his campaign speeches. So did Judge Lyle when a juggler in the audience fumbled an egg.

It won the world's heavyweight championship for Schmeling.

It is the accepted stance for digging wells, senatorial debates and tieing shoe laces.

The Grecian bend was the mode some years ago until the war, when the whole Grecian army bent.

As a bow in response to popular acclaim, we would recommend the Tyrolean crouch. It's both ornamental and defensive.

Some statesmen bow like an old potato sack collapsing in the middle. Others nod neatly, but furiously, like a very proud horse. Some give it that sudden bobbing of the head while raising the hat to show they use no mirrors or other forms of illusion.

Like the lady who had her face lifted so often she parted her hair with a smile, a lot of our better class politicians put their entire careers into a bow of acceptance and recall.

They fold up completely like a carpenter's rule and then spread out in all directions like a sunflower in a forest fire.

Theodore Roosevelt made great headway with the Graeco-Roman style of greeting his public. He had never heard of the Tyrolean crouch. He was always on his toes and could take off in less space than a chicken feather in a tornado.

Up until now the Tyroleans had concentrated on echoes. If they are also going in for crouches it looks as if we will need another high tariff.

The quickest way of mastering the difficult Tyrolean crouch is to take one swig of bootleg which is guaranteed to bend the Chrysler Building in the middle. After that you can go to your work. Which makes no difference to a cross-eyed cooper because he gets paid whether he hammers the hoops or whether he pounds the staves.

Stars Collect Everything From Pressed Fleas To Autographs

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.

Many Hollywood stars go in for collecting; and their hobbies range from first editions to Indian war bonnets.

Billie Dove has all people has a collection of pressed fleas. They come from Mexico and are varnished and dressed by hand. One of the most unusual pieces is a wedding [illegible] pasted the [illegible] There are the bride, groom, minister, bridesmaids and audience.

Billy Dove

Other unusual collections are Gary Cooper's Indian war bonnets, Greta Garbo's album of every picture she ever posed for and Clive Brook's crystal goblets, many of which date back 300 years.

More conventional are the first edition libraries of Al Green and Jean Hersholt, Louis Fazenda's pewter, John Barrymore's and Harold Lloyd's autographs (Harold's being limited to sport celebrities), Hobart Bosworth's Marine equipment, Richard Dix's pipes (he has 50), John Mulhall's military relics and Betty Compson's $70,000 worth of Dresden china.

RETURNS TO GAME

One of the old-time film executives has emerged from retirement and is building another fortune producing and distributing cheaply made western pictures. He is John R. Freuler, who, as head of the Mutual Film Company, paid Charlie Chaplin $1,000,000 for his two-reel comedies. When Charlie left Mutual Freuler said that the organization had left, and quit pictures. He had been in retirement for 10 years before his recent activities. Today, at 60, he has exchanges in key cities, and is making quickie westerns pay in a large way.

GARBO-GILBERT

One who is very close to M. G. M. policies tells me it is now practically certain that Jack Gilbert will be seen opposite Greta Garbo in "The Rise and Fall of Susan Lennox."

The man in the story is being shaped up to fit Jack, and the studio figures that the combination of the two stars with King Vidor as director could not fail to produce a smash hit.

John Gilbert

Two of the big successes made by Jack and Greta in the silent days were "Flesh and the Devil" and "The Green Hat."

LATEST GOSSIP

The prime minister of Denmark will come to Hollywood in May to be a guest of his countryman, Jean Hersholt. Jean heads the American committee to arrange Denmark's part in the Olympic games next year.

Wallace Beery and Director George Hill are to fly to Panama in Beery's plane when they go to work on "Sea Eagles." Incidentally, friends of Hill and of Frances Marion are hoping a reconciliation may be affected between the two. . . Colleen Moore made a test at M. G. M. for the leading role in Fannie Hurst's "Five and Ten". . . . For the last three Sundays Jean Harlow has summoned guests to a housewarming party, and has had to put them off each time on account of a studio call. . . . Ed Brophy, former M. G. M. production manager, turned actor in Buster Keaton's "Doughboys" and now is to direct the comedian in the French and German versions of "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath."

Discovery

Now I am well again—the thought of you
Brings not the slightest tinge of bitterness;
I've paid the fiddler's fee, long overdue,
And I'm on speaking terms with happiness.
The sky is blue, the air is crisp and keen,
The scars I bear are healing rapidly;
So life takes on an aspect quite serene

A few gray hairs—some lines around the eyes
I owe to you—but you're forgiven, sweet,
For I, a simple soul, have grown so wise
You'll gasp aloud in case we ever meet.

Quaint lad! I thought that love was potent wine—
When all along 'twas simply iodine!

—Don Wahn.

Tee Hee

Among other things I never knew till now is that one of the greatest men in the world began his career as a gossip-writer. The great man ran a weekly gossip magazine called "Paul Pry" when he was only 13. One of his victims was so burned up over a sly dig that he pitched the editor into the St. Clair River. The great man and former gossip writer is Thomas A. Edison.

The authority for the statement is the book, "Edison, the Man."

Capsule Criticism

Then there is this Dorothy Parker crisp crack in her review of "America's Sweetheart:"

"And there is Jeanne Aubert, whose husband, if you can believe the papers, recently plead through the French courts that he be allowed to restrain his wife from appearing on the stage. Professional or not, the man is a dramatic critic."

Imagine

He is pretty angry with this pillar because it was recently reported here that he couldn't pay his bills. He cornered us last night.

"I wouldn't care so much," he moaned, "except that you ruined me with most of the girls. Many of my friends haven't called me up since they learned I was broke."

"You ought to be grateful," he was told, "for finding out which of your friends aren't!"

To which he responded with one of Broadway's classics:

Prediction

Take it from G. Pihodna, the way things are going now it looks like Coolidge and Smith will have another rival columnist in 1933.

Are Wives People?

That Winchell Person has just received some samples of press matter that the King Features Syndicate send to editors now and then. The printed stuff was packed with glowing remarks. He raced to his wife and proudly showed her the writeups.

"Look," he said breathlessly, "look at these. Be careful now—and put them all together."

"Yeah?" she chilled, "then what'll they spell?"

Plus A. C.

A group of better known artists were discussing the cartoon business the other evening, and talk came around to Arthur Crawford, who developed the most unusual specialty in the publishing craft.

Crawford had a gift for concoting ideas for drawings. When he got a hunch he submitted it to several crayon-jugglers for rough sketches, and then peddled them to various mags. In his palmier days he was selling to many famous periodicals realizing an annual income sometimes said to be around $100,000.

Then slowly, for various reasons, customers began falling off. One mag discontinued, another stopped printing jokes, a third had to retrench, and the familiar Crawford tag, "Plus A C," which appeared after the artist's signature, was seen less and less.

His income shriveled to around five grand a year, and Crawford, despondent, committed suicide. Editors today will tell you that Crawford could put out a magazine of the humorous type singlehanded if he had the artists, and that nobody has risen to replace him.

In Fewer Words

To Julius

A favorite bartender,
"One wish," the Genii said,
"and name it;"
"Wealth," roared Babbitt;
"Health," another;
"Give me," sighed She, "a lover;"
My wish would be at any hour,
Merry, dumb or dour,
A polished bar, a good cigar,
While Julius pours a whiskey sour.

—RUFUS.

Stunt

Bud Fisher, whose "Mutt and Jeff" made him rich, still is annoyed by interviewers. The other day he was disturbed again by one frightened woman, who called to ask him such queries as: "Where and how do you get your ideas?"—"How does it feel to be famous?" etc.

Mr. Fisher, who hadn't had his orange juice yet, grunted and then turned on his phonograph, which plays a special record for interviewers. The record chirped: "How does it feel to be famous?" and Fisher's voice is heard replying: "Terrible." Similar questions and answers follow, while Fisher leaps back into bed and tries to sleep again.

This indifference usually sends the caller away crushed. A good interviewer, however, wouldn't interview Bud Fisher, who is so rich now, what with his racing stables, etc., that he engages "Ghosts" to cartoon for him.

In Other Words

Joe Lewis was buttonholed by a Jewish Jentleman in a hotel foyer, who wanted to make conversation.

"And," said the dialectician, among other things, "anudder

Two Leading Men For Miss Mackaill

Dorothy Mackaill will have two leading men, Conrad Nagel and Walter Byron, opposite her in "The Reckless Hour," adapted from Willa Cather's "Lost Lady," and to be directed by John Francis Dillon.

Mystery

Frances Dade has a prominent role in the screen version of the mystery thriller, "Dracula," which opens Friday in the Stanley.

Two Studios Vie For Film Juvenile

Jackie Cooper, Hal Roach, juvenile, is now being bid for by both RKO and Paramount. Cooper has just completed "Skippy" for the latter company, who wish to hold him for another feature, in which they plan to co-star the boy with Mitzi Green. RKO has also approached Roach for the loan of Cooper so that he may appear with Richard Dix in a forthcoming production.

GERMAN OPERA STAR FORMERLY CARPENTER

One of those occasional musical talent "discoveries" was made last summer by the managing director of the German Grand Opera Company, which will present "The Flying Dutchman" in Syria Mosque Saturday evening, March 7. Carl Hartman, tenor, who sings the role of Eric in "The Flying Dutchman," was singing with the opera house in Oberfeld.

Eight years ago he was a carpenter, who was sent to repair the flooring in the opera house. He sang at his work and attracted the attention of the musical director, who offered to teach him. In two years young Hartman made his debut in the title role of "Siegfried."

The management of the Oberfeld opera was induced to release him for the American tour of the German Grand Opera Company.

Floor Show, Graff Features in Plaza

The Plaza is now open under the personal direction of John M. Rapano. Dance music by Etzi Covato's Orchestra and a floor show are features. Victor Graff, former Harris master of ceremonies, is now acting in that capacity in the Plaza.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

St. John Ervine's witty play of divorce and remarriage, "The First Mrs. Fraser," brings Grace George, one of our real queens of comedy, to the Alvin stage next week. The box office parade for "Mrs. F., No. 1" begins at 9 tomorrow.

Pittsburgh must be scotless—none of our extended array of stage and screen artists is famed as a blackface.

* * *

One good laugh deserves an encore. So thinks Manager Harry Brown, who is bringing "Strictly Dishonorable" back to the Nixon next week. This sophisticated comedy played there before Thanksgiving and comes back with the same leads. Tickets will be obtainable Thursday.

With so many "hams" and "eggs" on Broadway, New York's Vain street has plenty of food for thought anyway.

* * *

When George Sharp presents "Ten Nights In a Barroom" in the Pitt next week, Hugh Banks, Mabel Kroman, Clyde Shafer, Billy Link, Peggy Dougherty and even Robert Fiske will risk fractured tonsils by breaking into song.

Al Jolson, the boy who started the screen on its gabby career, is returning to the stage in "The Wonder Bar," which has its premiere in Washington March 2, there to remain a week prior to its New York opening. Sure, it's musical.

A Hollywood scenarist has invented a plot robot, to make plots by turning a dial. The old way is just as simple—and requires only a rubber stamp.

"A COUGH WOULD KILL MY PROGRAM"

Harriet Lee

"I GET colds, of course," says Miss Lee, popular radio contralto, "but I have to go on the air just the same. A cough would kill my program."

That's why, like many other radio artists, she has learned to rely on Pertussin. It's quick—and it's safe and pleasant to take. For Pertussin is made from a medicinal herb called thyme and is entirely free from narcotics and injurious, habit-forming drugs.

Broadcasting studios use Pertussin because it relieves coughs and eases the throat almost instantly. Doctors have prescribed it for over twenty-five years—especially for children.

Gas Well Aflame In Oklahoma Town

WEWOKA, Okla., Feb. 25—(AP.)—The gigantic torch of a blazing gas well roared at the edge of this city today. Fed by more than 80,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day, the Deep Rock Oil Company's well was spouting flames 200 feet into the air just a mile south of town.

Only shacks on nearby oil leases were believed endangered by the well, which caught fire late yesterday after a separator explosion fired a nearby oil well, also Deep Rock property.

Midshipmen Lose Reinstatement Hope

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Congressional efforts to reinstate two Annapolis midshipmen who were dismissed because they smuggled two girls in midshipmen's uniforms into the mess hall will fail, it was learned today.

The Senate bill to reinstate Lawrence L. Myatt, of Quincy, Mass., and Miller S. Burgin, of Jacksonville, Fla., in the 1934 class, is in the House Naval Affairs Committee where in all probability it will die.

Always the Critic

Percy Hammond, the dramatic critic, who enjoys calling the other critics "Aisle actors," walked out on a play during the middle of the last act. As Hammond ankled slowly up the aisle, he put on his hat.

"Look at that," sneered a first-nighter. "Only a critic would put on his hat before all these ladies and gentlemen."

"Oh, I don't know," snapped the other sarcastically. "He's probably showing his contempt for the audience—as well as the play."

Bellevue Prepares High School Plans

Plans for a new high school in Bellevue to be built on the athletic field adjoining the present high school, are being prepared under direction of the borough school board. The present building likely will be used for a junior high school, thus relieving the Jackson grade school, which now is used for that purpose. An addition to the Grant grade school building is under way.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

20th Century Club Dance Tomorrow

After the gaiety of the past week, this week has seemed a bit dull socially, don't you think? And I'm sure many folks who have been feeling a bit let down will greet with acclaim news of a dance.

The Twentieth Century Club will give another of its dinner dances tomorrow night in the new clubhouse. And I hear that throughout the late winter Thursday night dinner-dances are to be continued.

Lenten Sewings

The period of Lenten sewing is with us again. The Pittsburgh Alumnae Association of National Park Seminary is among those arranging a series of sewings during this pre-Easter period. And the beneficiaries will be the Zoar Home for Babies and the Ward Home for Children.

And the meetings are being held in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church with the second session tomorrow at 10 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at noon. Serving as chairman is Mrs. F. R. Braun.

Travel Chatter

Expected home early next month are the John McKelveys. Before her recent marriage Mrs. McKelvey was Anne Douglas Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Douglas Stewart.

Back in Pittsburgh are the William Rossiter Hinchmans. At present they are at the Hotel Schenley, and shortly will be at home in the Schenley apartments. Before their marriage Mrs. Hinchman was Helen Gwendolyn Miller, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Married Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Luntz of Baywood street announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edna Luntz, to Allan Polachuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Polachuck, of Milwaukee, which took place on Sunday in the Schenley Hotel at 6:30 o'clock. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. B. A. Lichter.

After the wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Polachuck left for a southern wedding trip and will be at home in Milwaukee after March 15. Miss Ruth Luntz was her sister's maid of honor, and Gordon Ruscha, of Milwaukee, the best man.

That friendly little group, the Bellevue Round Table, came up to town for its meeting yesterday and the members were guests of Mrs. T. Edward Jones and Mrs. E. Roy Roberts in the Woman's City Club. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Harry D. Howard, the vice president, Mrs. William Jackson presided. Mrs. Allan Crukshank introduced the program, which consisted of two interesting papers on essayists—Ralph Waldo Emerson and Christopher Morley. These were given by Mrs. Stanley Ashe and Mrs. Joseph H. Caughey and included brief biographical sketches as well as estimates of the work of the two writers. Mrs. Samuel L. Hosack brought current topic as culled from newspaper clippings and the club quartet sang, with Mrs. George J. McLeod accompanying.

Safyan and Mrs. Louis Jay Stein.

AD CLUBS HEAR TRADE TALK

The relations between advertiser and consumer, and their effect upon business, were discussed by Dr. Paul T. Cherington, director of research for the J. Walter Thompson Company, international advertising agency, at a joint meeting of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club and the Pittsburgh Women's Advertising Club, held yesterday.

Dr. Cherington declared that the business leaders of the next 10 years will come forward within the next 10 months, and that during this time both competing business firms and their employes will show their future worth. Statistics show, he continued, that increases in advertising always precede increases in business volume, and likewise a fall in advertising always precedes a fall in business volume.

Find Dazed 'Aviator' Victim of Amnesia

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Wheeling authorities announced that the youth found wandering along a highway near here, and who was quoted as saying he was an aviator and had been in a crash, was identified as Lee McBride, Washington, Pa. Authorities said a physician announced the lad was suffering from hysterical amnesia. He was said to have been injured in an automobile accident recently.

Revolving Door Aids Escape of Prisoner

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—(AP)—David Gniadowitz, 20-year-old stowaway, who was to have testified for the government in connection with an alien smuggling ring, eluded his guard in a revolving door and escaped.

At the noon recess an inspector took Gniadowitz to a restaurant for lunch. After putting the youth in one section of the restaurant's revolving door the inspector was shoved aside by a woman who entered ahead of him. The prisoner pushed the door all the way around and escaped in the street crowd.

Fume Victim Found In Room With Stove

Mrs. Rachel Causwell, 40, a Negro, of 3950 Penn avenue, was found dead in her home last night from carbon monoxide poisoning, according to the coroner's report. A small gas stove was found burning in the room, it was reported.

Are you looking for a place to live? There are many fine homes advertised for sale and rent in the Classified Section.

Change Urged In Idea of Liberty

In his eloquently impressive but richly humorous talk before an audience that crowded the Y. M. and W. H. A. auditorium last night, Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, pleaded for a different conception of what liberty is. Mr. Thomas, speaking on "Why Freedom Matters," appeared under auspices of the Pittsburgh Section National Council of Jewish Women, which had changed its meeting from the customary afternoon hour that the men of Council families might attend.

Every new truth has been a minority idea, heresy has always been the growing point in society, Mr. Thomas said. Discussion is the mother of truth and experience is its proof, he went on as he pleaded that men and women do their best to preserve a state of society where a new idea may get its start in an atmosphere of freedom.

The condition of liberty in America today is very low, he declared, among other things citing "the bitter and unnecessary poverty that exists" as one reason for lack of liberty. The marvel of America is not that the country is so well off, he went on, but that it is as badly off as it is; its disgrace and tragedy is that strong men have no alternative to the bread line except selling apples. Property rights, but not personal rights, are protected, he charged as he pleaded for fair trial regardless of color or economic standing; justice, free speech that does induce violence, free press and free association—civil liberties which he said are not enjoyed by all.

Concerning prohibition, Mr. Thomas remarked:

"I do not believe in prohibition, neither do I believe in an inalienable right to drink. The case against prohibition is that a case against alcohol has not been proved and you cannot enforce even a good law until you have an adequate public opinion behind it. Society has the right to regulate and even prohibit those habits which are deleterious to the human race."

OLD STYLE FAVORITE GETS NEW AND NOVEL DISTINCTION

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The tide of fashion washes up much flotsam and jetsam on the shores of time. Fashions of other days that seemed to us, only yesterday, to be hopelessly out-of-date, clumsy and ugly, suddenly appear again to be greeted by rapturous cries of admiration by the ultra-modern, as something delightfully new and novel. And so, once again we fare forth at nights clad in evening frocks that boast not only of fringe but of jet embroideries. Shades of grandmamma's best dolman! That imposing garment could surely boast of no better or more fashionable ornamentation than these twain. Of course the jet and the fringe is handled much more beautifully in these days—at least so it must seem to us.

BUT WE HAVE seen evening frocks with fringes of jet that seemed to us decidedly reminiscent of other days, except of course for a different silhouette. But then there are other dresses that feature the basque bodice and full skirt, quite as in days of yore. Not to speak of the Empire silhouette or the off-the-shoulder decolletage, both fashions of another era. And so they pass before us, these old styles, and we feel the last word in modernity as we don a frock with its fringes and bugles. Interesting, isn't it?

AND NOW FOR Worth's new evening frock with its trimming of jet and fringe. It is of black chiffon. There is a softly drawn surplice effect in front of the bodice which is beaded in jet. Heavy black silk fringe makes the graceful overskirt. The surplice effect is repeated in back of the bodice.

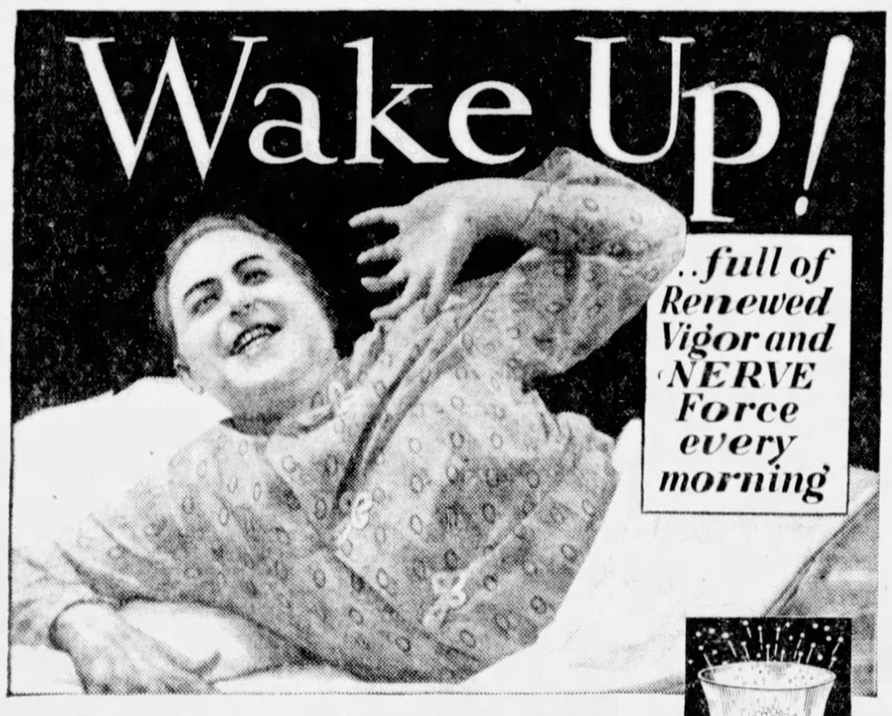
Wake Up!



..full of Renewed Vigor and NERVE Force every morning

This Harmless Effervescent Drink Relaxes Tense "NERVES" and Helps You to Get Sound, Restful Sleep

DO YOU greet the morning with a smile? Do you open your eyes to the new day with that joyous feeling of renewed power and vigor that comes only when you have slept sound and rested well?

Surely you know how sleep benefits the body—but do you know how serious the loss of sleep is . . . what destructive effect it has on your health and happiness?

When You Go to Bed Do Your "NERVES" Stay Up?

In most cases, sleeplessness is caused by nervousness. Tense overworked "NERVES" mean a sleepless night ahead . . . turning, tossing, frenzied, wakeful hours of mental unrest when you need sleep. Are you one of the thousands of people whose overworked "NERVES" keep you awake at night? Then here's a new delightful and harmless way to quiet your "NERVES" and get refreshing relaxation and rest.

Quiet Your "NERVES" This Delightful Way

When "NERVES" keep you awake, when they refuse to relax—just drop a Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water—then drink it. In a few minutes your irritated nervous system is soothed—tense "NERVES" relax and nature brings you sound, restful sleep so that you wake up in the morning completely refreshed and full of renewed vigor for the day's activities.

A Harmless Drink

There is nothing harmful about Effervescent NERVINE Tablets. They are the same time-tested Dr. Miles' NERVINE formula that has been used by nervous people for over 50 years—now combined with bicarbonate of soda* and citric acid and offered to you in handy Effervescent Tablet form. Thousands of nervous people have found delightful relief from nervous tension and nervous troubles in this pleasing Effervescent drink. Why don't you try it when "NERVES" bother you?

Liberal Trial Offer

To prove what satisfying relief Effervescent NERVINE Tablets give for Sleeplessness, Nervous Headache, Nervous Indigestion and most nervous troubles, we make you this liberal trial offer. Get a package at any drug store and try them. If you are not fully satisfied with the prompt relief they give—your druggist will gladly refund your money.

*Note—

The reason Effervescent NERVINE Tablets give such prompt relief is that each tablet contains a liberal quantity of bicarbonate of soda and citric acid. These effervescent salts make an effective Anti-Acid, Alkalizing drink which corrects hyper-acidity, a frequent cause of nervousness.

Above is a reproduction of the tabulating sheets on which the names of work seekers and information concerning them are listed by the Allegheny County Emergency Association. The applicants for work are selected by number, the names, not shown above, being turned under so that selections from the lists are made on an anonymous basis. Two tests are applied in selecting the workers: First, the number of dependents, and, second, the number of years previously employed by an Allegheny County company. Those considered most needy are given preference.

The numbers in the Relief Agency column indicate the code number of the agency which has been handling their case; where none is listed the worker has not applied to any agency for charitable relief. The Trade Class column shows the code number of the regular trade or occupation of the worker. Under the Necessity heading, numbers indicate the type of necessity, such as food, clothing, heat, etc., for which the applicant owes money, while the Luxury column indicates the code number of luxuries, such as radios and autos, on which money is owed.

To Charles P. Wetmore, R. N. Havens, John Seville, Catherine Johnston, James Johnston and Sarah Ann Johnston, their devisees, assigns, heirs and next of kin:
Take notice that on February 24, 1931, Samuel S. Brown presented his petition to the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania at No. 2435, April Term, 1931, setting forth inter alia, that he is the owner in fee simple of:
ALL that certain lot or piece of ground situate in the West Side of Grantham street in the Twenty-third Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, County of Allegheny and State of Pennsylvania, described as follows:
BEGINNING on Grantham street, at a distance of 40 feet northwardly from Anderson alley; thence northwardly along Grantham street, 20 feet; thence westwardly by the line parallel with the aforesaid alley 60 feet and 10 inches; thence southwardly towards the aforesaid alley by a line parallel with Grantham street to a point distant 40 feet from said alley; thence by a line parallel with said alley 60 feet and 10 inches to Grantham street, at the place of beginning.
That Petitioner acquired title thereto, from the estate of Thomas E. Fisher, deceased, who and his ancestors held title to said lot since 1861.
That the above named defendants have an apparent interest or title in the real estate above described, and for the purpose of quieting title to the property above described, the Court granted a rule upon Charles P. Wetmore, R. N. Havens, John Seville, Catherine Johnston, James Johnston and Sarah Ann Johnston and upon their devisees, assigns, heirs and next of kin to bring an action of ejectment for said land within six months from the date of service by publication, or to show cause why the same cannot be brought, and in default, thereof they shall be forever barred, returnable the first Monday of July, 1931.

In the matter of Benjamin Pearlman, trading as Princess Dress Co., Princess Manufacturing Co. and Princess Dress and Manufacturing Company, Bankrupt. No. 16113 in bankruptcy.
ORDER OF COURT.
And now, to-wit: this 20th day of February, 1931, the within petition presented in open court upon consideration thereof, and upon motion of Isidore M. Goldsmith, Esq., attorney for the petitioner,
It is ordered, adjudged and decreed that a meeting of creditors of Benjamin Pearlman, trading as Princess Dress Company, Princess Manufacturing Company and Princess Dress and Manufacturing Company, be called and held at the office of Watson B. Adair, Esq., Referee in Bankruptcy, at 24 St. Nicholas Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., on the 6th day of March 1931 at 2:00 o'clock p. m., for the sil-vance of claims, examination of said alleged bankrupt and the preservation and conduct of the estate, and for the consideration by the creditors at said meeting of such offer of composition as said bankrupt may offer to them, at which meeting the said Referee shall preside.
Said Referee shall report to this court within four days after said meeting, the claims of creditors allowed by him, the action of said creditors upon the offer of said composition, his finding and conclusions upon the same and any other proceedings had before him in said case, and shall give notice to the creditors of such meeting that the terms of composition, if accepted by the requisite amount of claims, will be presented before this court for final confirmation on the 10th day of March, 1931, at 10:00 o'clock a. m.
It is further ordered that notice shall be given by the Clerk by mailing a copy of this order to each of the creditors and by publishing a copy thereof in the Pittsburgh Legal Journal and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph as provided by law.

SEEK GUNMEN IN M'KEESPORT SHOOTING

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Probably you never suspected that we knew the lowdown on Pittsburgh society people. And we didn't, until a young woman who knows all about it told us. She said the smartest way to break into society here is through your daughter. If you have a good-looking daughter, send her to one of the exclusive boarding schools. There she'll meet the daughters of Pittsburgh's society families and when they come home for vacations they'll visit each other. Eventually the families meet, and there you are. She said a lot of Pittsburgh families had made the grade through their daughters, although what it means after they make the grade we don't know.

William Pfarr

Our informant said there are between 600 and 700 society people in Pittsburgh but that, by a pure coincidence, only 400 are considered in the really exclusive set. She said the Meilons were still considered the leaders here but that they weren't especially active in social affairs.

Usually when people write in and say "I enjoy your column and think that it is . . ." the thing to do is ignore such statements publicly, but be tickled pink privately. That's what we usually do when, somehow or other, a letter writer waxes enthusiastic. In the case of Carl McNamara, of Sewickley, we make an exception because Mr. McNamara is obviously so sincere.

"If," he writes, "I had my choice between giving up my dinner and reading your column I'd ignore the food."

Neglecting to admit that he has been on a diet for three months, Mr. McNamara then submits for publication a puzzle. Here it is:

Three cannibals and three missionaries are on a river bank. They want to cross and have one boat which will carry only two. If at any time the cannibals on either bank outnumber the missionaries, the cannibals will proceed to indulge in an old cannibalistic

Well, Admirer McNamara also supplies the answer. The rowing cannibal rows over the non-rowing cannibal and brings back the boat. The rowing cannibal takes over another non-rowing cannibal and comes back. The two missionaries row over and one brings back a non-rowing cannibal. The missionary then takes the rowing cannibal over and brings back another non-rowing cannibal. Two missionaries now row over and —aw, take your old compliments, Mr. McNamara. We can't follow you.

Robert C. Scheib, chemist, joins us in our complaint against the doughnuts of today, agreeing that the doughnuts aren't what they used to be. Mr. Scheib adds, as an afterthought, his feelings on the doughnuts. It is an afterthought to Mr. Scheib's solution of a mathematical problem printed here. Mr. Scheib not only solves the problem but submits one of his own, which is why we're abandoning publication of such problems. Mr. Scheib starts out:

"In any triangle, the intersections of the adjacent trisectors of the angles meet at three points which are mutually equidistant . . ."

Miss Mary Phillips was standing outside the Nixon Theater a few afternoons ago waiting for some friends. She happened to be standing alongside a box of apples whose owner was absent.

Miss Phillips doesn't resemble an apple seller, but when a gentleman approached and gazed critically at the apples, she reached into the box, picked one out and said to the possible customer:

"Buy an apple, Mister?"

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 25.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The President has what is called the "pocket veto." If a bill is passed it comes to him, and he has 10 days to carry it in his pocket and think it over. Congress hasn't got 10 days to go, and "pocket veto" would be possible, but the President's pockets are so full now they won't hold any more bills. Muscle Shoals is one of 'em. If the government runs it, we lose money, if somebody runs it they make money, so let's keep it as it is, a tribute to our engineers, a constant argument to our statesmen, and a nightmare to our taxpayers.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

COURT WORK HIT BY LACK OF JUDGES

Jurist Ill, Two Visitors Cancel Engagements; Many Criminal Trials Delayed

Delays in the work in Criminal Court, due to a scarcity of judges, was pointed out today by attorneys and others as an argument for the bill providing two more judges for Allegheny County.

One local judge was taken ill and two visiting judges cancelled their engagements yesterday, leaving Criminal Court to run with four judges. The trial list was thrown out of order and 12 trials scheduled had to be postponed by Presiding Judge George V. Moore.

The situation did not become apparent until afternoon, because two murder cases were under way and all jurors in both panels were in these two court rooms. When the juries were selected shortly after noon, and the time came for visiting judges to appear and begin hearing cases, their rooms remained vacant.

JUDGE DITHRICH ILL

Judge Heber Dithrich sent word that he was ill. Word came from two visiting judges that affairs kept them in their home counties. One visitor, Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset County, had arrived early and was trying a murder case. Judge James H. Gray was hearing the other murder case. This left only Judge John P. Egan and Presiding Judge Moore.

Judge Egan during the afternoon tried three minor cases, and Judge Moore, as soon as his work in the assignment room was completed, went to a trial room and heard one case. He had excused the jurors not empaneled at 3 o'clock, after picking one jury, which is taking up the first case today.

Including the murder cases, six cases went to trial. 12 were continued, one was nolle prossed and 12 defendants pleaded guilty.

MURDER CASES SPEEDED

Rapid progress was made with the murder cases. In both the state got all its evidence in, and the defense opened before adjournment.

One defendant, John F. Freeman, Negro, 30, of 2515 Center avenue, charged with shooting Curtis Smith, Negro, 30, Beaver street, McKeesport, in a Webster avenue brawl, claimed self-defense before Judge Gray.

John V. Barnes, Negro, 30, 309 Seventh avenue, Homestead, claimed that the stabbing of Charles Lewis, Negro, 30, of 411 Third avenue, Homestead, of which he is accused before Judge Boose, was accidental.

Judge Moore appealed unsuccessfully to Presiding Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court for the loan of some of his 10 judges to Criminal Court. All the Common Pleas judges were working on opinions following general argument court last week.

County Gets $350,583 From State Gas Tax

Allegheny County will benefit to the extent of $350,583 from the state gasoline tax during the last six months, according to information from the office of Charles A. Water, state auditor general. Each county in the state received one-half cent from the state's three-cent-a-gallon tax on retail sales.

Refugees Fleeing Before Germans Move Pershing

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER XLV.

Further conversation at the sixth session of the Supreme War Council, June 1, 1918, showed the uncertainty in the minds of the Allies. Prime Minister Lloyd George, reverting to losses, said that before the great German attack in May he had been informed positively the Germans had only 400,000 replacements left, and that now, after the most violent fighting, in which it was reported the Germans had suffered very heavy losses, they still had more than 300,000 replacements.

The Allies also had 300,000, but it was now contended, he said, that the British Army was on the decline while that of the enemy was not.

Gen. Pershing

Mr. Lloyd George asked if that could be cleared up, to which Gen. Foch replied that it was because the enemy managed better, and he went on to say that Germany, with a population of 68,000,000, could maintain 204 divisions, while Great Britain, with 46,000,000 inhabitants, could keep up only 43.

It had been stated that the British counted on keeping up 53 divisions, but that 10 of them would be practically American.

Then, in response to a further question by Mr. Lloyd George, Gen. Foch said he could not pretend to say where Germany procured her replacements, possibly it might be from prisoners returned from Russia.

After further argument on discrepancies of various figures, and insistence by Gen Foch that the number of divisions be maintained, the consideration of the transportation of American troops in June and July was resumed.

The discussion having reached an impasse, it was suggested that Lord Milner, British war minister, Gen. Foch and I should undertake to draw up a program.

In the consideration of the question by us, the point of my contention was won when Gen. Weygand, who was Foch's principal advisor, remarked that it would be as well to leave the new drafts to be trained at home a month or so longer.

Outline Agreement

Although my arguments had failed to make any impression on Gen. Foch, he at once approved Weygand's suggestion.

With this out of the way we soon drew up the agreement embodied in the following cablegram sent to Washington June 2:

"A. For June; 1st, absolute priority shall be given the transportation of 170,000 combatant troops (viz: six divisions without artillery, ammunition trains or supply trains, amounting to 126,000 men and 44,000 replacements for combat troops); 2d, 25,400 men for the service of railways, of which 13,400 have been asked by the French Minister of Transportation; 3d, the balance to be troops of categories to be determined by the Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

"B. For July: 1st, absolute priority for the shipment of 140,000 combatant troops of the nature defined above; four divisions minus artillery, etc., etc., amounting to 84,000 men, plus 56,000 replacements; 2nd, the balance of the 250,000 to consist

INCINERATORS INCREASE HERE

Individual incinerators in private dwellings, apartment houses and public buildings have increased greatly, according to a report to Council by Public Heath Director C. B. Maits, with a consequent decrease in the city's garbage collection costs.

Dr. Maits has completed a survey of incinerator installations in several other cities.

In the last five years, the report disclosed, 2,031 private incinerators have been installed here. Detroit installed 1,506 in the same period, and Philadelphia 5,000.

Ex-Mayor Magee McKeesport Speaker

Former Mayor William A. Magee, of Pittsburgh, addressed a meeting of the recently organized McKeesport Housing Council, last night in the Penn McKee Hotel, McKeesport, explaining the laws relating to the improvement of housing conditions and occupancy of dwellings. Watson McKee presided.

Irene-Dague Case Cost County $23,658

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—It cost the taxpayers of Lawrence County $23,658 to capture and convict Mrs. Irene Shrader and W. Glenn Dague executed Monday at Rockview Penitentiary for the slaying of Corp Brady Paul, of the state highway patrol. One thousand dollars' reward was paid for their capture by the county commissioners.

SECRET BURIAL GIVEN IRENE AT DAWN

Donnie Drops Rose on Bier As It Is Lowered Into Grave on Lonely Hillside

By GEORGE SHRADLE

Staff Correspondent.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 25.—Irene Shrader went to her grave today, buried at daybreak in Rose Hill Cemetery, on a lonely hillside overlooking Bellaire, O., 12 miles from Wheeling.

This afternoon services were being held for Walter Glenn Dague, electrocuted with Irene. The sun was shining and the weather warm, in marked contrast to that of early morning, as Dague's family and nearest relatives moved into the Crider funeral home at Elm Grove.

Outside a small crowd gathered, held back by two state police. The space outside the funeral home was roped off.

OPEN DAGUE CASKET

Dague's casket was opened for the first time to allow the survivors a glimpse of his body.

Grouped about Irene's grave as the casket was lowered was a small circle of close relatives, including Donnie, 5-year-old son of Irene.

Brief services at the grave were conducted by the Rev. H. O. Teagarden, spiritual adviser of Irene since her incarceration at New Castle. As the casket was lowered Donnie dropped a rose on the bier.

Secretly changing the hour of the funeral, set for this afternoon, relatives gathered at the funeral home of Cooey Bentz, in South Wheeling, at 5 a. m., where brief services were held in a dimly-lighted room. The funeral party in three cars then left through a rear door, and sped through downtown Wheeling and through dark, deserted roads to the cemetery.

It was then that a special cordon of police departed after patrolling the vicinity of the morgue for hours, prohibiting parking of automobiles for a distance of three blocks.

The three cars filed slowly into the cemetery, while Sheriff Howard Duff and two deputies of Belmont County drove newspapermen from the grounds, arresting four photographers before they had time to reach the road.

A few minutes later an ambulance, bearing the body of Irene, passed into the cemetery.

At the grave were Joseph Crawford, father of Irene; her brother, John Crawford; a sister, Mrs. Victor Schoenian, Donnie and several others.

The body of the blonde girl, electrouted Monday with Walter Glenn Dague, for the murder of State Highway Patrolman Brady Paul, arrived in Wheeling from Bellefonte last night, 24 hours after that of Dague. A large crowd was at the station when the train bearing the body arrived.

Dague was to be buried in Dallas Cemetery, near Wheeling.

PAIR WOUND PROPRIETOR OF STORE

Flee Without Trying Robbery; Thugs Stage Holdups in Other Parts of County

Shot in the chest by one of two bandits who entered his confectionery at 537 Huey street, McKeesport, Michael Berta, 49, was in a serious condition in McKeesport Hospital today, while search was being made by police and county detectives for the thugs.

Berta was shot when he turned to take a package of cigarets from a shelf. The pair fled from the store without attempting to loot the cash register.

A pedestrian who heard the shot saw the two men run from the store and escape in an automobile. Police took the victim to the hospital and began a search for the gunmen. Berta lives at 1038 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport.

Two bandits obtained between $50 and $75 in the holdup early today of the Standard Oil Company service station at 1913 West Liberty avenue. The pair escaped in an automobile after menacing Harry Bigley, the manager, with revolvers. It was the second time the station had been held up within three days.

Walter Charles, of 2803 Vera street, and James Wright, of 723 Herron avenue, both 17 and Negroes, were being held by Center Avenue Police today as suspects in the holdup of the grocery of Harry Langer, at 10 Emmett street, last night.

Wright, police said, was identified by Joseph Berkowitz, manager of the store, as one of two bandits who took $30 from him and rifled the cash register of $107. Charles was said to have a loaded revolver when arrested. The suspects were arrested, according to police, while they were sitting in an automobile in Herron avenue a short time after the robbery. The Langer store was robbed about two years ago by a bandit trio who, in a gun battle, shot and killed Precinct Detective James Hughes, a Negro.

HUNT STORE ROBBERS

Police were still searching for the three thugs who held up a chain store at 1500 Sarah street and escaped with $40 late yesterday. Charles Blockinger, the manager, and Sophie Franc, 19, of 1815 Merriman way, a clerk, were forced into a rear room by the bandits.

Turtle Creek police today were searching for a Negro who forced his way into the cab of a Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company plant locomotive at the foot of Grant avenue, Turtle Creek, and struck the engineer, Charles F. Hall, 41, of Avenue A, Forest Hills, with a club last night.

The thug was unable to steal Hall's pay envelope, which was hidden in the engineer's clothing, but took a gold watch, which he dropped in flight and which was recovered later by police.

In a battle with a bandit in Lenz avenue, Ambridge, Lee Carothers, 45, of Aliquippa, was worsted when the thug stunned his victim by striking him in the eye with the butt of a revolver early today. Carothers reported to police the thief escaped with a watch valued at $60 and $5 in cash.

An armed man who early today entered the Valentino Restaurant, 605 Grant street, and ordered M. Burnetti, manager, to hand over his money, was frightened away when G. Cappelli, owner, entered the room from the kitchen.

Police to Continue Auto Light Drive

Tagging of automobiles parked in the city without lights will be continued, Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey announced today.

More than 800 automobiles have been tagged since Sunday, when the drive opened. An automobile without lights is a menace to a motorist, Dorsey declared. The offense is punishable under the state law with a fine of $10.

SWOPE TO TALK ON JOB PLAN

Five hundred reservations have been made for a luncheon tomorrow in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, when Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, will speak on "Unemployment Insurance." The speaker will be introduced by Maurice R. Scharff, chairman of the Chamber's engineers' council.

Friday at noon Wallace Thompson, author and diplomat, will speak at a meeting to be held under the auspices of the Chamber's foreign trade council.

WOMAN HOLDS REVIVAL MEET

With spiritual messages for Pittsburghers, Freda Bonney, 30 traveling with her 7-year-old son, Hulbut, is conducting a revival this week in the Friendship Avenue M. E. Church.

Mrs. Bonney never attended a church service until she was 18. Three or four weeks after her first attendance she was converted and became a member of the Page Street Baptist Church in Lowell, Mass.

She then attended the Gordon College of Theology Missions in Boston. Since her marriage in 1921, Mrs. Bonney and her husband have been preaching in the North in winter and the South in the summer.

Hulbut has accompanied his parents on their evangelical travels since he was two-and-a-half months old, and has never attended school. His mother teaches him on the road.

Club at Emsworth To Meet Tomorrow

The Woman's Civic Club of Emsworth will meet at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Borough Hall, with Mrs. C. J. Allen, president, presiding. Miss Gertrude Engstrom, of Pittsburgh, will speak on "The Child Welfare Conference in Washington."

Circle at Avalon Plans Musical Tea

The United Circle of Avalon United Presbyterian Church will hold a musical tea in the church rooms Friday from 2 to 4 p. m., the program consisting of vocal and instrumental numbers and readings. Mrs. H. A. Pollock is president of the society.

West View Police Chief Target for Own Gun

Snatching a revolver from the holster of Chief of Police William D. Kaesmeier, of West View, a Negro fired half a dozen shots at the police chief and a dozen borough officials and others before he was captured in a chase shortly before noon today.

C. A. McClain, borough clerk; Councilman Elmer Thompson; Richard Jones, a citizen in his automobile, and others, took up the chase of the Negro, who turned repeatedly and fired at his pursurers, without hitting anyone.

Michael Ali, of 642 Center avenue, West View, telephoned the Borough Hall this morning that a suspicious looking Negro in his rear yard had brandished a long knife when Ali demanded to know the reason for his presence.

The police chief was accompanying the Negro back to Ali's home for identification. In front of the home, the Negro seized Kaesmeier and began shooting. Kaesmeier grappled with the Negro, and hurled a tear gas bomb which had little effect.

Kaesmeier, along with the others who hurried to his aid at the sound of the shooting, pursued the Negro five blocks.

The fugitive hid behind several garages at Chalfonte and Montclair avenues. The chambers of his gun were empty. He was caught and taken to the lockup, where he said he was Thaddeus Bell, of 1717 Webster avenue.

Chief Kaesmeier's aides, while armed, fired no shots, he said.

COUNCIL GRANTS PERMISSION TO SETTLE GARBAGE SUIT

SENATOR REED WRITES ABOUT PROHIBITION

Says Speakeasy, Bootlegger Will be Downed, But Not By Volstead's Methods

Prohibition, according to United States Senator David A. A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, despite all of the controversy over the issue, is merely "a by-play for the regulation of a comparatively small part of our daily affairs."

In an article in the March issue of the Atlantic Monthly on "The Future of the Republican Party," Senator Reed presents his views on prohibition, the popular primary, internal party strife and the likelihood of new parties arising.

WON'T FOLLOW VOLSTEAD

Senator Reed writes that we have exterminated the legalized open saloon and will attack the speak-easy and the bootlegger, but that our really effective efforts will not be modeled after the manner of Volstead. Because the members of each party will be divided upon the question of prohibition, neither Republicans nor Democrats will be definitely wet or dry.

In speaking of the popular primary, the Senator points out that in carrying out our "reforms," which, as a people, is one of our greatest failings, we often establish a new form that is far worse than the old.

LOWER SENATORIAL ABILITY

In his opinion this is what happened when we established the popular primary system, and it happened again when we adopted the Seventeenth Amendment and began the election of Senators by direct vote of the people. This, according to the senator, gives us a group of officials of lower average ability and nearly obliterates party discipline. More and more, unseen and unknown men in Washington are doing for us those things that we ought to be doing for ourselves, he states.

Reed declares in discussing internal party strife, that long-continued success brings delay to a party, while conversely, the party that is out of power finds greater coherence and unity in its task of criticism and opposition. However, despite this idea, the senator thinks that when new issues arise it will be the Republican party that will as in the past, advocate that solution which most exactly conforms with the common sense and patriotism of the average American, for says Senator Reed, "the party, for some reason, has the habit of being right."

WALDSCHMIDT PLANS ACTION TO QUASH

Way Cleared for $481,338 Settlement Consummation; $300,000 Cash Promised

Preparations were being made today by City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt to quash court action on the city's $1,000,000 suit against the American Reduction Company for garbage and rubbish refunds.

Council, without a dissenting vote, yesterday granted Waldschmidt permission to present a petition in court to quash the litigation. Waldschmidt and officials of the company reached an agreement last week by which the claim, based on the company's failure to turn over to the city refunds on a cost-plus system of refuse disposal, would be settled for $481,338.08.

A cash settlement of $300,000 was promised after the litigation is quashed. Payments of $15,000 each were proposed on the first of April, May, June, July and August of this year.

Completing the payments, the company is to give the city a receipt in full for money due it by terms of a contract for December 1928, amounting to $106,338.08.

In consideration of the agreement, City Controller James P. Kerr is authorized to release all money held by him due the company including May and June 1929. This aggregates $276,000, records show.

PUGILIST WINS DIVORCE SUIT

Jack Burke, 28, of 2530 Penn avenue, well-known pugilist and former sparring partner of Jack Dempsey, was granted a divorce by Judge Joseph Stadfeldt in Common Pleas Court. Under his real name, John Burkowski, he sued for a divorce from Laura Burkowski, 28, of 2510 Mulberry way, on the grounds of cruelty and indignities.

They were married June 22, 1922, after an elopement to Wellsburg, W. Va. She left him and their four children when he complained about her running around with other men, Burke testified. He said:

"She told me to get out of the house and threatened me lots of times. She said 'If you don't get out I will get some of my friends from the North Side to bump you off.' I met her in a North Side speakeasy and asked her to come home with me. The fellow she was with pushed me. Somebody hit me with a chair and I was beaten pretty badly."

Burke testified he gave her his earnings, in sums of $1,500, $1,200, $800, $700 and never less than $400. When he was sparring partner with Dempsey in Montana he sent her his earnings, $300 a week, during the five months he was there, he said, but never saw any of the money afterwards.

Mann Act Violator Gets 30-Day Term

Joseph Zacchio was sentenced in Federal Court to serve 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty of violating the Mann act. He pleaded guilty of transporting a girl from Steubenville, O., to Rochester, Pa., in August, 1927. Since his arrest recently in Cleveland, O., as a fugitive from justice, he has been in jail.

Police Lose Fight To Save Boy's Life

McKeesport police under Lieut. James Gray lost a 24-hour fight to save the life of Donald Carey, 5, of 1110 Market street, McKeesport, who died of pneumonia yesterday. The squad worked in relays with an inhalator over the boy from the time physicians reported his condition was critical Monday.

CHILD HURRYING HOME KILLED

Six-year-old Frances Miroslavich, of 301 Parker street, Etna, was dead today because she hurried home over a forbidden route, eager to show her mother her monthly report card from the first grade in All Saints Parochial School, West Etna, late yesterday.

After school Frances forgot her mother's warning to avoid crossing the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks at Kittanning and Butler streets, Etna. She was hurrying to show her mother she had a better report than she had a month before. As she ran across the tracks, she was struck by a freight train and suffered injuries which caused her death less than an hour later in Allegheny General Hospital.

The victim's sister, Mary, 12, saw the police automobile speeding through Etna. When she reached home she learned of the accident. Frances was the youngest of three children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miroslavich.

C. E. SPEAKER URGES PEACE

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, of New York, speaking to 1,000 members of the Allegheny County Christian Endeavor Union in Memorial Hall last night, declared that the change in national psychology since the World War has made maintenance of peace paramount, and the sacrificial spirit offer the greatest hope for a new future.

The meeting was presided over by Charles H. Lehmann. Others taking part were William Wise, president of the county union, and the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of Christ's Methodist Episcopal Church.

STREET REPAIRS ASKED OF CITY

Two communications, asking improvements to thoroughfares, were in Council's hands today.

Placing of red dog and widening of Allaview avenue, Twenty-eighth Ward, between the Greentree Borough line and the city is requested of the Department of Public Works in a communication from Jack Evans, of 691 Shadyhill road, Crafton P. O. The stretch is used a great deal, Evans pointed out. Buses between Pittsburgh and Greentree are forced to traverse the unimproved and muddy stretch, he said. Narrowness at several points makes it impossible for two cars to pass at one time.

F. Jackson, of Morgan street, Fifth Ward, has asked Council to pave Morgan street, between Wylie and Center avenues. He charges the thoroughfare is in deplorable shape and in bad weather is almost impassable.

POSTAL FORGER GIVEN YEAR

Henry A. Lauer, 25, of Cincinnati, pleaded guilty before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court to passing forged postal money orders in Pittsburgh and Erie, and was sentenced to one year in the Federal Industrial Reformatory at Chillicothe. The term is to run concurrently with a two-year sentence imposed in New York Federal Court on similar charges.

Judge Schoonmaker also ordered Lauer placed on probation for two years at the expiration of the Chillicothe term. Two co-defendants, Samuel F. Silberman and Claude Sweezey, pleaded guilty last week. Silberman was sentenced to four years in Atlanta at the expiration of a 12-year term imposed in New York, and Sweezey to one year at the expiration of a two-year sentence from New York.

Silberman made a plea for leniency for the other two men, saying he directed the passing of the orders after the theft of a book of blank postal money orders from a sub-postoffice in Detroit.

JASPER SPOILS HIS FUNERAL

Friends and relatives of "Jasper," the Negro member of Father Cox's bread line at Old St. Patrick's Church, who, officiating in silk-topper and cutaway did police duty to the ranks, were considerably pained and surprised when they received news of his death yesterday. So was the undertaker who, upon his appearance at St. Francis Hospital, was forced to return without his charge—for "Jasper," otherwise known as Dave Wilson, had absolutely no use for an undertaker.

When a nurse telephoned some of his friends to come in and cheer him up, a mistake was made at the other end of the wire, and preparations for a somewhat elaborate funeral were immediately under way. A minister was called; an undertaker was called; while "Jasper," complacently anticipating a cheerful afternoon chat, awaited the arrival of his friends.

Anyway, "Jasper" is not dead; he is quite alive, and hopes to be out of the hospital where he is confined with pneumonia in a short time. Meanwhile, everyone is happy though slightly amazed at the blunder they all made.

Real Estate

Plans are now being prepared for the erection of a brick and tile home with garage by S. Kendzior in Baintop street, Langfitt plan, Twenty-seventh Ward. The builder purchased the lot through the offices of R. Frank, North Side realtor.

A home on lot 48x100 feet in Calderwood avenue, Ross Township, has been deeded by Charles Dunbar to Wilbert F. Seibert, for a consideration of $6,000.

The regular weekly luncheon meeting of the office building group of the Pittsburgh Owners and Managers Association was to be held today in McCreery's dining room. The twenty-fourth annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers will be held from July 13 to 17 in Seattle. Among the subject to be discussed at the convention will be "The Production of Income."

Among the recent additions to the sales staff of the Wellington Heights Land Company are George B. Jorden, former North Side realtor; Otto Godges, Charles J. Quinn and Edward H. Fohl. A. A. Scholze, president of the company, reports that all homes erected in the Wellington Heights development have been purchased and are now occupied. Two more homes, one of old English design and another of French Colonial construction, are now nearing completion.

An improved property in Orchard avenue, Bellevue, has been sold by D. F. H. McDowell to Blanche N. H. Gillespie, for a private consideration. The lot measures 150x150 feet. Another property in Florence avenue, Bellevue Borough, on a lot 80x160 feet, has been conveyed by J. Francis Fink to Frank Good, for a private consideration.

Edith and Thomas J. McLaughlin have sold to Trill & Dunbar Company, South Hills builders, a lot 37x100 feet in Royce avenue, Mt. Lebanon.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should learn all about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS ASSAIL PLAN FOR ELECTED BOARD

AARON CERTAIN MEASURE WILL BE BEATEN

Gerwig Believes Present Members Wouldn't Serve; Freese Sees Political Aim

Additional civic leaders and members of the Pittsburgh School Board today opposed the plan of Representative James P. Rooney, of the North Side, for an elected school board, the members to receive salaries of $5,000. Under the plan submitted to the Legislature the board members would be elected for six-year terms. Members now are appointed by court and serve without pay.

The Rooney measure would cut the number of directors from 15 to 7. The bill, taking in school districts of the first class, also includes Philadelphia.

AARON UNPERTURBED

Marcus Aaron, president of the school board, in a telegram to the Sun-Telegraph from Phoenix, Ariz., said:

"At almost every session of the Legislature since the adoption of the school code of 1911 a bill to make school boards of first class districts elective has been introduced. The school boards of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh have always felt that action looking to the defeat of such legislation could safely be left to the friends of the schools in and out of the Legislature."

George W. Gerwig, a member of the board, said:

"I am not in favor of electing a school board and I do not believe the majority of members of the present board would serve if they had to run for election. I do not favor paying the members salaries. The present method is operating very satisfactorily."

DR. BAKER OPPOSED

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president, Carnegie Institute of Technology, said:

"I do not approve of making any changes in the present system of the Pittsburgh school board. I believe it is working very smoothly."

Frank E. Freese, board member:

"In case board members are elected, the school system will go back into the hands of politicians. I hope that will never happen."

Thomas Doyle, board member:

"I am quite satisfied with the board as it is."

CAB KILLS MAN IN GARAGE; 1 HELD

Victim Crushed to Death; Man Run Down on Street Dies in Pittsburgh Hospital

Two men were dead today and another was being held in connection with an accident which cost the life of a taxicab driver.

The dead men were Iwaldo Pinn, 37, of 7438 Monticello street, Yellow Cab driver, fatally crushed in the company's garage in Melwood street, February 11, and Joseph Mott, 72, of 7607 Baxter street.

Pinn was injured when a cab, said to have been driven by P. Davis, 22, of 613½ Paulson avenue, a car cleaner, crushed him against another car in the garage. He was taken to Homeopathic Hospital, where he died last night. Fellows drivers last week furnished a blood for a transfusion operation. Police, who said they had not been notified of the accident by either the hospital or company, arrested Davis and held him for the coroner.

Mott died early today in Pittsburgh Hospital from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Frankstown and Homewood avenues Saturday. Elmer Snyder, of 7206½ Kelly street, alleged driver, was arrested.

Max Levine, of 35 Davenport street, was in Montefiore Hospital today with injuries suffered last night when his produce truck was struck and overturned by a trolley car in Fifth avenue, near Robinson street.

George Lawrence, a Negro, of 1832 Rose street, driver of the truck, was alleged to have driven in the path of the trolley. The contents of the truck were scattered over the street.

Police Seek Mother Of Injured Youth

Sharpsburg police and county detectives today were seeking Mrs. Catherine Callendar, said to be residing in Oakland, to notify her that her son, Charles Callendar, 17, was in St. Francis Hospital, suffering from a bullet wound of the shoulder. The youth, who resides with his grandmother, Mrs. Henry Frate, of Middle street, Sharpsburg, was shot accidentally while at target practice Monday, according to a police report.

CHAIN STORES TO ENLARGE

The Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, celebrating the third anniversary of its entrance into the Pittsburgh district, today announced tentative plans for enlarging and improving its holdings in the tri-state district.

Mr. Burke

The cost of improvements will run well into the thousands of dollars, according to branch manager, J. S. Holdcraft. There are now, he said, 180 stores included in the holdings of the company in this district.

Besides Holdcraft, officials in the local branch include L. G. D. Dole, assistant manager; W. E. Burke, sales manager; H. J. Gerver, purchasing agent; L. G. Kyte, meat division; Robert Roy, assistant to Kyte; Carl Voet, office manager; Earl S. Young, produce buyer; George McKnight, warehouse superintendent; Robert Gibson and H. F. Bircher, grocery superintendents.

Broke 3 Windows For Fun, Arrested

Thomas Leedham, 56, no home, police say, told them he broke three store plate glass windows in the business district of Homestead today for fun. Damage was estimated at $500. He will get a hearing before Burgess John Cavanaugh in Homestead Police Court tonight.

MURDER CLUE SEARCH FAILS

Homicide detectives today were without a clue in their investigation of the murder of Silvio Lucarelli, 45, of 2612 Brownsville road, Carrick, whose body was found in the dining room adjoining his fruit store early yesterday.

Lucarelli, who worked the night shift in a second avenue copper mill, returned to his home earlier than usual because of illness. Five hours after his return, his body, a bullet through his heart, was found lying near an open safe from which $300 had been stolen. Lucarelli was believed to have been shot while struggling with a thief, who forced him to open the vault.

SIMPLE RITES FOR DREYFUSS

Simplicity marked the funeral services for Samuel W. Dreyfuss, vice president and treasurer of the Pittsburgh Pirates, held yesterday from his late residence, Morewood Gardens, with interment following in West View Cemetery.

Among those who attended were Charles A. Stoneham, president, and James J. Tierney, secretary, of the New York Giants; Harvey Traband, secretary of John A. Heydler, president of the National League; Leslie O'Connor, secretary of Commissioner K. M. Landis; Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech; Louis Bamberger, of New York, cousin of Barbey Dreyfuss, father of the deceased, and a director in the Pittsburgh Baseball Club; Wilbur Cooper, former Pirate pitcher, and Louis Propst, former president of the Columbia Club, of the South Atlantic League, a former Pirate farm.

Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, of Rodef Shalom Temple, officiated.

By SALLY MARTIN

Her Husband Can't Forget Ex-Wife and Children

Are you a young wife and do you [illegible] when papa [illegible] on the ex-[illegible] missing [illegible]?

Helen H. [illegible] did. And the fight [illegible] with Helen [illegible] sisters and papa [illegible] let him out of the [illegible]

"Dear Sally:

"I want to ask you if you think I am using the right thing. I'll tell you just what my problem is. I am 19 years old and married to a man 25. We have been married one year. He was married before, and has two children. Now this girl here told me of his first marriage until just a short time before we were married. But as he said he was so young when he married this woman and never really loved her, I thought it was just a mistake and we were married anyway.

Abused Her

"After we were married about six months he began to step out and finally he wanted to go and visit his children and wanted me to go too. I put up a fight and refused. Then, in spite of the fact that he knew I was an expectant mother and was sick a few days before he left, he beat me. Then he went on to see his children.

"My sister took me in. And here is his program. He came back and asked me. He was so sweet and my sister told me to take him back as the baby was coming and needed a father. I took him and in a month's time he was getting so smart that he would say, 'When the baby is born I shall leave.'

Then one Saturday night he dressed up to go out and told me I couldn't go. So I put on my coat and started after him, but he ran away from me. I packed up my things and the baby clothes and here I am, back with my sister again, expecting to become a mother in a few weeks. He has called me up on the phone and cried for me to take him back. I just don't answer the phone any more, but I know he will come here any day now and I don't know what to do.

Happier When Away

"Before we were married he promised never to go to see his children and his ex-wife again. But as you see he didn't keep that promise.

"Please tell me why he won't let me alone. He seems crazy about me, and yet he doesn't treat me decently. His first wife writes to him every chance she gets, although she knows he is married and that I am expecting a baby.

I know that he will come crying to me to take him back again. Should I do it for the baby's sake? I feel happier when I am away from him, because he keeps me upset when he is around.

Please tell me what you think of him . . . and me too.

"HELEN H."

What do I think of the two of you? I think you are both acting like a couple of silly crybabies.

Yes, I mean that seriously, Helen. You have neither one of you grown up yet . . . or acquired the faintest idea of what marriage means. Plainly, it has looked like a grabbing game to both of you, instead of a fair, loving partnership.

No, I'm not excusing him for "stepping out" or for beating you. But I am saying that any girl who would ask a man to never see his own children again would irritate a saint beyond endurance. Of course, he didn't keep his promise not to see them . . . Because he couldn't. And you had no right to ask him to make it in the first place. Or to feel hurt or jealous because he'd been married before. How would you like it if you divorced him to marry someone who told you that you couldn't see your baby . . . or snarled at you because you'd been married before? Wake up, Honey, and use sense!

Must Be Understanding

Shall you give him another chance if he asks for it? Why not, if you're willing to clear all this jealous rubbish out of your head, and give your marriage a square deal? Sit down and talk it all over with him, quietly and sanely, with no tantrums and no hysterics. Tell him you're sorry you tried to shut his children out of his life that you realize he has a right to see them whenever he wants to and that, if he is willing to do his part and treat you as a man should, you're willing to dig in and see what a fine comradeship and thrilling adventure you can make of marriage.

And then go to it. Forget his ex-wife. Supposing she does write to him? What of it? She has a right to tell him how his own children are getting along. She has a right to be friendly with him, and you'll be buying yourself nothing but grief and a wrecked life if you misunderstand and stir up a mess. If she had wanted him, chances are she'd still have him . . . and if he wanted her, why do you suppose he married you?

Be as sweet and understanding and charming as you know how. Give him his chance. Then, if he doesn't live up to it, it will be plenty of time to talk about breaking up home.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, February 26

This may prove to be a day of rather surprising developments, inclining by the lunar as well as solar aspect to Uranus, the orb of the sudden, precipitate and revolutionary. Abrupt and decisive changes or journeys may be expected, and these should be financially prosperous as well as bring desired promotion, preferment or favors from those in places of power and authority. But a word of caution against rash or impetuous acts and speech.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of important change of travel which should have a far-reaching effect on the fortunes and enhance the stability of some unusual projects or plans. With care as to rash and impetuous acts and word all should thrive and promote the best interests and personal welfare.

A child born on this day should be talented in original or unusual directions and should make good success in life through its adaptability and adventurous spirit.

Household Hints

Don't forget the small vase of flowers on the tea wagon. It adds a daintiness that creates an interest immediately.

When winding yarn, place two flat irons with handles, on the table as far apart as the length of skein desired and stretch the yarn over them.

There is no necessity for having cigaret stains on one's fingers, when well-soaped pumice stone and hot water will remove them so readily. Plain lemon juice will remove lighter stains, but those ugly yellow ones need more drastic treatment.

'COMING EVENTS'

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

Love's shadow in the sunshine! A rustle in the garden, a hand on the window latch, and then the shadow on the wall. A familiar cherubic shape, seen often on other's walls, but not on her own, a shape with the familiar curls, the image of wings, the rotund cheek and tummy, the suggestion of a nose, the old familiar weapon, the shadow on the wall that trumpets "Love has arrived!"

Seraphina, here pictured, watching wide eyed the phenomena of Love's arrival, feeling the portent of marvels to come, is only every pretty young girl in the sunshine of youth and first love. Eyes agog, heart a-twitter, she hums the old song beneath her breath not to frighten the shadow away:

"Some there be that shadows kiss,
Such have but a shadow's bliss.

But I will not do that. There is no shadow in the sunshine without the reality to cast it. I will have no shadow's bliss, for I will kiss none! I will kiss himself, when he appears.

Madge Unsuccessful in Attempt to Get Phil Out of the Way

Mr. Seibel's presence in the hotel dining room made it impossible for me to do anything save acquiesce in Mr. Veritzen's plans for the dinner decorations hoping that the restaurant proprietor would accept the reason for my employer's interest that I had given him—that the party was being given in honor of Mary, the fiancee of the great producer's son, and his own stage protege.

I schooled my voice to airy casualness, therefore, although I felt far more like telling my employer to take his flowers and himself to some spot as far removed from me as possible.

"That's my favorite occupation, being surprised," I said. "If I can possibly manage it, I will leave the dining room just before the cloth is laid and not return until I bring Mary down to see the finished effect of everything."

Mr. Veritzen drew his eyebrows together at my mention of Mary, but he made no oral comment, instead turned back to the table.

"But what's this?" he said as he saw the array of vases and bowls, patently the property of the hotel, which Mr. Seibel was setting out upon a table, and at which I was secretly shuddering, they were so commonplace—and inartistic.

"Haven't A. and G."—he named a leading florist's—"sent any vases to me? These will never do."

Secretly I agreed with him, although I should have striven to express my disapproval a bit more tactfully.

"Where's the telephone?" Mr. Veritzen lost no time in getting to the instrument which Mr. Seibel silently indicated, and when he had secured his connection, his tones were sulphurous, although he restrained his vocabulary, evidently in deference to my presence.

"Remember, not later than 20 minutes," he said finally as he hung up the telephone, and my heart started downward toward my toes. He gave every evidence of intending to stay in the dining room indefinitely and knowing Dicky's penchant for making unexpected decisions, I knew that I might expect him in the dining room much earlier than the hour he had named when he was telephoning me. Edith's blabbing—I deliberately used the unpleasant word—undoubtedly had put him in a mood which would cause him to resent even the presence of Philip Veritzen in the dining room. How he would react to my employer's proprietorial air concerning the decorations, I could imagine most vividly and—unpleasantly.

I must do something to get Mr. Veritzen out of the dining room, and that quickly. Luckily, Mr. Seibel left the dining room on some errand immediately following Mr. Veritzen's telephone conversation. Remembering an old adage of my childhood concerning vinegar and flies, I looked over at my employer with a friendly little smile.

"I promised you to stay away and be 'surprised' about the dinner table decorations," I said. "I wonder if you would make me a promise."

"You only have to name it," he said fervently.

"Please don't be offended," I faltered trying to register shy nervousness, "but I'm terribly nervous and fussy when I'm working with flowers. I simply have to be alone, except, of course, for some one like Purnell who can hand me things."

"And you want me to get out?" he said, smiling down at me indulgently. With wrath modified by mirth, I saw that he was fatuously imagining his own fascinating personality to be the disturbing element in my work. But I was beyond caring. My one thought was to get him away.

"Do you mind?" I asked appealingly.

"Suppose I told you that I did?" he countered softly.

"Suppose I asked you to go anyway," I retorted with pretended pertness.

"Then I have but one alternative, to obey your commands," he said, bowing impressively. "Must I go at once, or may I stay until the vases are delivered and those flowers which I sent back are replaced?"

"Couldn't I telephone you when they arrive?" I asked with ostentatious fussiness. "Then if they are all right you need not come down again. I promise faithfully to report anything wrong."

"Then I will go at once," he said. "I have to attend to the corsages on this list Lillian gave me, anyway. Have you decided yet whose flowers you are to wear?"

"Not yet," I answered, shaking my head in pretended reproof as he turned away. The swinging door from the lobby had just closed behind him when Dicky's voice sounded behind me.

"Don't you think it's about time you did that little thing?" he drawled icily.

Oilcloth Covers

The housewife who goes to the expense of putting oilcloth on the shelves of her kitchen cupboard will have just one job and expense in about 10 years, as the oilcloth may be washed whenever necessary and is as good as new. The wear is very little in the cupboard, and the same oilcloth will last for many years.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Framing the Gift Photograph.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A READER.

No. This would be taking a bit too much for granted, I think. For instance, if we have the photograph framed, it is presupposed that we think that the friend is going to keep the photograph quite prominently on "display," and we have no right, even with our closest friends, to take this privilege for granted. We should not assume so much, for we are not even sure that they enjoy having photographs, even of their closest friends, displayed. They may much prefer to keep them in a photograph portfolio. The question of what they plan to do with photographs is altogether too much a personal one for us to decide for them and we must let them plan the framing, if this is what they wish.

Filling Out the Dance Program

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are two girls who are going to a school dance. We would like your advice concerning some questions which are puzzling us.

If there are to be 12 dances, how many should we dance with our escorts?

READERS.

Dance with your partner for the evening the first dance, the last dance, the dances before and after supper—and then let your conscience be your guide. You will probably want to have one or more dances with him and he probably will want to have at least that number with you. Don't make it conspicuous that you wish to have every dance with him—if you do—and don't make him feel, either, that you want to dance with him only the minimum number allowed by good manners. It's all a question of "the medium way."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

It won't do to casually select a foundation garment. Anything in the form of a corset should be carefully fitted, else it will not serve the purpose for which it is intended. There are variations; one has only to seek the proper pattern and design. In all department stores, corsets are not only fitted, but altered to conform with the figure.

Ingrowing toe nails are the penalty for wearing shoes that are too narrow at the toes or too short. These painful ills are due to pressure. If women wore sandals as did the Roman women of old, there would be no foot ills. The gal who suffers from an ingrowing nail should wear wide sport's shoes in the house, give the poor toe relief and release for the time being.

Strenous, sweating gym work should be the lot of the plumptitudinous girl whose fat has located itself in spots. Fatted calves can be slivered down, hammy upper arms will lose their adipose paddings, hips can be deleted. When fat cells are evenly distributed, they can be disposed of by a reducing diet from which fats, sweets and starches are deleted, but when only one portion of the female form divine has taken on a bulge or two exercise is the proper caper. It not only makes the bulge flatten, but it tones muscles that have gone soft and blooey.

It is a blessing that women's ears are less conspicuous than men's. Look about you in any public conveyance and observe ears. Not one pair in a hundred are pleasing to the sight. When Mamma Nature designed them she was not in a decorative mood.

'Fes up, seeker after pulchritude, are you attending to your beauty chores? Must do, else the ugly Goblins will get you. They're simple enough. Stretching and bending exercises in the morning, five minutes of deep breathing, the warm, soapy bath. At night, a general cleanup, with an anointing of the complexion, neck, arms and hands, a vigorous brushing of the hair, five minutes of scalp massage, finishing with a finger-nail grooming and prayers for the improvement of one's disposition.

So far as dress decorations are concerned, there is a safe rule. "When in doubt, take it off." Artificial flowers snuggling on the shoulder may be a discordant note on one frock, but precisely the correct touch for another one. Too much synthetic jewelry can rob the Paris model of its charm. One must garb oneself with a critical and seeing eye. There is always the danger of being over-dressed, for, after all, simplicity and good taste are the ruling motifs, even in these days of ruffles and bouffant skirts.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Don't Spare the Hair Brush

"Beautiful hair is a woman's crowning glory." This statement is as true today as it was when first uttered many years ago.

Hair is given us, primarily, for protection. But it aids in making the face attractive. In any event it is our duty to give it proper care.

Every person should have his own comb and brush, and these should be kept clean. They should be washed frequently. It will be found that dirt collects in the neglected comb and brush and when allowed to remain, makes a suitable soil for the growth of germs.

For washing the comb and brush, soap and warm water can be used. You may use a teaspoonful of ammonia to a bowl of warm water and use this instead of soap and water. When they have been cleaned rinse the brush and comb in fresh water and place them in the sun to dry.

In selecting toilet articles you need not purchase the most expensive. But be sure that the comb has smooth, strong teeth and that the bristles of the brush are rather widely separated.

I am glad to see that the fine comb, so popular some years ago, is gradually disappearing from use. This type of comb, with its fine, sharp teeth, was more often injurious than helpful.

Brushing the hair every day for a few minutes is an important habit. It stimulates the circulation because of the massaging of the scalp and gives the hair a beautiful gloss.

If you have your hair washed away from home, be sure you go to a place that is sanitary, and that the person attending you is clean.

Shampooing the hair is for the purpose of getting all the dirt out. Soaps, such as liquid green soap, castile or tar soap, are most popular, but any good toilet soap can be used. It is important to carefully rinse the hair and see that all the soap is removed. This should be followed by thorough drying.

Certain hair is inclined to be dry. To help remedy this condition rub a little oil, as vaseline or olive oil, into the scalp. For hair that is inclined to be oily, shampooing once a week with green soap is advisable.

There are many diseases of the hair and scalp which I will discuss on another occasion.

Answers to Health Queries

MRS. D. A. Q.—Is mineral oil fattening?

A.—No, it is merely lubricating.

MISS M. L. Q.—What would cause a pain in the back, just below the shoulder blades and also around these parts? It is not continuous or severe but just a little ache every once in a while.

A.—A condition of this kind is usually caused by indigestion, although it is possible that you have a touch of neuritis or neuralgia. Be sure that your diet is suitable and that your system is clear.

Kotex protects longer

... because it absorbs away from the surface

THE secret of Kotex superiority is really very simple. It absorbs five times more than cotton and it absorbs laterally, away from the surface, leaving the protective edges dry and comfortable. That's very important.

Because both sides are equally absorbent, there's no danger of possible embarrassment by wrong adjustment. Wear it on either side with equal protection, equal comfort.

Kotex is adjustable. You can remove layers of filler as your needs change. It deodorizes thoroughly by a special process perfected in the Kotex laboratories.

And, as you know, it is so easily disposable that millions of women would not think of returning to old-fashioned methods of sanitary protection.

Paul Waner Mending.
Smallest Pirate Squad.
Pitchers Approve Ball.
Ferns Pittsburgh-Born.

BIG POISON IN TRAINING MARCH 15

ALL FEARS THAT Paul Waner might miss the greater part of the training trip and be unable to appear in the Pirate lineup at the opening of the season were dispelled today, when President Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals, wired Sam Watters, Buccaneer secretary, that he had been informed by Dr. Robert F. Golden Waner would be discharged from St. John's Hospital in St. Louis next Monday and would be able to start practice on or before March 15.

Paul Waner

Breadon, requested by the Pittsburgh club to make certain that Paul received every attention, has been receiving daily reports from Dr. Golden, who for a week has been treating the player for an infection of the left leg, resulting from a bite received while swimming at Miami, Fla. The doctor finds, according to Breadon, that since the leg was lanced the infection has cleared up to such an extent that it will not be necessary for Waner to remain in the hospital after next Monday and that he should be in training not later than March 15.

THE HOPE IS held out by Dr. Golden that it may be possible for Paul to start work even before that time. At worst, the clouting Corsair will miss only three weeks of the practice work. That's quite a handicap, it is true, but it's a break for the club after the original prospect that Waner might miss the whole trip.

It means that Paul will get a full month of training and that ought to put him him in pretty good playing shape. If he starts on March 15 he will do his first work on the final day of the squad's stay in Paso Robles and just as the exhibition games get under way. The Portland club will be met at Paso Robles on March 15, and the following day the Bucs will open their exhibition tour at Oakland.

SO THE DANGER that the Rovers might be forced to start another season weakened by the absence of one of the Waners appears to have passed. Last year it was Lloyd who was missing, and his absence during the first part of the season cost the Bucs enough games to spell the difference between fifth place and a position among the leaders.

Lloyd never appeared in the lineup until June 30 and was not in a game at its start until July 11. Paul has missed only 26 games in his five years as a Pirate—13 in 1926, one in 1927, three in 1929 and nine last season.

SCOUT BILL HINCHMAN, having only Second Baseman Bill Regan and Outfielder Augustin Dugas under his wing to form the second Pirate division starting for Paso Robles this morning, pronounced the "squad" the smallest he has ever taken to camp in all his years as leader of the second guard. The explanation is that all the western members of the club except Shortstop Tommy Thevenow, who will be picked up in Chicago tonight, reside along southern railroad lines, and this time the Pirates are taking a northern route to the coast, leaving the majority to board the train at San Francisco or to go direct to camp.

Milt Gaston

TWO OF THE first official appraisals of the new baseball come from the training camp of the Boston Red Sox at Pensacola, Fla. Milt Gaston and Danny MacFayden, a pair of the smartest pitchers in the business have been working out with the changed pill and both give it their approval.

"The new stitches do not exactly stick out," says Gaston, "yet they let you get a better hold on the ball. This will mean that you can get more stuff on it. It remains to be seen just how much less lively the ball is when it is squarely hit, but there is no doubt that it will improve the pitching."

MACFAYDEN adds his O. K. to the ball and says that if it is kept in play just a little while longer than has been the custom the pitching will be helped still further. He says the hurler who must try to put his stuff on brand new glossy baseballs is handicapped.

Gaston concurs in that, and says the only time he'd rather see a brand new ball thrown out for him to pitch is when he has made up his mind to throw a fork ball. For every other delivery, he says, a used ball is better for the pitcher.

JIM (RUBE) FERNS, former welterweight fistic champion, who died in New York Sunday, was a native of Pittsburgh, having been born in this city on January 20, 1874. His proper name is said to have been Harry Feinberg. He fought here once near the close of his career, losing a decision to Matty Matthews in 10 rounds at a show promoted by the late Billy Corcoran in Kenyon Hall on the North Side, December 22, 1902. About eight years ago he returned to this section and managed and handled a couple of Curry Hollow boxers for a short time.

FERNS WAS ONE of the ring's few champions to hold a title twice in the same class. He won the welterweight crown from Mysterious Billy Smith in 21 rounds on a foul at Buffalo on January 15, 1900; lost it to Matty Mathews in 15 rounds at Detroit on October 16, of the same year; won it back by knocking out Matthews in the tenth round of a bout in Toronto, Ontario, May 24, 1901, and lost it again to Joe Walcott in five rounds at Fort Erie, December 18, 1901.

Rube was one of the greatest fighters and hardest hitters of his time, and there were few topnotchers whom he did not meet during his professional career from 1897 to 1903. He knocked out Jack Bennett twice, fought Matty Matthews five times, and in addition to Smith and Walcott he met Frank Erne, Charley McKeever, Owen Zeigler, Bobb Dobbs, Eddie Connolly, Tom Tracey, Al Neil, Hugo Kelly, Martin Duffy and many others. Duffy stopped him in 13 rounds in his final fight in Louisville on May 28, 1903.

STILL ANOTHER AMENDMENT has been made to the bill presented by Representative Nat Jaffe, of Philadelphia, to change the Pennsylvania boxing laws, a bill that would make every bout a draw when no two officials vote alike, and that would permit contests of 15 rounds instead of 10 when championships are at stake.

Bill Ingram

The latest amendment would make it possible to dispense with decisions when deemed advisable. At first it was proposed to let the promoter decide whether or not he wished decisions, but this has been changed so that power will be vested only in the state Athletic Commission.

NAVY BILL INGRAM arrived in Berkeley yesterday to take up his duties as successor to Nibs Price on the football coach job at the University of California, and he has started by sweeping out every trace of the old regime. Not one of the former assistant coaches has been retained, not even Charley Erb, California's greatest quarterback in the days when the Bears had their wonder teams. Ingram has named as his new assistants Allison, who has been coaching at Wisconsin, and Wickhorst, who has been an aide at Iowa. Knute Rockne, in a talk to 4,000 California students the other day, told them Ingram was certain to be a success as their new coach. He referred to Ingram as a "prince of the blood, a gentleman and a coach knowing football from A to Z."

AMBRIDGE HIGH, NEW CASTLE IN OPENER

Probable Lineup

Ambridge		New Castle
Zwatykanich	F	J. Uram

Michaelosen	G	Reiber

By JESS CARVER.

Scholastic basketball enthusiasm, primed to a high pitch last night as Homestead and Duquesne battled in the Pitt Stadium to settle the matter of 1931 supremacy in Section VII, will be fired anew tonight as the annual W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tournament gets under way, with New Castle, of Section III, and Ambridge, of Section II, repeaters from last year's event, clashing in the inaugural title.

Moe Rubenstein

The Homestead-Duquesne game last night provided a very fitting and an extremely thrilling prelude to the league tourney, and as a result of the struggle, Duquesne, runners-up to New Kensington last year, will again represent the section, and will meet Coraopolis, of Section IX, on March 6.

Two fine quintets will clash tonight as the Bridgers and Castleites meet. New Castle has won 17 games to date without suffering a defeat, and numbers among its victims South High, of Youngstown; Wilkinsburg, Westinghouse, Butler and Ellwood City. Last year, New Castle gained the third round, but was defeated by Duquesne when it attempted to crash through to the finals.

AMBRIDGE STRONG

Ambridge has taken 16 out of 17 games, wound up its league play without a defeat and despite the fact that four regulars were lost from last year's club, has gained formidable rating.

Coach Rubenstein is undecided as to his starting lineup for tonight. Zwatykanich, Hineman or Matzie are probably forward starters. Capt. Yoos is the likely bet for the center post and Eddie Gutowski, Karakitsos or Michelosen will be available for guard duty.

New Castle's lineup will be as per usual, J. Uram and Shaffer will go at the forwards; Lasky, a neat performer, at center, and N. Uram and Reiber at the guards.

DUQUESNE WINS

They packed 'em in at the Stadium last night for the Duquesne-Homestead affair, which was a play-off game. The rivals defeated each other in the regular season, and last night, Duquesne, fast passing and fleet of foot, swept into a commanding lead in the third period to win out by a score of 28 to 25.

The game was a wild and wooly affair from the first toss-up. At the end of the first period, Duquesne led by 8 to 7. At the half, a foul point by Durik enabled the defending champs to maintain a one-point advantage at 14-13.

Homestead's defense fell fast asleep in the third period, which saw Duquesne pile up eight points to Homestead's two, Myles Zelznick, at forward, and Alex Alexandrovich, a guard, each broke through the Steel Workers' lines for two goals.

Homestead challenged splendidly in the final period, and managed to slice the nine-point Duquesne margin to a single marker, but a substitute, Radvansky, injected into the game in the stead of Karpowich, cut under the hoop for a score that iced the game for the Red and White.

Gene Sullivan, Homestead forward, led his team's fruitless attack with six field goals, and was high scorer for the evening. He threw three in each half.

The City League title champion is very neatly scrambled today, with three ties for first place existent in both sections. In Section I, South, Schenley and Westinghouse are all even with nine games won and two lost apiece and in Section II, Allegheny, Perry and South Hills have each won eight and lost three.

PERRY VICTOR

Yesterday, Perry defeated Allegheny, 42-40, and effected the three-way deadlock in the second division. As all three of the leaders appear certain to win their closing games Friday, a three-team playoff will be necessary.

In Section I, however, the situation will be somewhat cleared up Friday as Schenley and South battle. The winner will have to

BUCS' SECOND SQUAD OFF

The smallest squad of Pirate players ever to leave Pittsburgh for a training camp hopped off from Union Station at 9:50 this morning with Scout Bill Hinchman in command.

Second Baseman Regan, of Oakland, recently purchased from the Boston Red Sox, and Outfielder Augustin Dugas, of Taftville, Conn., were the only other members of the party. They will be joined in Chicago by Shortstop Tommy Thevenow, his home being in Madison, Ind.

Outfielder Adam Comorosky was expected to pull out with the squad today, but he had to go under the care of a physician upon his arrival from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., yesterday for a rash that has broken out on his body as a result of something he ate recently. He has a conference slated for late today with regard to signing for the new season.

The advance squad of Corsairs left Thursday of last week and arrived in camp last Sunday. Today's group, which will be augmented at San Francisco, is due in Paso Robles Saturday afternoon. Many of the players who reside in the West will go direct to the camp.

Wagner is Honored By Paterson Fans

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 25.—John (Honus) Wagner came back to the city in which he received his start in professional baseball last night and was feted by 250 of this community's sporting fans, a goodly portion of whom remembered the great Pittsburgh star when he played for the former Paterson Atlantic League Club.

Wagner, after expressing his thanks for the $500 radio his admirers gave him, went into a discourse on baseball. In his talk he stated that he rated John McGraw the greatest strategist of all time, even above Connie Mack.

PIRATE SQUAD TO GET LONG PRACTICE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 25.—The impressive Pirate squad was all set again today for a big workout on top of the idleness of yesterday. Manager Jewel Ens stated this morning that, in the event of a continuance of the wonderful weather on tap since the vanguard landed, he would send his athletes to a long drill. The session will get under way shortly after 10 o'clock and there will be no letup in the activities until high noon has passed.

DREYFUSS HONORED

The big ball park was entirely deserted yesterday, out of respect to Sam Dreyfuss, whose funeral service took place in Pittsburgh. Between the hours of 2 and 3 p. m. (Pittsburgh time), the business houses of the town were closed and the flag in the public square was at half-mast. The action of the merchants in closing their shops was a deep mark of respect when one considers that the business men had just gone through two days of inactivity, Washington's Birthday here found the shops closed.

The health and general condition of the Pirate squad is excellent. Pitcher Steve Swetonic is in Los Angeles, whither he journeyed to have his arm treated, but aside from Steve, there is no hospital list. The club doctors are working on a chart system this year, the players to be checked up regularly.

The first squad is a pretentious array, what with more than half a dozen infielders and outfielders, including Capt. Pie Traynor on the ground. Pie came here with his bride, and it is only telling the truth to write that the third-

CUBS' ENTIRE SQUAD OUT

AVALON, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Practice for the Chicago Cubs was put on a production basis today, with the entire squad assembled and ready for work. The members of the second squad, infielders and outfielders, reached Catalina Island yesterday, but were not ordered to work by Manager Hornsby, who let them watch the Gabby Hartnetts beat the Pat Malones, 6 to 2, in a short contest.

Camp Flashes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—It appears the New York Yankees will have this year not only the tallest pitcher in the majors, but the one with the greatest gross tonnage as well. Jim Weaver, from Baltimore, stands 6 feet 7 inches with or without sox, while Walter Brown, former Cleveland pitcher, sends the weight indicator around to 235 pounds.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(AP.)—Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Robins, has so many pitchers running around here that they get under his feet, but he can't find his catchers. Paul Richards, a rookie, is the only receiver on hand. Al Lopez is fighting off an attack of influenza at Tampa; Ernest Lombardi is supposed to be waiting for the Oakland club to give him a slice of the money Brooklyn paid for him, and no one knows what's happened to Val Picinich.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP.)—Chief Bender, hired by the New York Giants especially to find out what's the matter with Roy Parmalee, young right hander, thinks he has found the answer.

"It's his feet," says the wily Chief. "If I can teach him how to use them correctly he soon will overcome his lack of control."

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—Johnny Heving, new catcher with the champion Philadelphia Athletics, is getting plenty of pre-season practice. With Mickey Cochrane not yet working out, because of a recent illness, Heving more than has his hands full working with the 15 pitchers now in camp. He came to the A's from the Boston Red Sox.

BRADENTON, Fla.—(AP.)—Rumors afloat in the Cardinals' training camp here have it that Charles (Chick) Hafey, slugging outfielder from California, is the only holdout member of the 1930 National League champions.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—One long drill a day, from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., with a brief time out for lunch, will be the daily program of the Browns while in training camp here. Manager Bill Killefer told the players he would adhere strictly to the program until the exhibition games start on March 8.

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP.)—Wes Ferrell, erstwhile holdout, is in camp with the Cleveland Indians, rid of the "worst pair of tonsils in North Carolina, bar none," and predicting great things on the mound this summer. The arrival of the young pitching ace left only Catcher Luke Sewell missing, and he was due in today.

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP.)—The veteran side-wheeler, Eppa Rixey, who will begin his twentieth year in major league baseball, was the only Cincinnati Red pitcher absent today for the batterymen's workout. The lefthander was expected soon, however, as was Manager Dan Howley, who planned to bring with him a young righthanded pitcher, Ken Gordy, of the University of Florida.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(AP.)—Jean Dubuc, former star hurler and now Tiger coach, believes that the Detroit American League team will be "at least 20 per cent better this year than the aggregation which finished in fifth place in 1930. A more finished pitching staff and more punch in the outfield, Dubuc gives as reasons for his confidence in the team.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP.)—Chicago White Sox batterymen were hoping that Manager Donie Bush would let them use bats today, instead of restricting their activities to tossing the ball around and chasing flies. Bush has decreed that the only bat shall be a fungo club, to be used by himself, Coach Barney Kelly or Pat Page, former Indiana University football coach, who is visiting the training camp.

BIG CLUBS TO PLAY IN C. & I. LEAGUE

LOCAL SANDLOT CIRCUIT IS REORGANIZED

By TOM BIRKS

A banner meeting of the Commercial and Industrial League was held last night, with the championship of two rival Dick Merkel and Bob Fitzsimmons representing Rolling Mills, San Cirac Joseph Horne, Steele, Dravo Contracting, Markets, Carrier, Steel, Rex Studios and Whiteman Beer Merkel in the ground work of what should be the finest C. & I. loop ever formed was finished.

Joseph Horne will as in other seasons play all of their games abroad in the first half, and the second half of the season will find all teams visiting delightful Camp Horne twice. This is the best part of the C. & I. schedule. A. H. Burchfield, the executive of the Penn avenue store, welcomes the teams down to the Ohio River camp, and the rental treasurer can be depended upon to provide a good host. Applications for the remaining two berths should be sent to President Merkel or to Secretary Paul Wetham at Wagner's.

With 18 managers signifying their intention of being on hand Honus Wagner, who runs the Monongahela Valley Baseball League, meet this evening at the Hotel Main at Monongahela at 7:30.

Secretary Negrin has been getting a line on the clubs with baseball ambitions and when the roll is called the following are expected to be on hand: Gallatin, Monongahela Brewery, Finleyville, Donora, Black Diamond, Manown, New Eagle, Fayette City, Dunlevy, Avonmore, Vesta, Young, Library, Bentleyville, Belle Vernon, Charleroi, Elizabeth, Russia and the Yankees.

MANAGERS END CONFAB HERE

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The Ohio Managers of America bring their annual convention being held in the William Penn Hotel to a close here today. An open forum and the election of officers will make the most important of today's business program, which opened this morning at 10 o'clock.

Tom Carey

Yesterday the outstanding feature of the day's work, aside from the routine business of hearing reports of committeemen and officers, was the address made by Clarence Budd, Oreno, president of the Pittsburgh Field Club. His snappy, interesting talk awakened a keen interest in the hearts of the delegates in attendance. The report of the national secretary, Henry B. Dutton of Boston, also was very fine.

Overflow Crowd Attends Benefit

An overflow crowd turned out for the amateur boxing show for the needy of the Thirteenth Ward, held in the Moose Temple last night, as a result of which it was announced today another show will be held as soon as possible to take care of those who were turned away after having purchased tickets. The summary of bouts:

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN, The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

My duty to Tex Rickard, of course, was to beat the publicity tomtoms.

Far back in my head I recalled that there had been a sensational road meeting between Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons when the two were in training at Carson City, Nev., for the world heavyweight title.

Jim Corbett.

Bill Naughton and Homer Davenport, the cartoonist, cooked it up. Usually when Bob and Jim were doing their road work, they did not pass each other. Their camps were not far removed, but Jim and Bob purposely avoided each other.

One morning Corbett and his friend, William Lawlor, afterward a famous San Francisco superior court judge, were walking along an unused road. Back of them, in a tiny buggy, trailed Naughton and Davenport.

By a "strange coincidence," Fitzsimmons, with Dan Hickey and Jack Stelzner, his sparring partner, were using the same road. Naughton had put it over. It was a good story in the making. He had contrived to have the two traverse that patch.

A Great Dane, the canine playfellow of the Fitzsimmons camp, came bounding up to Corbett and the young lawyer and made a fearful fuss. Fitzsimmons kept approaching and, as Bob neared the scrapping young Lawlor feared for his reputation if there should be an impromptu row.

TEX PUTS FOOT DOWN

As Fitz stopped to eye his unexpected enemy, Corbett said with a grin:

"Better bring that purp into the ring with you on Wednesday. You'll need him."

Fitzsimmons glared and Corbett obeyed his mood. Some historians of the time say that it was Bob who held out a welcome paw. I have it from Corbett's own lips that for the sake of his friend, he stuck out the messenger of peace. It was Fitzsimmons who flared up.

"You've talked about me, Corbett," he said. "I won't shake until I've whipped you over there in that ring," at the same time sweeping a big freckled fist in the general direction of the open-air arena.

Naughton made a tremendous story out of the incident. It certainly was a scoop, and Davenport embellished it with his matchless pen and ink sketches.

Well, I remembered the thrill that story occasioned and I went to Tex and told him that I was going to plot one like it. I was going to have little Dempsey meet big Jess on the road if it ever was possible to catch Jess in that important task. I'd have Dempsey take a sock at Jess. I thought Tex would have a fit. I never knew him to get so riled.

WILLARD POOR "COPY"

"Ike Dorgan don't you do any thing like that. I don't want any brawls in your stories. I'm against that barroom stuff. No fights on the road. If you've got to have a story, you get Dempsey to make a nice social call on Jess. Have Dempsey ask Willard all about his wife and kids. Make it pleasant-like. They eat up that human touch stuff. But don't you go pulling any of those Corbett and Fitzsimmons road rows. I won't stand for it. I'm trying to lift boxing out of the gutter. Corbett and Fitz and all those fellers always were going around pulling other fellow's noses or spitting in somebody's eye. I don't want that. I want nice stories in the papers and nice people will read them. Then nice people will come to see my shows."

And one more brilliant publicity idea bit the Toledo dust. I had to fall back on Dempsey for my best shots. He kept knocking out one sparring partner after another and we got reams of space from this angle. Willard was a poor copy-maker—always was.

I had the devil's own time trying to coax Jess to come down to the Secor Hotel each day at noon to talk to the newspaper boys. None of them ever had grown to like Jess. It was something that couldn't be done. I never heard Willard tell a story about himself, and, if the writers got any impression at all, it was through simply looking at the Man Mountain.

KEARNS FEEDS BALLYHOO

Dempsey always was available, though I must say that Jimmy DeForest kept him pretty well hidden. It was Jack Kearns who fronted beautifully for Dempsey. Jack knew the racket and he could steam up more real good yarns than any man I ever met around a fighter.

Dempsey takes a party for the scribes out at his training camp that was a bit. It was a spaghetti blowout. Jack had his own chef and this fellow could make the toothsome spaghetti stand right up and shout.

At that dinner, a punch was served made by a Middle West character named "Get Rich Quick" Ryan. He mixed the blend of the world and the result was a punch that made all of the hard corpers in the universe turn to red plush. What a drink. It was such a wonderful mixture, with its brandy, champagne and rum body and flavored as it was with raw cucumber rinds, that Hype Igoe sent the recipe to the New York World and it was printed in a box on the front page. As a gem of the mixologist's art it probably rests in the archives of many a true boulevardier.

Strangely enough, everybody missed Dempsey at this party of his own giving. Where was he? Even as they were whispering about the strange absence of the man who would be champion there came an earthly noise from outside the big open porch where the party was being tossed.

DEMPSEY AND HIS "GANG"

MIAMI MUTUELS

DUKES OPPOSE MOUNTAINEERS ABROAD

Duquesne and West Virginia and Geneva and Grove City present the top-notch tri-state district basketball games tonight. The card consists of four games in all, with Wash-Jeff tackling Wittenberg in Ohio and Bethany winding up its invasion of the Western Pennsylvania area with a contest at Meadville with Allegheny.

Carnegie may have to stack up against the Panthers Friday night minus the services of Bob Smith, the high scoring forward gent. Bobby got his leg all jammed up in the game with St. John's and came home on a cane.

This afternoon the Tech and Pitt varsity splashers will swap splashes in a dual swimming meet in the Carnegie pool. The affair will get under way at 4:30. Admission by card only, any card.

The Tipoff

Rumor hath it, as rumor usually does, that Ewald Zehfuss, the Poisonous Paul of the Pitt basketball teams of '28, '29 and '30, will become freshmen coach next year, succeeding Georgie Kowalllis, who will find his medical studies next year too arduerous to permit his continuing as frosh mentor.

The rumor really is more than a rumor when questioned on the matter, Zehfuss, who by the way is also studying medicine, he can talk for about the weather, which means that the deal is firm.

Joe (Showboat) Ware, Westinghouse High School's football and basketball star, may enter Geneva College next year. The Covenanters would like to have the Negro star, and Showboat himself is reported as being very favorable toward matriculating at the Coventer institution.

Another Negro scholastic star from the city league, Banks of South Hills, is planning to attend Ohio State next fall. Banks starred on last year's South Hills cage team as a sophomore.

New Kensington, W. P. I. A. L. champions last year, was the best "money team" in the tournament. The Iron Heels never looked overly impressive, but they had the stuff to come through, usually with eleventh hour spurts. This year the team, while unbeaten for its section, has taken three or four lickings, but is being held in high regard by other cities in the annual tournament.

Bill Campbell had a swellish strategy board on hand for last night's game in the stadium with Duquesne on the Homestead bench were Chick Davies, the two O'Donovans, Roy and Bibe Hurlic, Stoner and Johnny Cherepon Salerno. And you'll lost the ball game—CARRIE.

Gentlemen:

I am very glad to endorse your advertising campaign which so effectively cooperates with many non-commercial organizations seeking to fight disease.

Your advertisements warn against the danger to health in the "Spit-tipping" method of cigar manufacture and the affront to decency in such methods. You are thus helping awaken the public to the ever existent danger in spitting wherever this nuisance may occur.

Public health organizations have for years felt the need of such cooperation a commercial institutions may give in stressing the danger to health in such practices.

If publication of this letter will be of any use to you please be assured of my full permission to so use it over my signature.

Very truly yours,
Earl Musselman
Health Commissioner

PERSHING WON UNDERSTANDING ON TROOP MOVEMENTS

FOCH BROUGHT TO REALIZE NEEDS

Allied 'Minds' Centered On Using America as Mere Reservoir to Fill Ranks

"C. It is agreed that if available tonnage in either month allows the transportation of a larger number of men than 250,000, the excess tonnage will be employed in the transportation of combat troops as defined above.

"D. We recognize that the combatant troops to be dispatched in July may have to include troops with insufficient training, but we consider the present emergency to justify a temporary and exceptional departure by the United States from sound principles of training, especially as a similar course is being followed by France and Great Britain.

(Signed) "FOCH,
"MILNER,
"PERSHING."

Express Appreciation

While they declared there was great danger of the war being lost unless the numerical inferiority of the Allies could soon be remedied by the addition of American troops, their statement did not convey the extreme apprehension that prevailed. The cable said:

"The Prime Ministers of France, Italy and Great Britain desire to send the following message to the President of the United States:

"We desire to express our warmest thanks to President Wilson for the remarkable promptness with which American aid, in excess of what at one time seemed practicable, has been rendered to the Allies during the past month to meet a great emergency.

"The crisis, however, still continues. Gen. Foch has presented to us a statement of the utmost gravity, which points out that the numerical superiority of the enemy in France is very heavy, and that, as there is no possibility of the British and French increasing the number of their divisions (on the contrary, they are put to extreme straits to keep them up) there is a great danger of the war being lost unless the numerical inferiority of the Allies can be remedied as rapidly as possible by the advent of American troops.

"He therefore urges with the utmost insistence that the maximum number of infantry and machine gunners, in which respect the shortage of men on the side of the Allies is most marked, should continue to be shipped from America in June and July to avert the immediate danger of an Allied defeat in the present campaign owing to the Allied reserves being exhausted before those of the enemy.

Explains Needs

"In addition to this, and looking to the future, he represents that it is impossible to foresee ultimate victory in the war unless America is able to provide such an army as will enable the Allies ultimately to establish numerical superiority.

"He places the total American force required for this at no less than 100 divisions, and urges the continuous raising of fresh American levies, which, in his opinion, should not be less than 300,000 a month, with a view to establishing a total American force of 100 divisions at as early a date as this can possibly be done.

"We are satisfied that Gen. Foch, who is conducting the present campaign with consummate ability, and on whose military judgment we continue to place the most absolute reliance, is not overestimating the needs, and we feel confident that the government of the United States will do everything that can be done, both to meet the needs of the immediate situation and to proceed with the continuous raising of fresh levies, calculated to provide, as soon as possible, the numerical superiority which the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies regards as essential to ultimate victory."

"(Signed) CLEMENCEAU,
D. LLOYD GEORGE,
ORLANDO."

What a difference it would have made if the Allies had seen this a year earlier and had given us assistance in shipping. The situation was pretty well understood the preceding August. The commanders in chief and the chiefs of staff, it will be recalled, concluded that their dependence was upon America.

The governments understood then that the constitution of our army in France depended upon sea transportation, but they took no steps then to provide it.

Lacked Foresight

On the contrary their minds were centered on using America as a reservoir from which men could be drawn to serve under an alien flag. They failed to understand the psychology of the American people. They failed to foresee the results.

They failed to do the only thing that good judgment dictated, and that was, assist by all possible means the organization of a powerful American Army and transport it to France at the earliest possible moment.

It could not be questioned that the situation was decidedly serious, even though the German advance in the Marne salient had been held up for the time. The eight French divisions which had occupied that front against the German attack had lost a large percentage of their personnel and practically all their material.

Rested divisions had been sent to replace them, but the burden of aiding the British during the preceding two months had fallen heavily upon the French, and their man power was at low ebb.

My diary notes the following:

"Chaumont, Thursday, June 6, 1918. Lord Milner, who lunched with me Monday, thinks the British were let down because Foch has requested five of our divisions from the British front for service with the French.

"While en route here Tuesday with McAndrew and Boyd, visited 2d Division, talked with Gen. Harbord Brigade Commanders Harbord and Lewis, and also visited Dickman's 3d Division. Both divisions in excellent morale.

"Received letter of appreciation from Petain for sending divisions to French front. War Department requested to rush construction of tanks and 3,000 additional Liberty engines."

The 2d and 3d Divisions, facing the Germans near Chateau Thierry, had made their places in line secure, giving heart to the French, who were trying to stabilize their own positions around the newly formed salient.

We shall hear more of these two divisions later. Although fully taken for granted by all of us, it was none the less gratifying to see these divisions, for the first time in the line, acquit themselves so well.

Sorry for Refugees

En route to Chaumont, we motored eastward through Montmirail, passing long columns of French refugees fleeing from their homes, many on foot, men and women with bundles on their backs, leading the smaller children, driving their stock before them and hauling in various types of conveyance the few remaining worldly goods they were able to take with them.

Almost indescribable were many similar scenes as reported by our troops as they came up to reenforce the retiring French.

It seemed to me then that if this picture of civilization engaged in the persecution of innocent and unarmed noncombatants, mostly women and children, could be brought home to all peoples, reason would be forced upon rulers and governments where too often their passions and ambitions assume control.

Further notes from my diary:

"Paris, Sunday, June 9, 1918. The 2d Division is engaged in severe fighting in Belleau Wood. Gen. Foch desires to leave five of our divisions with the British for the present.

"Col. Groome, head of remount service, lunched with us yesterday; also Mr. Otto Kahn, who referred to my position as embracing duties of the secretary of war, treasury and state combined. Gen. Petain has agreed to organization of American Army Corps near Chateau Thierry.

Mr. Kahn

"Arrived Paris last night; saw M. Clemenceau this morning. He spoke of new threat on Paris by the German attack on Montdiddier-Noyon front. Went to Bombon for conference with Gen. Foch. French communique highly compliments Americans in Chateau Thierry region."

Paris in Turmoil

With reference to Mr. Kahn's remarks, it might be said my position in France required the consideration of many questions of international importance, but as they all, either directly or indirectly, affected the formation, maintenance and use of our army in co-operation with the Allied armies, it did not seem to me that the decisions involved could be made by any authority in France not under my control.

Moreover, I could always count on the loyal aid of Ambassador Sharp when anything requiring his intervention came up, which was frequently the case. He was especially helpful in the procurement of supplies outside of Allied countries, as in Spain and Switzerland.

Gen. Bliss

Gen. Bliss, our military representative on the Supreme War Council, sat in a civil capacity also in that he transmitted to Washington those questions of policy that required the President's approval.

As a result of the German successes against the French, something akin to a panic prevailed in Paris. Probably a million people left during the spring, and there was grave apprehension among the officials lest the city be taken. Plans were made to remove the government to Bordeaux, and we ourselves, were prepared to move our offices.

At the request of Gen. Bliss, we placed the necessary trucks at his disposal for the removal, in case of necessity, of his offices and those of his British colleagues. It was a matter of considerable satisfaction to feel that our base ports, lines of communication and supply areas were outside of the zone of the British armies and south of Paris, and hence comparatively safe.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Habit forges strong and enduring chains, and force of habit probably will compel the Yellow Jackets to select second place, rather than a title play-off berth, as a target at which to shoot when they meet the Windsor Bulldogs in an International League hockey game at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night.

When the 1930-31 campaign was about two weeks old the Jackets faced an uphill climb to get out of the league cellar. Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the locals, rushed in replacements so rapidly that within three weeks the Jackets had passed Syracuse, and were gunning for fifth place, then held by London.

While the Schooley icemen were closing in on the fifth notch London put on a spurt, and Detroit fell into a slump, and when the locals finally got there it was the Olympics who were forced down as the Jackets rushed onward.

CLIMBING A MANIA

The locals' climb from fifth to third place, at the expense of London and Cleveland, is an achievement so recent that it requires no reviewing. It is sufficient to say that it was while taking these last hurdles that advancing became a mania rather than a habit with the Pittsburgh puckmen.

At one time a play-off berth was the Jackets' ultimate goal, but now that they find a place in the championship series within easy reach they can't help coveting Windsor's runner-up spot. Yea, Edgar, strong and enduring are the chains forged by habit.

Tomorrow's game will mark the Bulldogs' final appearance of the season here. Past Pittsburgh-Windsor frays at the Garden have been fast and furious battles. Tomorrow's joust is likely to be even hotter than usual, for never before this season has the Bulldogs' play-off berth been threatened. A Pittsburgh victory will give Cleveland and London, as well as the Jackets, a chance to close in on second place, and Windsor is faced with the painful prospect of being passed by three teams advancing almost abreast.

Johnson's Condition Is Little Changed

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Little change in the condition of Ban Johnson, former head of the American League, was found by his physician today. The illness of the former baseball czar continued serious this morning.

BOWLERS IN MARATHON

Arrangements have been completed for a marathon duckpin engagement between the stars of the Carnegie Steel League and those of the Men's Bible Class of the Dormont M. E. Sunday school, on the Hollywood alleys, Dormont, Tuesday evening, March 10. Present plans call for 20 men from each league, three games to be bowled and total pins to count.

WALKER, STRIBLING AWAIT GONG

MIAMI, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—After an unexpected day of rest, Mickey Walker and Johnny Risko today awaited the gong for their battle tonight in Madison Square Garden Stadium. Rain caused Promoter Pa Stribling to postpone the fight last evening until tonight.

Stribling said the extra day probably would add to the attendance and he hoped for a gate in excess of $50,000.

MUSKIES TRIP WASH.-JEFF. PASSERS

Muskingum—28.		Wash-Jeff—22.
Anderson	F	Joy
Mariner	F	Smith
Himes	C	Hamilton
Russell	G	McNeil
Zeyler	G	Johnson

W. P. I. A. L. SERIES OPENS

Titles were gained in two other divisions of the W. P. I. A. L. as a result of last night's game. In Section IV, New Brighton defeated Beaver Falls, 20-14; Scottdale won over Mt. Pleasant, 32 to 10, to take down the Section X gonfalon.

Duquesne—28.		Homestead—28.
Servick	F	Sullivan
Zeiznick	F	Stefura
Karpowich	C	Brown
Durik	G	Miller
Alexandrovich	G	Kalupson

Score by periods:

Duquesne	5	5	8	6—28
Homestead	7	8	2	10—25

Substitutes—Duquesne: Radvansky, Homestead—Sliders. Field goals—Servick 2, Zeiznick 3, Durik 3, Alexandrovich 2, Radvansky, Sullivan 6, Stefura, Brown, Kalupson. Fouls—Zeiznick, 4 out of 4; Durik, 2 out of 2; Karpowich, 0 out of 1; Alexandrovich, 0 out of 1; Radvansky, 0 out of 1; Sullivan, 0 out of 2; Stefura, 1 out of 2; Brown, 4 out of 5; Miller, 1 out of 3; Sliders, 1 out of 3. Team fouls—Duquesne, 6 out of 8; Homestead, 7 out of 15. Time of periods—8 minutes. Referee—Max Hammum. Umpire—Herklotz.

DATTO TO BOX BATTALINO FOR TITLE

Sports Editor.

The latest news on the local fistic rialto is that Johnny Datto, who recently has won two sensational battles from Jackie Rodgers in the Motor Square ring, is going to box the now managerless Jackie again in that spot, probably one week from next Monday night, and that the Filipino also is matched with Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, for a title bout in Hartford, Conn., March 26.

Johnny Datto

Now, fighting Battalino for his championship in the Battler's home state may not be the most desirable sort of a proposition, for it has been said that the Battler is so well protected there that he can't lose. Anyway, all we have to do here is to chronicle the news, which is that the Datto man is getting a crack at the title, and probably will box Rodgers again here before he steps out against the king of his division.

Between Rounds

Apples Meyers has completed the card for his next show in the Modse Temple, Friday night, with the closing of the return bout between Harry Fine, of the Hill, and Eddie Helmer, of Clairton, at his second six-rounder. The latter hooted down a decision for Fine over Helmer last Friday night, although it was patent that Fine had earned the award, despite the fact he had incurred three of the fans with his rough and ready fighting. George Panka boxes Umberto Atce, the Porto Rican heavyweight, in the 10-round windup. Mickey Fedor, of Donora, is in with Al Becker, of Sharpsden, in the semi-final, and Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, and Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, open the bill.

The Motor Square Garden card for next Tuesday night also is complete. Midget Wolgast, the flyweight champion, boxes Willie Davies, of Charleroi, in a non-title match in the 10-round windup and Tiger Joe Randall of the East End, and Jimmy McGrath, of Wheeling, are paired for the eight-round semi-final, taking the place of one planned between Tiger Joe West and Ted Ross. Jack Tracey, North Side Negro middleweight, meets Billy Hangan, of Braddock, and formerly of Clearfield, Pa., in the second bout, and Steve Senich, of Homestead, and Sammy Burns, of the Hill, are in the first event.

Rumor has it that George Pirrung, the giant amateur heavyweight, of Homestead, plans to turn professional shortly. He meets Sparky Ewait in a return bout in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tomorrow night.

Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., and Nick Popicz, of Wheeling, box the main bout of a show in Wheeling, W. Va., next Monday night. Eddie Ruckman faces Tony Dattoli, Hahs Roberts meets Paul Oger and Johnny Dempko engages Sammy Madison in the preliminaries.

Tommy Crawley, of the South Side, will meet Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion of the world, in a return bout at Syracuse one week from tonight.

Mose Butch, southpaw bantamweight, of Oakland, wants to box Jimmy Thomas or any of the other local little fellows.

Al Fay, Charleroi heavyweight under the management of Jack Kearns, is in shape again and a match is in the making for him at Motor Square Garden in the near future.

When the Johnny Risko-Mickey Walker bout, postponed from last night to tonight at Miami, Fla., is disposed of, Promoter Pa Stribling will get the arena ready for a wrestling show arranged for Friday night, with Jim Londos grappling with the aged Stanislaus Zbyszko in the main bout.

The Tony Canzoneri-Joey Kaufman nontitle match in Jersey City tonight will mark the first appearance of a lightweight champion in that city since the Benny Leonard-Lew Tendler meeting in Tex Rickard's Boyle's Thirty Acres arena there 10 years ago. Joe Costa boxes Benny Brostoff and Johnny Toye meets Benny Carter in other 10-rounders.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, looks for his first really profitable show of the season when he pits Jimmy Redmont, of Braddock, against Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. Y., in his Palisades arena tomorrow night. He says it has been two years since he has had anywhere like the advance sale this billing has drawn and that the postponement of the card from last week has added to its drawing powers.

Promoters and matchmakers of the Pittsburgh district will meet in the office of the boxing commission in the Koppers building today in the first of a series of conferences, others of which will bring in the referees and judges, managers and seconds and doctors and deputies.

Fight Results

At St. Petersburg, Fla.—Kid Dixie defeated Jose Estrada, 10 rounds.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(AP.)—Penn State had the better of Bucknell in a free-scoring basketball game here last night and emerged on the long end of a 56-to-24 score.

GREENVILLE, Pa.—(AP.)—Bethany made a strong finish here last night to defeat Thiel, 34 to 28. Rush and Telfair, Bison stalwarts, being the factors that turned the tide.

NEW YORK.—(AP.)—Willie Hoppe, of New York, went into a tie for the lead in the International 18.2 balkline billiards tournament last night by defeating Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan, 400 to 143 in eight innings. Welker Cochran, of Hollywood defeated Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, 400 to 148, in 14 innings.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—Virginia Van Wie was the only player to break 80 yesterday in the qualifying round of the South Atlantic golf tournament. Her 39-40—79, in a drizzling rain, led by a single stroke the cards posted by Helen Hicks, Hewlett, L. I., and Peggy Wattles, Buffalo. Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, qualified to play Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago, in the first round today.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Whitty Cox, Brooklyn, led the field for the first 18 holes of the Florida open golf tournament here yesterday. He played the waterlogged course in 36-35—71, one under perfect figures, a stroke ahead of his playing mate, George Christ, Rochester, who had a 38-37—72.

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP.)—Young Corbett, Fresno welterweight, was notified yesterday his proposed fight with King Tut in Chicago, March 30, would be recognized by the National Boxing Association as an elimination contest, with the winner to get a chance at the title held by Tommy Freeman, of Cleveland.

COLUMBUS, O.—(AP.)—William Tilden, former amateur tennis king, defeated Karel Kozeluh, of Czecho-Slovakia, 0-6, 6-2, 6-3, here last night in the sixth of a series of matches for the world's professional indoor championships. Francis T. Hunter lost to Ernest Pare, 6-3, 6-2. Kozeluh and Pare defeated Tilden and Hunter, 6-4, 6-2, in doubles.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP.)—Weather permitting, Pa Stribling hoped to marshal his static forces tonight for a heavyweight show topped by a 10-round bout between Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, and Johnny Risko, of Cleveland. The card was postponed from last night because of rain. The prospects were for clearing weather this afternoon and favorable, if not actually moon-lit and balmy atmosphere for the evening.

ELKINS, W. Va.—(AP.)—Davis and Elkins completed its state conference basketball schedule without defeat by making New River State its eighth victim here last night, 40 to 28.

SPORT SHORTS

BEARDSTOWN, Ill.—(AP.)—A general riot broke out last night at the Beardstown High School gymnasium after a basketball game with Springfield High School. Several persons suffered bruises and cuts, but none was seriously injured, police said. The fight started when a spectator attacked a Springfield player.

sacker is the picture of health and happiness.

Stocks Turn Weak — Local Market Narrow

PROFIT-TAKING SENDS STOCK LIST OFF

Market Turns Weak Early, But Rallying Tendencies Appear in Mid-Afternoon

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The stock market spilled over again today, as it did a week ago when bullishness became the order.

Utility and amusement shares turned decidedly weak and large scale profit taking appeared. Before the last forward movement some gains were lost.

The mid-week business statistics were in the main mildly constructive but the specific character of the upward movement, coupled with an advance uninterrupted by the consecutive sessions led to the conclusion professional traders that the list was due for a corrective reaction.

Heaviness was temporarily overcome for a time in the morning by vigorous buying on the part of the bandwagon issues, particularly the rail orders, but by early afternoon, losses of 1 to 3 points were numerous. At those levels, however, some support appeared.

The steel trade reviews indicated that ingot output had expanded for the fourth consecutive week, but that the upturn was still gradual. Automobile demand continued to show stimulus and production for the estimated output at 52 per cent of capacity, up 1 point from last week. After a sagging tendency in steel scrap prices a former leader at Pittsburgh was reported as an encouraging development.

A further expansion in electric power production for the week ended February 21 and a small gain in freight car loadings for the week ended February 14 were other moderately cheering aspects of the midweek statistics.

The weekly petroleum statistics were again discouraging. The tariff being agitated in Washington is regarded in financial circles as possibly affording a means to some temporary relief, although opinion is decidedly mixed. Gasoline stocks gained 749,000 barrels in the latest week, carrying the total about 3,608,000 above the 35,000,000 level with which the industry hoped to start spring period of heavy consumption.

Credit conditions were about unchanged, although call money was a little scarcer at 1 per cent outside than it has been of late. Foreign news was regarded as constructive, particularly reports that negotiations between Paris and London for closer co-operation by the two money markets were making headway.

STEEL DEMAND EXPANDING

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

The upward trend of iron and steel demand has not been checked, although the rate of gain is still gradual. Business from the automobile industry has shown further improvement, specifications for line pipe, tin plate and track materials continue to increase, and releases from miscellaneous consuming lines are in larger volume. Caution remains the dominating note with most buyers and current orders are notable for their greater frequency rather than for their size.

Distribution of tonnage is uneven both as to products and mills, and there are wide divergences in the operations of different companies and of different departments in the same organization. But raw steel requirements continue to expand in the aggregate. Ingot output in the valleys has increased from 50 to 55 per cent of capacity and there have been smaller gains at Chicago. Cleveland and Birmingham. Steel ingot production for the country at large is estimated at 52 per cent, compared with 51 per cent a week ago.

The same seasonal influences that are apparently stimulating automobile demand are also affecting other steel consuming lines in varying degree.

CAR LOADINGS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Revenue freight loadings for the week ending February 14 were announced today by the American Railway Association as totaling 720,689 cars.

This was an increase of 1,636 over the preceding week, but a decrease of 173,451 from the same week a year ago.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Domestic crude oil production in the week ended February 21 averaged 2,165,250 barrels daily, an increase of 37,550 barrels over the preceding week, but 556,800 barrels below the like 1930 week, the American Petroleum Institute reports.

Standpattism Unprofitable In Business

By B. C. FORBES

END SERIES AND IS: Businesses which have done best in modern times are those that have expanded with the progress of the times. Even the greatest of all, to please its customers constantly improve their products, prices or service.

Contrast the condition existing the last decade or more of the staple old cotton industry, its woolen industry, its railroads, with the fortunes piled up in the aggressive motor industry, motion picture industry, rayon industry, electric appliances, telephone industry, radio industry, photographic industry, and other industries which have poured millions for research, experimentation, invention and the like.

TODAY THE consumer's dollar can buy much more of certain products than it could buy ever before the war, so sleepless and so enthusiastically have better methods been evolved and wider markets cultivated.

Among the industries which have not succeeded in greatly reducing costs is the railroad industry. And we all know how loudly railway managers are complaining, not perhaps without some reason, about the troubles now besetting railroading.

THIS COLUMN very recently presented an indictment by one shipper of the backward methods of the railway men he had to deal with. His statements have excited widespread interest.

Now comes forward a railway man who entered another field for several years and has lately returned to railroading. He makes observations which may prove distinctly helpful to railway executives, which may also contain material for thought by other business men. He says:

"I have had 20 years' experience in operating and traffic department of railroading and four years in the automotive industry. Upon my return to railroad traffic department I found that, while railroads had improved their service from a long-distance haul standpoint, their short-haul service seemed to have depreciated. Also, their traffic solicitation was more energetic, and better methods have been adopted.

"The shipper's experience related in your column hits the nail on the head as the reasons for loss of business in many instances: Infrequent and poor service, and too high rates, both passenger and freight.

"DURING MY entire time as a railroad employe they have endeavored to economize in the operation of trains by hauling as many tons as possible for their motive power to handle from one operating terminal to the next. Difference in grades, when not made up in difference by capacity of the motive power, resulted in cutting down of size or amount of tonnage handled in trains at some terminal points. These loads were left at the terminal until sufficient tonnage accumulated to make another train.

"Result: The merchant or consignee received his goods on no definite schedule.

"PASSENGER FARES, in my opinion, are too high. People find the service better and cheaper by private auto or bus. It does not seem to occur to railroad managements that their equipment is too heavy for economical operation, as pointed out to them by Henry Ford many years ago. They will haul a car of 40 to 60 tons in weight to handle 20 to 50 people, instead of endeavoring to obtain lighter and more economical equipment. Result: They cannot afford to operate frequent and fast service.

"Railroad management is too busy with routine to observe. They do not ask their employes who are in 'front-line trenches' what are the reasons the service offered by the railroad is not used. The majority of railroad officials affect a dignity similar to a feudal lord in the European dark ages or a government employe. Their jobs do not depend on their securing business and holding it; consequently they do not make any appreciable effort to ascertain what will appeal to the public in the way of service and rates, thereby learning what should be done to hold their business.

"A truck can haul two tons 250 miles in 10 hours without difficulty. Is a merchant going to put up forever with a five or six-day railway delivery if he happens to be located on a short line road? No!

"Railroads have a choice of hunting around and developing new economical methods of transportation, or content themselves with the crumbs that fall their way from the public's table and eventually starve to death. Railroads would do far better if managed by men from 45 to 60 instead of from 55 to 70.

"RAILROAD SERVICE is transportation service. They must sell the kind of transportation the public will buy —no ifs, ands or buts. They have no other choice."

DOESN'T THAT sound sensible?

Columbia Gas Forming Leading System

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

COLUMBIA GAS AND ELECTRIC Corporation is forming one of the greatest natural gas systems in the world. Although the extension of gas operations has been under way for many years, the major impetus to this portion of the business has been given in the past two years. Several years more must elapse before the program will be completed and will begin to show results in increased earnings.

Development work has been pushed so rapidly that the company may be said to be having financial growing pains. Under more favorable business conditions new capital investments would be more promptly reflected in earnings and financing operations could be carried out more easily. But with declining consumption of gas and power by large industrial consumers and with market conditions unsuited for the sale of securities, the problems of Columbia Gas have been greatly accentuated.

Network Large

IN CENTRAL OHIO, Eastern Kentucky, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania lie the gas fields of the Appalachian region from which Columbia draws its supply. To get a clear picture of the system it is necessary to visualize a tree with its roots in the gas fields of Kentucky and West Virginia and its trunk extending through the center of Ohio so that the topmost branches touch Lake Erie.

The lower branches reach out to Cincinnati on the West and to Charleston on the East. Farther North a maze of pipe lines is encountered which permit the system to supply gas to the greater part of Ohio, to a portion of Indiana and to a large share of the Pittsburgh district.

This area constitutes the older portion of the Columbia system, but recently operations have been pushed eastward to the Atlantic Seaboard. From the Pittsburgh district a line runs north to Olean, N. Y. It then turns east and passes through Binghamton. From that point it parallels the Delaware River down to Northern New Jersey.

The company's map of New York is dotted with towns for which franchises have been granted but to which service has not yet been extended. This indicates the amount of development work which must be done in the future as well as the possibilities for expanding earnings.

Reaches Philadelphia

ANOTHER PAIR OF LINES follows the southern boundary of Pennsylvania to Philadelphia. Along these lines is a chain of towns to which gas eventually will be supplied.

From these lines a branch was recently completed to serve Washington, D. C. To further augment the supply for Washington, construction has been started on a new 20-inch line from the gas fields in Eastern Kentucky and West Virginia through the state of Virginia to Washington. Franchises also have been secured in towns along this line.

With so many projected increases in the distribution of gas, officials did not care to rely on the production of the Appalachian district alone. Columbia Gas, through its affiliated company, Columbia Oil and Gasoline Corporation, has purchased an interest in a pipe line being built from the fields in the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma and Southwestern Kansas to the Columbia lines in Indiana.

Travers Hears Fake Story Of 'Wife's' Return

CHAPTER XI.

Mary Lou considered the older woman a moment, and thought of what she had been through, of her anxiety and unhappiness all these years, of her courage and her unclouded sweetness of disposition, of her tremendous charm. And capitulated suddenly.

"If you really want to—" surrendered Mary Lou.

A little later Mrs. Lorrimer called her staff of devoted and trusted servants together in her morning room, "office," as she called it, downstairs, and made certain explanations to those who had been with her for any length of time, including Peter, Hilda, her personal maid, and the cook who had been with her since her marriage. The rest of the staff was comparatively new and it was perfectly easy to involve them partly in the deception. As far as they were concerned, Miss "Hartford" was a friend of "poor Mr. Travers" who had come to make Mrs. Lorrimer a long visit. If they suspected romance or a more detailed story they were at liberty to do so. But to those servants who had been with her since Travers' return from France and earlier Mrs. Lorrimer gave the true explanation and asked their help.

Makes Explanation

She told him briefly that she had accepted the position and was not returning to Oakdale. She asked him if he could possibly take time off the following day to go down to Oakdale and see that her trunk and her box of books and personal belongings and suitcase were expressed to her. Everything was still packed, with the exception of a few things which would go in the suitcase and which Gram would attend to for her. She asked him to send them, not to Mary Lou Thurston but to "Miss Delight Harford" and, upon his amazed exclamation, she assured him that she couldn't explain over the wire but would send him a letter that evening by special delivery, and ended by informing him she was happy, content and pleased with her "job" and that a little later he must come out to see her. Mrs. Lorrimer having readily given her this permission.

Larry was agog. There is no word for it. He pleaded, demanded and questioned, but Mary Lou, who, if truth must be told, was rather enjoying herself by mystifying him, was adamant. He would get a letter from her tomorrow, she said, and would say no more.

After that she telephoned Oakdale and had a terrible time making Gram Jennings understand where she was and that she was all right and was going to stay. The old lady was afraid of the telephone and privately considered it an invention of the devil, and only Clara's insistence some years ago had resulted in her having it installed. But finally she was made aware of the fact that Mary Lou had procured an excellent position, as companion, the one she had hoped to procure, and Larry would be down sometime during the next day to relieve Mrs. Jennings of the trouble of expressing the trunk, and Mary Lou promised, after sending her love to Billy, to call up every few days and find out how that young man might be. And finally, exhausted—for Aunt Adelaide kept shouting questions in her mother's ear—Mary Lou replaced the telephone—she wasn't awfully used to the French kind, anyway.

Going downstairs, Mary Lou found herself speculating upon her new name. She thought, ruefully: "It doesn't suit me. I should be blonde and willowy and perhaps a little clinging. Mary Lou belongs. Maybe because I've had it so long. But it's up to me to forget I ever had it. I can't play at being Delight Harford unless I make myself believe I am!" she thought further.

Her New Name

Mrs. Lorrimer evidently thought so, too.

"No more Mary Lou," she said, "you'll have to get used to the other name. It is necessary, you know. How many lumps, Delight?" asked Mrs. Lorrimer, with perfect gravity.

Mary Lou laughed and then sighed.

"It is an undertaking," she admitted. "It won't be so hard for you of course. After all, you didn't know Mary Lou very long or very well, but I have known her for 20 years! I wrote Larry and explained everything after I called him up. He'll go down and get my things for me," she went on, "and does the mail go out tonight?"

"I'll have it sent right to the postoffice. Tell me," asked Mrs. Lorrimer, "does this engaging young man—I am sure he is, from your earlier description—does he complicate things?"

"Complicate things?" asked Mary Lou, blankly.

"I mean, are you engaged? You must forgive me, my dear; I don't mean to be personal or curious. But we had better understand one another. For if you are, it may be difficult—he may object. Then there is Travers to consider. I had forgotten about this Mr. Mitchell until you spoke of telephoning him and taking him into your confidence. And I wonder if any young man would consent to his fiancee playing such a role as you have undertaken."

"We're just awfully good friends," she answered. "I think he'll help us all he can. You said he might come to see me and bring me news from home?" she asked, and as Mrs. Lorrimer nodded Mary Lou went on, relieved, "I think that Mr. Lorrimer will like him and I'm sure he'd be good for him, somehow."

Doctor Calls

While the two women were at tea Dr. Mathews returned and had himself announced as going directly to his patient.

So, while the two women talked, Dr. Mathews sat beside Travers Lorrimer and explained, slowly and clearly, the situation as Travers must be brought to see it.

Lorrimer sighed deeply. He felt ill and very let down after his attack, his mind was confused, his emotions disturbed.

"I see," he said at last, in the voice from which all vibrant tones were lacking. "She doesn't of course, care for me any more, I understand."

"I didn't say that," Mathews told him gently. "I said—Oh, put yourself in her place, Travers. She was nothing but a youngster when you swept her off her feet after a two weeks' acquaintance. She had, you told me, no very close relatives, was living with cousins in London. There was no one to advise her to wait and be sure. A war-time romance—"

"Not to me," Travers assured him.

"How do you know?" asked Matthews shrewdly. "You weren't much more than a kid yourself, as topsy-turvy, emotionally, as she was. You went back to France, and you've not seen her since. You've been ill, your entire perspective distorted. How do you know it would have lasted? Face that! You two have got to learn to know each other again."

"She's my wife!" said Travers stubbornly.

"She's my wife," Travers said stubbornly.

"She is unable to think of herself as your wife. She has believed you dead for years. It is a chance, a pure chance, that she did not remarry. I don't say she forgot you, Travers, but your memory must have—faded. I have to be brutal, for her sake and for your own. She went on living in London with the people who had taken her when she was first left alone there, after her mother's remarriage," went on Mathews, knowing this much of the story well enough, as far as Travers himself knew it. "And when that home was broken up she came out to America as companion to an elderly woman—" this part of the story Mathews had concocted himself—"and quite by chance saw your mother's name in the paper and came out to see her in order to discover if, by any chance, she was a relation of yours. Pure coincidence that she came here at all. Picture," said Mathews, rather warming to his fiction, "imagine her astonishment when she learned you had been living all these years—"

Listens to Doctor

"She did try to trace you. But she was ill some time after you left for France. You wrote her, you told me, one letter on your return to the front. She never received it nor the letters you were able to send from the prison camp. Remember, you were reported missing," he went on and Travers nodded. "What more natural than for her to think that you were dead? Then, when the war was over, you were sent straight home, still an invalid from your crash, without an opportunity to go to London and find her. You wrote to the old address after your return. She had moved away. Convinced of your death, she did not try to trace you further. Try to think of her instead of yourself. It is impossible for her to begin where you two left off. Impossible! But she is here under your roof. Your mother has accepted her. She has consented to stay. But you must try and make the adjustment easy for her. Begin, as I told you, at the beginning, with friendship. Come to know one another. I know it is a difficult situation but a lot of it is up to you. I trust you to see it through—clearly. Honorably."

"All right, Doc," he said.

Mathews rose, and stood looking down at him, relieved and hopeful of the success of his arguments. He had, he knew, Lorrimer's word.

DAILY TRUE STORY— 'Wheels'

"What do you have him trailin' 'round for, Joe?"

"Flash" Morrisy jerked his thumb toward the bar where an under-sized young man stood, drinking beer and eating pretzels. Joe took a look and grinned.

"That's 'Wheels'," he told Flash.

"Not exactly—he's an awful dumb cluck—"

"That's what I mean, Joe. We ain't got no use for dumb clucks in our outfit. Why waste your time on him?"

"You'd be surprised, dumb as he is about most things, he's a second Edison."

"Yeah?"

"Yeah. All he knows is machinery—he can invent the greatest stuff—that's why we call him 'Wheels,' all he thinks of is machinery and such truck."

Flash Morrisy stared at Joe Conley in surprise. Then he waxed sarcastic.

"Sure, a dumb cluck who invents mechanical junk must be a great help to you with your string of speaks and your booze route—or are you going back to pete jobs again?"

Joe laughed at Flash.

"I should go back to crackin' petes when I've got this lay. Wheels is mighty handy. Onna level, he doped out a sort of electric thing that will make raw alky taste like old Kentuck rye in the wood 10 years—and it will do it in a coupla days. That ain't all, he's rigged up other things."

Explains Situation

Flash Morrisy nodded.

"That's different. Where did you grab him? A guy like that ought to make his pile in some big plant."

"He got in some jam out in Chi. Never said much about it. He panned me for coffee money one night when I happened to be feelin' good and I took him into th' Berlin, back way, and told 'em to feed him. He wasn't so dumb at that. We had a swell crowd and I got the idea I'd bring this bum out and have my announcer tell the bunch he was a famous comedian, get me? I was gonna have him tell 'em this bird was doin' a panhandler act. Then we was gonna get a laugh watchin' him try to make good."

"Yeah? You always was crazy when you got lit, Joe. How did it work out?"

"I went back just as he was finishing his ham an' eggs. I set down in the kitchen beside him to jolly him along. He asked me if it was my night club and if I was raided much. Then I decided he was a spotter.

"'Listen, he says, 'instead of all this danger, why don't you rig one of those faucets so it will run the old red-eye out?'

"I give him the laugh. I told him that was older than Methu—Methu—older'n hell. I told him it was th' first thing the raiders looked for.

"'Sure, because you don't know how to fix it. I could fix it for you so nobody could get wise,' he tells me.

"He rigged up a faucet that looked like any old faucet. And when you turned it, just water came out. But he had it fixed so you give th' whole faucet a little twist, then pull it out a couple inches and what happens?"

Flash scowled and shook his head.

"When you do that you shut off th' water and connect with a partition tank that holds 20 gallons. Honest, I bet there's been 20 different raiders snoopin' 'round th' Berlin, and every one tried that faucet. All they got was water. When they was gone Pete, who runs it, just gives it a twist and yank and when he turned it, whisky!"

Put on the Spot

"Not so bad."

Wheels sauntered over to the table.

"Need me?" he asked.

Joe shook his head.

"I'm workin' on that surprise party," he said, with a grin.

"O-kay," Joe told him and he went out.

The time came when Flash Morisy did as so many others do who are in on a big booze ring, he got sore because Joe was heading it and taking the lion's share. He decided to break into Joe's territory and finally, when trouble arose, have Joe put on the spot.

So far as Flash knew, Joe never suspected.

One night Joe, driving down a side street to the hangout Flash patronized, sent one of his men in to have Flash come out. Through the open window of his car Joe said, "Get in, Flash, while I slip you your cut from that last lot of hooch."

There was a muffled report and Flash slumped to the street. Joe drove away grinning.

"Wheels" had rigged a device on that car door so that when the handle was turned a bullet would be fired. This was the "surprise party" he had been working on.

Flash Morrisy had his friends. Joe knew this and he began to worry. It was about time he got out. What he needed was one more big haul and he would beat it.

He knew a certain vault where a whopping big fortune in gems was stored. He also knew that if he cracked it, even if he left no trail, he would be under suspicion.

There was but one person he would talk it over with, Kate, his moll. In his little private office at the Berlin he told her of his plans.

"You jump ahead to Paris, Kid," he told her. "I'll do the job, hide the stuff and join you. I've got plenty for years, but a few years later I'll come back and get all that ice and we'll be rolling in coin."

"But, Joe, how can you hide it like that?"

"Wheels tipped me how to hide it."

"How, Joe?"

Joe looked at her and grinned.

"I'm tellin' nobody, not even you, Kate."

"Yeah? Then you trust Wheels more than me—and him just a mechanical nut."

"You must think I'm dumb. After I grab all that ice and Wheels helps me hide it like he showed me how to do, I put him on the spot—get me?"

Kate nodded.

And so Kate disappeared.

Within a week Joe dropped into the basement shop where Wheels worked and lived."

"Get that hiding place ready," he ordered.

"It's all ready," and Wheels showed Joe that the apparent cement base to a heavy electric upright drill was merely a fake. The cement base was hidden under some bags. There was a hole inside. The idea was to put the stolen gems in this hole, plug it up with cement and put it under the drill. The fake wooden base, coated with cement, would be tossed into the furnace.

Accidentally Killed

A package wrapped in leather and then in oiled silk which Joe had previously provided, was slipped into the hole in the cement base. Fresh cement was plugged on and the thing was rolled under the drill. The drill was lowered in place. Wheels nodded.

"I'll finish my job on this lock," he said, going to his bench and turning his back to Joe.

Joe pulled his gat, took steady aim and let drive. There was a muffled report and Joe slumped to the floor.

"Wheels" Jones turned around and looked at him. Within ten minutes he had raised that drill, scooped out the soft cement and secured the gems.

He talked to Joe quite as though he were alive.

"It's a good thing I was fixin' that booze tank and heard what you told your Moll about bumping me," he said, "and you never guessed I switched your gat to one I rigged up to shoot backwards! So I'm just a dumb cluck, eh?"

Rescued From Barrel After Signaling For Hours

When you last heard from me, O valued reader, I was in the gutter. Yes, I was! I was so. Tossed head first into an ole barrel. Such a plight might discourage some girls. But I only laughed to myself in the barrel, and kicked my shapely legs in glee—you see I wanted to attract some good, kind, influential man, and start my life all over again. As soon as I was comfortably in his arms, I could begin my career as a confessions writer in earnest. Belles lettres was my ambition, I had always wanted to be one.

Let's see. Where were we? Oh, yes. Well, as a Camping Girl I had learned to wig wag, so I began spelling words with my legs. First I spelled, "Oh, you kid!" And then, "Out for a good time." I hardly know how long I remained inverted in that barrel, subsisting on what ever I could find. Life was topsy turvy in those days—but it was fun. Whoops! Then, what do you suppose happened? Someone slyly removed my slipper and tickled my instep. The first thing I knew I was being rescued. Rescued! Back on my feet again. But I could not see my benefactor. Was he handsome? Rich? He had neglected to remove the barrel from my head. Was I doomed to spend the rest of my days in darkness—e-ternal darkness? I wonder!

The Rockview Horror Has Produced No Noticeable Diminution in Capital Crimes.

Capital punishment is defended on the ground it deters people from committing capital crimes. If there was ever a time when it should exercise its supposedly deterrent influence, it should be now, when the horror of the execution of Mrs. Irene Shrader and Glenn Dague at Rockview is fresh in everybody's mind.

On Monday, when they were put to death, and for days before, their punishment was set before the people as a major news item by every paper in the tri-state district. If the theory of the upholders of the death penalty is correct, their fate should have given pause to potential killers—at least for a few days. But what do we find?

Let the subjoined headlines from the first edition of the Sun-Telegraph yesterday answer:

"Merchant Slain by Robbers."
"Two Gas Stations, Collector Held Up."
"Bandit Slain, Officer Wounded in Battle."
"Gang Slayers Sought Here."
"Boy's Body Found, Guardian Arrested."
"Wife, 15, Faces Death Charge."
"Girl Killed, Two Wounded in Strike Riot."

The events to which these headlines referred all occurred in Pennsylvania or adjacent states.

Not a Closed Incident

Mayor Kline's Report on Charges Against Succop Shows the Need for Further Inquiry.

Mayor Kline's report on the charges of improper conduct by Bertram L. Succop as director of supplies is like the Wickersham report—it argues both ways. The Mayor's statement is a weak document.

He announces that he has dismissed Succop because of his alleged irregularities, and at the same time offers excuses for many of the things that have caused complaint.

It was more or less to be expected that the Mayor should defend Succop and his methods, since the Mayor shares responsibility for the contracts which have resulted in squandering of the taxpayers' money. Mr. Kline would have made a more favorable showing if he had frankly admitted that he had not given the attention that he should have given to the management of the Department of Supplies.

Even though Succop is dismissed, the matter is not to be regarded as a closed incident. The need for further inquiry is more evident than ever. The grand jury should investigate.

Dope Doctors

When Are We Going to Get Rid of Physicians Who Make It Easy to Obtain Narcotics?

When is the American Medical Association going to set to work and clean out the "dope doctors," once and for all?

In every city in the United States today there are at least half a dozen doctors who make a fortune selling dope under the guise of prescriptions.

These doctors are many of them derelicts and drifters—dope fiends themselves and eager to make more dope fiends so they can make more money to buy their own "dope."

But some of these doctors are in good and regular standing.

They are the most dangerous of all.

Every dope slave who began the habit under easy comfortable circumstances, could tell you a story about some "reputable" doctor who helped him "get the habit."

When will the American Medical Association appoint a special committee to investigate information which is so easy to get that it is almost a joke to speak of "investigation"?

It would be a cruel world indeed without the auspices of a kindly and generous, and for the most part, high minded profession.

We could do very well without the dope doctors.

When are we going to get rid of them—gentlemen of the American Medical Association?

Racketeers in Wall Street

Financial Charlatans at Work Again With Schemes to Get Money From Inexperienced Investors.

The rise in the stock market has revived the activities of crooks who lurk in the shadow of legitimate finance.

James C. Auchincloss, president of the Better Business Bureau of New York City, warns the public that illegitimate operators have renewed their operations in recent weeks after a long period of more or less idleness.

The revelation during the recent stock market rally that a part of the public is no longer without funds or without courage, brought the financial ghouls back to prey upon the savings of the ill-advised.

The argument advanced is that get-rich-quick schemes will swiftly restore personal estates which were depleted by the ravages of panic.

They can restore their financial well-being only by patient saving through the years and by balanced investment in securities of outstanding companies which are likely to participate in a revival of prosperity.

With the economic horizon still clouded, though betterment is in sight, this is no time for reckless experiment with reduced capital in wildcat schemes.

Opportunities for sound outright investment in strong, proven enterprises are perhaps never better than during the latter phases of a major business depression.

Financial racketeers have already started out to deprive ill-informed amateur investors of their opportunity to participate in the fruits of recovery.

Recognizing the existing skeptical mood of investors, these charlatans suggest alleged profit-making activities in well-known listed stocks through pool participation and allied activities. These devices are merely schemes for separating the inexperienced from their money.

Amateurs should never deal with strange brokers without making an independent checkup on their integrity, and, when in doubt, can always purchase stocks and bonds through their own bank.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Mixed Grill.

You may convince a man that he is no Adonis—but never that he hasn't plenty of sex-appeal, no matter what his mirror tells him.

If curves and plumpness are really coming in again, the divorce lawyers had better start saving their pennies before the slump begins. A nice layer of upholstery seems to pad a woman's nerves and keep her calm and sweet-natured and peace loving. A FAT woman in Reno is a curiosity.

By marrying a man you merely make an ex-bachelor of him. It takes two or three years of special training to smooth off the raw edges, add the finer touches and turn out that finished product—a husband.

Poor man! First, it's his mother, trying to stuff castor oil down him; then it's his teacher, trying to cram an education into him; then it's a girl, trying to wish marriage on him; and, finally, his wife, trying to stuff spinach down him.

Making an effective exit, whether from the last scene of a play or from the last scene of a love-affair, is one of the Fine Arts of Life.

What with platinum hair, face-lifts, Florida sun-baths and Paris clothes, it costs a man more to keep his wife in repairs these days than it does to keep his car in repair.

The average man is married when he is off his guard or under a hypnotic spell, and it's pretty hard for him to forgive the woman who took that advantage of him.

Bachelors no longer find life so exciting. It has reached the point where a man has to be tied to one woman before he can extract any kick out of making love to another.

* * *

Many a man stops loving his wife so gradually that he never finds it out unless she happens to accuse him of it.

Isn't It So?

How Science Influences Thinking

By Archibald Henderson

The influence of science upon the thinking of humanity is one of the notable symptoms of the age. Science always has one inevitable result; it tends to make mankind more intelligent. The finest sort of mental discipline is found in working out some intricate problem which demands solution. This may be a problem in philosophy or ethics, in economics or biometrics, in physics or mathematics. Correct thinking, the exact analysis of the various factors, the reaching of accurate conclusions from reliable assumptions—these constitute the elements in the working out of an intellectual problem.

Science surpasses all other branches of human thought in respect to affording the best type of problems for intellectual discipline. Scientific problems do not exercise the intellect alone. They may call for the display of fantasy, imagination, the picturizing faculty, the ability to see things in perspective, to correlate intricately formed objects located in space.

The superiority of the scientific mind resides in the fact that it is removed from all selfish considerations. Prejudice and prepossession, feeling and emotion cannot enter into scientific problems. They deal with facts through the relation of fixed laws. These laws are immutable and not subject to the fluctuations dictated by desire, passion or self-interest.

Science thus sharpens, directs and trains in the highest degree the intellectual faculty and other attributes of the mind associated with the play of the intellect. Science is valued in education as a means of training the human mind to indulge in pure thought and to deal in mental abstractions. The ability to discover and to formulate the laws of phenomena, whether abstract or material, is one of the greatest powers of the human mind.

Science is appreciated by the mass mind for purely utilitarian considerations. The race looks up to the scientist who makes life more convenient or more luxurious. Humanity prizes the man who enables everyone to triumph over severe obstacles, whether it be to fly through the air, to travel beneath the surface of the ocean, or to harness, direct and utilize, for material, practical advantage, great natural powers, such as air, water, steam, gas, electricity. The scientist, the inventor, is a benefactor, and is justly so regarded, of the human race.

The scientist himself has a different reason for his valuation of science. The scientist, to be sure, prizes science, in that it enables man to become a conqueror. He overcomes the obstacles of silent, obdurate nature. But science, as well as art, also gives man aims in life higher than those of mere practical living. Science reveals to him higher modes of life. Science gives man the sensation of being godlike in origin. As the race arrives at a deeper comprehension, a profounder grasp of the facts, essences and laws of nature, the nearer does the human race approximate to the divine. Science does not necessarily make a man moral. But it enables him to understand things. And understanding is the foundation of education and self-discipline.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You live two lives.

One is the life which other men see—which you live and express in your body. The other is the life you live inside your body—which no one sees but yourself and that mysterious power men call God.

Two lives—one the life of the senses, vivid, active, full of taste, sound, sight, touch and feeling . . . the other without senses, moving silently, blindly, unseen through your thoughts and emotions.

Yet, strangely, that unseen life is the more active . . . the more powerful . . . it is, indeed, your only real life.

There, in the silence and the darkness, your destiny is determined. Your "seen" life is only a reflection of that inner life.

There is nothing occult or mysterious about that statement. You can prove its truth very simply. Look around at the furniture in your home—the chairs, tables, pictures, curtains, books, radio. These are material things—now. But before they were immaterial things and existed in the mind. But that existence was a real existence.

There was their pattern made, bit by bit—as surely as that copy was, later on, copied on loom and press. Those things lived in some man's mind before they were ever copied by any man's hand. And all that you see is only the copy of some man's secret life.

As things live in the mind, so do thoughts live in the mind. As a chair is born in the mind before it is seen by the eye, so an act is born in the mind before it is expressed by the hands or the tongue. And those secret, inner acts determine all your outer life.

You think that thoughts don't matter.

They are the only things that do matter. You are what you think . . . and what you feel. You are what you are inside.

Your secret life may be utterly unlike your outer life, but it is, nevertheless, your real life, and sooner or later it will put its mark on your every act. Try as hard as you may to hide it, it will creep into your voice, it will peer furtively through your eyes, it will find a way to manipulate your hands.

You cannot think a thing without being it.

You smile as you read that. You don't believe it's true. There are those secret dreams of yours that you wouldn't want anyone to know about. They're far from respectable! But that's just why you have them.

You're so sick of dullness . . . so weary of being respectable. Those dreams are your safety valve. Surely it can't hurt to have an indulgence that will never go any further than your own mind?

But it will go further than your own mind.

Little by little that unseen life will make itself seen.

Some day you'll suddenly find yourself saying something you hadn't meant to say . . . doing something you hadn't meant to do . . . showing an interest in something, getting excited or angry about something that is utterly at variance with the personality and the program you've shown the world. You'll be shocked, surprised, perhaps humiliated. You'll wonder why on earth you did that. How could you do something so unlike yourself. But it wasn't unlike yourself.

It was yourself, your real self, making itself seen at last.

And so, by the same token, your inner life is lovely and rich, your outer life will reflect that loveliness, that richness, though you live in the humblest circumstances.

Stop being so anxious about your outward life . . . about the impression you are making by your outward acts. Be a great deal more anxious about your inner life, which you now think "doesn't matter." There, in your secret thoughts, you are building your heaven . . . or digging your hell.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Clown

He can lift up men's hearts on his pinions.
On the scintillant wings of a jest;
He is wise, though the least of Earth's minions,
For he gives to the world-weary, rest.

Any seeker can readily find him
In the midst of the merriest crowd;
He is free, and no sorrow can bind him.
By life's trials his head is unbowed.
He cares nothing for rank or for learning,
He will mock at a savage or a king.
Yet he eases the heavy heart's yearning,
And he teaches the silent to sing.

With scant honor his fellows endow him,
Little dignity there to revere;
But the highest among them allow him
To give them a smile for a tear!

Text for Today But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.—Romans, viii:11.

THINK IT OVER

Drawn by Hal Coffman.

Life is a wilderness in which the weak and irresolute lose their way. Only the strong and courageous scale the peaks, look about them, see the vistas that lie ahead.

And as this picture symbolizes, the first of life's mountains to be conquered is YOURSELF. There is no path around that mountain. You must face the climb unaided, no matter how difficult it seems.

Many never learn that lesson. They are too blind to see the obstacle or too cowardly to surmount it. But only from the top can you find your true bearings and glimpse the horizon spread out before you.

Until you reach that summit, life must remain a mystery to you; a tangled maze without meaning or plan.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—There are thousands of extraordinarily worth while folk in the metropolis whom poverty does not degrade, nor does it deface their cultural dignity. Shunted to the backwaters of life, they are not soured by defeat, but are symbols of gentility and charm.

Today in a small shop off the beaten paths was an elderly clerk, a scholarly gentleman of obviously aristocratic lineage. He is the type of saintly person the hagiologists might glorify but seldom do. His humanity blossoms in those simple graces that bring a slight choke.

After a small purchase we chatted. Overcoming his reluctance, I learned he had studied at Oxford, occupied a responsible post in a Liverpool counting house and was untrussed by the war. Penniless, he came to America with his daughter, who had a stage engagement.

She married and later lost her life in a motor accident. He lives in a hall bedroom and his brief relaxing hours are spent in public libraries, art galleries and free lectures. He knew more about New York and its early history than almost anyone I ever questioned.

He is but one of many New Yorkers in humble positions—both men and women. Intellectually and by right of birth, they are far superior to the posts they fill. I have found them as shoe clerks, cafe cashiers and waiters. No one ever hears them whine.

No matter the adversity they never seek charity. That is why so frequently they are carried from squalid quarters in ambulances to some hospital suffering from malnutrition. From the isolation of this gentle bleakness they are often borne to the potter's field.

Such unfortunates almost always drift to crowded cities when their lives reach an impasse. Here they can obscure their identity and be free of questioning about their past. And perhaps attain their Nirvana.

Our Cat Investigation Department has run down the location of the beautiful black cat for so many years seen by passers-by in the florist's window near the Hippodrome. The feline, now 15 years of age, is spending declining days at the American Hospital for Pets on First avenue and is as frisky as a kitten.

Writing slaves may perk up at news that Zane Grey in his own yacht has set off for Tahiti on a year's deep-sea fishing expedition. In earlier days Mr. Grey studied dentistry and dashed off Western tales between fang yankings. His first efforts received hoots from the intelligentsia—a tooth tinkerer turned literary. Today his yearly intake is more than a quarter of a million.

One of the best moose hunters, too, is that outdoorsey scribbler Rex Beach. Up in the Canadian wilds guides call him "the Yankee Sure Shot."

My one experience in wild animal hunting was for the bob-cat in 1929—just before the crash—with Mike Hogg on the Texas border. While the dogs treed the varmint, a mile away I sat in a coupe, closed and locked, and read the latest copy of Variety. The old plainsman!

* * *

Later Major Raymond Dickson, of Bolling and Villa Acuna, was regaling cronies at the Houston Club over my prowess as a Nimrod. "There's a lad," said the Major, "who takes naturally to the kill. He comes from a family of fly swatters."

The Major is ever flattering to literary friends. When Irvin Cobb rounded into Houston for a lecture engagement, Major Dickson met him afterward for "two in the red" at Slim's lunch counter. "Irvin," he said, "that bull of yours is holding up surprisingly well. Sometimes I almost believe you myself."

She is one of those slyly ingratiating—that one will likely be under the N's—maids who patrols Broadway side streets in the 40's after dusk. She came from a town where I used to live, but, meeting me, quickly averts her eyes. Should she read this I'd like her to know I am her friend.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You'd like to give your associates the impression that you are a very fine sort of person in your home.

They have certainly lost a lot of respect for you.

They have occasion to think that they do not hold as warm a place in your heart as a comparative stranger.

How can they know that you are satisfied with them if you act so bored and annoyed when you are in their society only?

If outsiders can bring out your good points the family begin to think that they have not much power over you and so they lose interest in you.
